Sniper Fire Kills Girl, Policeman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A white policeman and a 15-year-old Negro girl were shot to death Tuesday night in an outbreak of sniper fire in Camden, N.J. Sniping incidents with no reported injuries recurred in Hartford, Conn., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Camden victims were Patrolman Rande J. Chandler, 22, and Rose McDonald, both apparently hit by the same volley during the second night of disorders in the south New Jersey city of 117,000 near Philadelphia.

Police said Chandler was one of several patrolmen assigned to clear debris that had been thrown into a street. As the patrolman approached, more trash, rocks and bottles began flying and then the shots rang out.

In the same predominantly Negro section Monday night a melee broke out when police tried to break up a fight among a number of juveniles. Policemen were attacked with fists and rocks by the youths.

In Fort Lauderdale, sniper fire crackled again today as National Guard troops and police calmed but failed to stop the violence that has gripped a predominantly Negro area three successive nights.

Police, joined by 100 guardsmen, patrolled to enforce an overnight curfew banning all but emergency personnel from streets in a 200-block area.

They met scattered looting, rock throwing, firebombing and the sporadic sniping but police said the disturbances were less violent than on Sunday and Monday nights, when 113 persons were arrested.

Forty-seven persons were arrested Tuesday night, police said. An estimated 75 persons have been injured in the disorders that began when a Negro woman was shot and wounded as police were breaking up an auto drag race.

Police and 100 state troopers in Hartford used tear gas and wholesale arrests to restore calm Tuesday night after an outbreak of arson and shooting in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican North End section.

More than 70 stores have been burned or looted and a score of persons, including firemen and policemen, injured in the disturbances which erupted Monday night. Arrests totalled about 200.

City Manager Elisha Freedman said he would decide today whether to continue a citywide overnight curfew—the second such ban for the city in two months.

Mayor Ann Uccello ordered residents of the Connecticut capital off the streets from sunset to sunrise for two nights in June because of violence in the North End.

The curfew at first failed to control the crowds of destructive teen-agers and young adults Tuesday night but the arrests of scores of persons and a light rain brought the situation under control by 11 p.m.

B.C. Cool To Ottawa Standards

Pollution Top Topic

Resources Minister Ray Williston made clear today there is still a long way to go before British Columbia and the federal government can get together on the mechanics of controlling water pollution.

He spoke at a joint press conference with federal Minister Without Portfolio Otto Lang after the two had discussed the proposed Canada Water Act, which will be introduced into Parliament in the fall.

Williston indicated his earlier feeling that the proposed act would create unnecessary confusion in water pollution control has been moderated only slightly.

He said he will need a great deal more clarification before he can even present a clear-cut synopsis of federal proposals to the provincial cabinet.

GOALS THE SAME

Asked if the federal deal would prove more useful in fighting pollution than would the province's existing laws, Williston replied:

"To be perfectly honest and forthright, the answer is no."

But Williston said there is absolutely no difference of opinion on goals between federal and provincial water pollution control programs.

Asked if there is any point in B.C. and Ottawa continuing discussions, Williston replied that there are many international and inter-provincial rivers in the province, which would require inter-governmental co-operation.

Lang, the federal minister in charge of water resources, said the basic intention of the Canada Water Act would be that federal and provincial governments should work together.

He said the bill will contain provision for unilateral federal action where provinces are lagging, but added: "I consider that inconceivable in prospect."

Lang described the talks this morning as "a base for future action," and agreed with Williston replied.

HANOI HINTING DEADLOCK OVER

PARIS (WP)—North Vietnam hinted Tuesday that rapid and massive withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam might get the stalled peace talks off dead centre.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator, said, "If President Nixon continues to withdraw troops rapidly and in considerable numbers we will examine this factor and take it into account."

His remarks constituted the first indication that Hanoi would consider anything less than the total and unconditional withdrawal of the half million troops in South Vietnam.

By the same token, he hinted that North Vietnam would no longer insist on its other previously intransigent demand that the present Saigon regime be replaced by a provisional coalition government.

Left unanswered was whether his remarks to reporters at a North Vietnamese reception represented the long-hoped-for breakthrough at the deadlocked peace talks or rather a propaganda ploy designed to increase pressure on Washington.

Ho Reported Near Death

HONG KONG (CP)—Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating, monitors reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing." Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

In both Washington and Paris rumors spreads that the North Vietnam leader was already dead.

Diplomats speculated that the communique on the illness may have been issued to prepare the way for announcement of his death.

Ho's illness was announced in a communique which said:

"Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well. . . . A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

Another communique, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris remarked: "All I can say is what is obvious—the president is an old man."

STRUGGLE WILL RESULT

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

Ho Chi Minh has been a patriot for 70 years and a Communist for 50.

Israel Strikes Arab Gun Posts

From AP - Reuters

Israeli jets roared across two frontiers today, hitting Arab gun emplacements in Jordan and Lebanon. To the south, Israeli and Egyptian guns again traded fire across the Suez Canal.

In Beirut, Lebanon, knowledgeable sources said the action was "big."

The Israeli planes first streaked across the River Jordan to retaliate for an Arab bazooka attack on an early morning border patrol. The Israeli army said they bombed a former police station in Jordan three miles south of the Sea of Galilee that was occupied by guerrilla gunners.

A spokesman in Aman, Jordan said Israeli tanks and mortars today fired in the area for 35 minutes. Then two Israeli planes machine-gunned the area and dropped napalm bombs, he said. He said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Later in the day Israeli jets crossed the Lebanese border to hit sources of Arab rocket fire that killed two Israelis and wounded four in Kiryat Smona Tuesday night. The army said two waves of planes pounded three Al Fatah guerrilla bases on the western slopes of Mount Hermon in a half-hour strike.

A communique read over Beirut radio said the first raid lasted 25 minutes and the second 15 minutes.

Lebanese ground fire hit back at the intruding planes in both cases, it said, but did not report any Israeli losses.

Israel claims Palestinian guerrillas are based in the Hermon area from which they stage bombing attacks and hit-and-run raids on settlements in Upper Galilee.

A similar Israeli attack two weeks ago resulted in a condemnation from the UN Security Council, which also deplored all armed activity in the area, a reference to guerrilla action.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, reports circulated that Secretary-General U Thant had requested Syria to release the two Israeli men still being held after the hijacking of an American airliner last Friday.

DUBCEK
. . . reform leader

Czechs Expected To Purge Dubcek

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Informed sources said today the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee will meet Thursday or Friday. The session is expected to purge Alexander Dubcek and other leaders of the 1968 reform movement from party posts.

Pro-Russian Communists today stepped up a campaign to have Dubcek consigned to political oblivion. Vasil Bilak, a powerful member of the ruling Communist party presidium, called on the former party chief to confess his mistakes and denounce the real masterminds of the reform policy crushed last year by Russia.

Bilak also said that the reforming Communists whom Dubcek led last year at one point received a suggestion of the possibility of breaking relations with the Soviet Union.

His comments, in an interview published by the Communist party daily newspaper Rude Pravo, continued what appeared to be a careful setting of the stage for a central committee meeting this month.

Observers expect the meeting will strip Dubcek of his presidium and central committee posts, and possibly also of the speakership of the federal legislature. He lost the Communist party leadership in April.

Another conservative, Volem Novy, called Tuesday for the removal of Dubcek from his party jobs and also the removal from the central committee of reformer Josef Smrkovsky, the deputy leader of the National Assembly.

Novy spoke to party functionaries in the Bohemian town of Ceske Budjovice.

Protestants Hit Belfast Traffic

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant extremists brought traffic chaos to Belfast today by building and manning a huge barricade across the M-1 motorway outside the Northern Ireland capital.

The extremists said the barricade was a protest because barricades in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast had not been pulled down.

No move was made by the Royal Ulster Constabulary or British troops to remove either the new barricades or any of the existing ones.

Belfast corporation—the city council—has asked for talks with Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, British military commander in Northern Ireland, and with police representatives.

Aim is to discuss how to ensure law and order in the city and try to get it back to normal after the recent inter-religious rioting and fighting.

Belfast civic leaders said they are worried about continuing complaints of attacks on individuals and threats to property.

GAS SAID HARMLESS

Meanwhile, three British medical experts categorically declared after an investigation in Londonderry that the CS tear gas which the police used in the riots there caused no illness among healthy people.

They noted, however, that after the gas, diarrhea was prevalent, with 60 to 100 cases among babies.

"That is the kind of thing that in normal circumstances would mean action stations for doctors all around the place," said Sir Harold Himsworth, former president of the British Medical Research Council.

CIRCUMSTANCES

"In normal circumstances, 10 per cent of them would be very ill and you would probably get some deaths. We have looked at this and there has not been a single admission to hospital for a baby with diarrhea."

Himsworth's fellow experts are Prof. Robert Thompson, Middlesex University Hospital, and Prof. Anthony Dornhorts, St. George's Medical Hospital, London.

They were appointed by the British home office to check complaints that the reputed 1,000 tear gas canisters used by police in the 36 hours of Londonderry rioting made Roman Catholics in the Bogside area violently ill.

Village Emergency Created by Blasts

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency was declared today in this western New York village as a series of underground explosions rumbled through its downtown area.

The blasts were caused by more than 8,000 gallons of gasoline which spilled into the sewer systems after a collision involving a tanker truck and an automobile. The explosions did no noticeable damage above ground.

The driver of the automobile was killed in the crash, but the truck driver escaped serious injury. Burning gasoline from the accident splashed on four houses and they burned to the ground, leaving 17 persons homeless.

Residents of the village of some 3,500 east of Buffalo were asked to shut off electricity, open doors and windows and refrain from smoking.

Th' provincial gov'mint might do better against pollution if it c'd git over th' idee thet Ottawa is a form of it.

Heirs to Keep North Fighting

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP)—The question of who will succeed Ho Chi Minh, a perennial subject of speculation among Asia specialists, has been given fresh urgency by official Hanoi indications that North Vietnam's president is ill and dying.

But his death, when it comes, is unlikely to bring about dramatic changes in North Vietnamese policies and practice, at least within the immediate future.

Uncle Ho, the Living Legend

For Ho retired long ago to the role of arbiter, leaving the direction of the country to a collegium of younger associates. This move served him in two principal ways.

It permitted him, in contrast to contemporaries like Mao Tse-Tung and Charles de Gaulle, to protect his enormous prestige as "Uncle" Ho, the living legend. This he was able to shift the blame to his subordinates for such blunders as an abortive land reform or the unpopular purge of intellectuals a decade ago. At the same time, his delegation of authority gave Hanoi a degree of institutional stability and experience unparalleled elsewhere in Southeast Asia. This partly assured North Vietnam's survival under the intense pressures of U.S. bombing.

As long as the war in the South continues, it seems probable that their passionate

Ex-Hanoi Prisoners Describe Tortures

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (WP) — Two American navy men recently released from prison by North Vietnam told of brutal treatment and torture of American prisoners, as the Nixon administration Tuesday tried a new angle to build up moral pressure against North Vietnam.

Lt. Robert Franchot Frishman, 28, of Long Beach, Calif., and Postal Clerk E. C. Douglas B. Hedgdahl, 23, of Clark, S.D., held the first press conference of its kind in the auditorium of Bethesda (Md.) National Naval Medical Centre, where they have been recuperating from their ordeal.

North Vietnam has released only nine American prisoners since the war began. U.S. government policy until Tuesday was to play down the experiences of the men released—apparently for fear of retaliation against those still held captive.

But administration officials, in explaining Tuesday's press conference, said continued silence might be interpreted by Hanoi as "governmental passiveness" on the prisoner issue. They added that diplomatic efforts have failed to induce the North Vietnamese to treat their American prisoners better.

Frishman and Hegdahl were two of three men released Aug. 5. The third is air force Capt. Wesley L. Rumble, 26, of Oroville, Calif., who is recuperating at Travis Air Force Base.

Frishman has been spokesman for the three men since their release. He said upon landing in Vientiane, Laos, from Hanoi aboard an International Control Commission plane, that "I do not want to jeopardize other prisoners still there. My treatment has been adequate."

His remarks Tuesday about the treatment of Americans stood in sharp contrast to those earlier ones as he said the North Vietnamese pulled out fingernails, hung men from the ceiling, locked them in solitary confinement in stifling rooms and provided minimal food and medical care.

Taken prisoner after his F-4 fighter was shot down by a Communist surface-to-air missile Oct. 24, 1967, Frishman said the first thing his captors did was to throw him into the back of a truck and parade him before anti-aircraft crews.

He said he was tied up and dragged, even though his right arm was broken from bailing out of the plane. The North Vietnamese questioned him about military tactics right after his capture, he said.

Unlike the North Koreans, who kept beating and questioning the Pueblo crewmen until they signed confessions, Frishman said North Vietnamese interrogations eased after the initial ones about military matters.

The longest part of his captivity, he said, was spent in solitary confinement. Except for an occasional chance to sweep leaves, he said he spent his days eating two meals of little more than pumpkin soup and sitting in his 10-foot by 11-foot room trying to keep his mind active.

The room was closed off, he said, and consisted of brick walls and a tin roof. The heat beating down on the roof turned his room "into an oven" so "you stayed in a heat rash all day."

He described the misery of waking up morning after morning to find that his arm had bled during the night and was stuck fast to the blanket. This meant pulling off the scab to get his arm free, starting the bleeding all over again.

Lt. Cmdr. Richard A. Stratton, also an American prisoner and still held by Hanoi, had it even worse, Frishman said. The North Vietnamese kept insisting that he tell visiting delegations his treatment in captivity had been humane.

"This," Frishman said, "after he had had his fingernails removed and had been thrown into a dark room." Pentagon records show Stratton was captured Jan. 5, 1967.

. . . ISRAEL

Thant's office did not confirm the reports, but a UN spokesman said earlier that he had expressed hope the two would be released soon.

Thant was expected to reply shortly to a request from the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association that the Security Council take action to obtain release of the Israelis. The association has threatened a 24-hour strike of its 44,000 members if the men are not freed.

The International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal asked Syria for a detailed report on the hijacking by two young Arab guerrillas. A spokesman for the organization said the United States "has a moral responsibility for the safety of the passengers" because it was an American airliner and said rules of the organization require that the Syrians make a report outlining the circumstances of the hijacking.

CAIRO TALKS CONTINUE

There also were these other developments on the Middle East scene:

Leaders of Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Iraq continued discussions in Cairo on co-ordinating military efforts against Israel.

Israel's governing Labor party maintained its control of the nationwide Histadrut labor confederation. In an election Tuesday for Histadrut officers that was considered a barometer of the parliamentary elections later this year, the Laborites polled about 65 per cent of the vote.

Israel said two rockets fired from inside Lebanon crashed into the Israeli town of Kiryat Shmonah during the balloting. A 12-year-old boy was reported killed and five others wounded.

Two more rounds fell into the nearby settlement of Kfar Giladi, but no injuries or damage were reported.

Israeli and Egyptian troops again traded small-arms and cannon fire across the Suez canal today and the Israelis said one of its soldiers and a civilian tractor driver were wounded.

Most of the firing took place north of Port Taufiq at the southern end of the 103-mile-long waterway, a spokesman said.

Pike Missing In Judean Wilderness

JERUSALEM (AP) — Searchers today found the passport and wallet of Dr. James Pike, former Episcopal bishop of California missing in the Judean wilderness northwest of the Dead Sea.

Israeli Army officials said Pike's belongings were found in a dry river bed or wadi about a mile east of his abandoned car.

The officials said they expected to find Pike soon "dead or alive."

Pike, 56, and his 31-year-old third wife were motoring through the area when their car broke down Monday night. The couple set out on foot to look for help, but Pike collapsed after two hours walking in the heat and sent his wife on alone. She said she left him on a hillside.

After walking all night, Mrs. Pike met some highway guards early Tuesday and they took her to Bethlehem.

FOUND HIS CAR

The police immediately began a search using helicopters and planes. Pike's car was found Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Pike was under a doctor's care at their hotel room in Jerusalem.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., Pike's mother, Pearl Chambers, said her son and daughter-in-law went to the Holy Land to study the origins of Christianity and the Dead Sea Scrolls for a book he was writing. Pike told friends that he hoped to find documents or ancient records that would provide more information on Christ.

Pike was brought up in the Roman Catholic faith but became an agnostic during his college days. He took law degrees from the University of California and Yale and then worked for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington and taught at George Washington University.

He joined the Episcopal Church during the Second World War when he was a U.S. naval officer. After the war he was ordained from Union Theological Seminary and served as a rector and teacher until 1952, when he was apointed dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

DREW CRITICISM

Pike was elected bishop coadjutor of San Francisco in 1958.

He resigned his bishopric in 1966 and became a research fellow at the Centre for the Study of Democratic Instituions in Santa Barbara. His position was later eliminated in a reorganization.

ton that continuing technical discussions will be necessary.

"Our view is that we must not let differences of opinion about jurisdiction and action get in the way of solving problems."

Williston said the provincial election campaign had prevented him from being fully prepared for the talks and Lang sympathized with that difficulty, adding that he felt it was important to have talks at this stage anyway.

The minister is on a cross-country tour to acquaint provincial governments with the proposed act.

FINANCIAL BURDEN

The new act would place the financial burden for cleaning up Canada's lakes and rivers mainly on the shoulders of municipalities and industries, which are primarily responsible for water pollution.

When the measure was made public in Ottawa Aug. 25 Lang said it was the most comprehensive approach to water pollution ever undertaken.

Williston, at the time, said the announcement from Ottawa appeared to be a form of electioneering.

He reiterated today that he still felt the same way. Liberal leader Pat McGeer used the Ottawa announcement for election purposes, and "it could not be interpreted in any other way" by the B.C. givernment, said Williston.

CHALLENGE

He repeated earlier challenges to both press and public to produce evidence that any other area in the world is doing more to fight pollution than British Columbia.

He also made a point of stressing the need for pollution control "on the basis of economics and common sense."

Lang said the $5,000 maximum daily penalty for violation of the federal measures is meant to emphasize the seriousness with which the federal government views water pollution.

Like all other laws, the laws on water pollution would be expected to gain willing compliance as the basis for being effective, he said.

'PAPER STANDARDS'

Both Williston and Lang agreed that the setting of tough "paper standards" for water quality doesn't magically ease pollution problems.

Specific policies for specific water areas will be the means of putting water pollution control into sensible practice, they agreed.

Lang said today's discussions did not reach the point of designating problem areas, but several were mentioned as illustrations.

LAUNCH PROGRAMS

He said it's not his intention to evaluate provincial water standards or policies on his national tour.

The proposed Canada Water Act, replacing the Canada Water Conservation Assistance Act, would provide for designation of "water quality management areas," and for financially self-sustaining agencies to launch and administer programs in the areas.

. . . HO NEAR DEATH

nationalism will hold Ho's heirs together after his disappearance, even though they may have conflicting tactical views.

When the war ends, however, there are prospects that the divergences within the politburo of the Lao Dong (workers) party could emerge.

Apart from their differences on domestic affairs, Ho's successors are believed to have both hawkish and dovish leanings. Some critics of U.S. policy in Vietnam submit that these tendencies have been insufficiently exploited in efforts to settle the war.

According to most specialists, the leading dogmatist in Hanoi is Troung Chinh, 60, politburo member and chairman of the national assembly. Chinh ranks second in the formal North Vietnamese hierarchy.

An admirer of vigorous Chinese Communist methods, Chinh composed a brutal land collectivization program that provoked a bloody peasant revolt in parts of North Vietnam in 1956. As a result he was dismissed as secretary general of the Lao Dong party.

He survived, however, because he was too valuable to sacrifice. And within the past year, he has regained prominence as the prime advocate of "protracted war" in which the Communists talk and fight simultaneously, using their battlefield posture as leverage for their conference table demands.

Other reputed "hardliners" in the politburo are said to be Le Duc Tho, a senior theoretician; Hoang Quoc Viet, a veteran trade union activist; Hoang Van Hoan, former ambassador to Peking and first vice-chairman of the national assembly; and To Huu, deputy minister of culture and foremost party censor.

In relative terms, the leading moderates in Hanoi are considered to be Premier Pham Van Dong and the defence minister, Vo Nguyen Giap, both of them ex-school teachers and both Ho's oldest associates still active.

Now nearly 60, Giap gained immense popularity from his victory over the French at Dienbienphu in 1954. But his outspoken manner and his reported impatience with ideology has earned him the enmity of Troung Chinh and other diehards.

There is reason to believe that Giap's stature also suffered following failure of the 1968 Lunar New Year offensive to produce a "mass uprising" in favor of the Communists throughout South Vietnam.

In the past, Chinh was successful in curbing Giap's authority by placing powerful political commissars inside the army. The most important of these was general Nguyen Chi Thanh. His death in 1967 removed one of Giap's key rivals.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

This is the time of the year when nearly everybody in hospitals, except the deathly ill, is more even-tempered and of good cheer. Even hospital managers who must constantly wrestle with the problem of overcrowding, like the last sunny days of summer.

Both patients and employees in hospitals are affected by the weather. When the sky is overcast, when the atmosphere is muggy and there is too much rain for comfort, those working or suffering in hospitals take on moods that match the weather. Patients don't feel so good then and they grouse more about it than they do on sunnier days.

When the weather is bright and the relative humidity is low, more patients want to go home sooner. Doctors know early in the day, when they look at the sky, whether the crowding in the hospital will be a little bit lessened that day.

Thailand: From Obscurity to Confusion

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP) — "Anybody who is not completely baffled is just very badly informed."

That old quip, frequently used to describe the mysteries of Asian political behavior, might well be applied to the current state of American relations with Thailand, which seem to have slipped lately from obscurity to confusion.

The obscurity existed from the early 1950s, when U.S. agents directed guerrilla operations against Red China from clandestine Thai bases, until as recently as last year, when the United States refused to concede that it was bombing North Vietnam and Laos from airfields that had been secretly built in Thailand.

CONFUSION

The confusion began to develop early this summer after investigators for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, then spooking around Bangkok, surfaced a confidential "contingency plan" that authorized the commitment of U.S. troops to protect Thailand under certain circumstances.

Before that discovery, attempts by Senator William Fulbright and his associates to penetrate the obscurity shrouding the assortment of American activities in Thailand had been parried by the White House and angrily attacked by the Thais.

But now the senators had a document that appeared to suggest that "another Vietnam" could emerge in Thailand—and the pressure they put on the administration has led to utter confusion in the form of puzzling and often conflicting statements from nearly every concerned quarter.

PART OF PACT

For example, the Thai Chief of Staff Marshal Dawee Chullaspya contended that the plan was part of a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization arrangement. State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey rejected that interpretation, and Dawee countered next day by refuting McCloskey.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird vigorously voiced his opposition to the plan after administration officials had spent a strenuous week striving to defend it as "only" a conditional understanding.

Moreover, Laird's disapproval of U.S. troop commitments "without congressional "consultation and advice" seemed at variance with President Nixon's pledge, made at Bangkok in July, that the United States would "stand proudly with Thailand against those who might threaten it from abroad and from within."

PLEDGE

The president's pledge to the Thais, in addition, appeared to contradict his explanation at Guam two days earlier that the United States intended to decrease its military engagements in the Far East and encourage Asians to be more self-reliant.

Thus the air was cloudy with rhetoric when, two weeks ago, Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman suddenly asserted that the time had arrived for the 50,000 American troops in Thailand to go home.

Referring to Senator Fulbright's suspicions and Secretary Laird's misgivings, Thanat said that Thailand wanted to "start the process of immediate evacuation" of the U.S. forces there in order to allay American fears of overinvolvement.

Coming as it did amid so much confusion, Thanat's call for a U.S. withdrawal was refreshingly straightforward, sensible and consistent with the widespread estimate that the Thais are more than capable of handling their own security problems.

BACKTRACK

But hardly had the surprised state department agreed to discuss the American pullout than the Thais started to backtrack, thereby compounding the fogginess that Thanat's proposal had briefly dispelled.

The Thai premier, Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, quickly explained that his government never meant to suggest an immediate U.S. withdrawal. Instead, he said, American and Thai officials would open talks on the gradual reduction of American forces in Thailand.

What prompted their apparent flipflop, it seems, was a calculated effort of the Thais to increase their flexibility in a situation they consider to be highly uncertain.

They can claim to have proposed the pullout should Washington choose to withdraw—or they can offer to permit a number of U.S. troops to stay if the administration decides otherwise. Either way, they retain the initiative.

Underlying this episode, however, is the fundamental fact that relations between the United States and Thailand rest on a series of ambiguous accords that have never been adequately clarified, either to Americans or to the Thais themselves.

Some of these accords, like former secretary of state Dean Rusk's 1962 promise to protect Thailand and the "contingency" plan now under fire, were originally expedients that have been shaped by time into virtual dogmas.

The prospect is, consequently, that U.S. links with the Thais and others will face recurrent tensions as long as they remain blurred—especially to an American public that has acquired the habit of wanting to know.

Picketer Death Ruled Accident

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday night recommended that the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union make certain that no strikers are intoxicated on picket lines.

The jury, after ruling that the death on a picket line last Tuesday of James Gordon Harvey, 43, was accidental, also recommended that oil companies post men to guide vehicles through company gates.

Harvey was killed when struck by a tanker truck driven by David Slobodian while on picket duty about 3 a.m. at the Shellburn refinery in suburban Burnaby.

The jury found that both Harvey and the truck driver were negligent.

Evidence from pathologist Dr. Roberta Ongley indicated that Harvey had a blood-alcohol content of .16 per cent, equivalent to 8.3 ounces of liquor or 74 ounces of beer, at the time of his death.

"These are minimum figures and would show definite muscular incoordination, staggering and slurred speech," she said.

Death was instantaneous from a skull fracture.

Lawyer Richard Anderson said Slobodian stopped the truck twice after seeing Harvey in front of the vehicle and that he turned to avoid him when the picket bent down to tie his shoelace.

Slobodian attended the inquest but did not testify.

Vern Fehr, 17, a swamper in the truck, said Harvey saw the truck coming and ran to get his picket sign before standing in front of the truck and bending down "as if to tie his shoelace."

The youth said it was common to experience interference while passing through or near the gates of the refinery.

Store Settles

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Edwards, lawyer for a suburban Coquitlam woman who sued Canada Safeway Ltd. and Glazier Canning Co. Ltd. of Blenheim, Ont., after she allegedly found insects in a can of tomatoes, said Tuesday an out-of-court settlement has been reached. Yvonne Penner entered a writ in British Columbia Supreme Court saying she suffered shock, severe nausea and an aversion to eating canned goods. Details of the settlement were not disclosed.

U.S. Holiday Road Mishaps Claim 609

CHICAGO (AP) — Highway accidents killed 609 persons across the United States during the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The toll fell short of the 625 to 725 the National Safety Council had estimated for the holiday.

During a three-day non-holiday weekend in June, deaths totalled 435. The count was made by The Associated Press for comparison with the Labor Day figure.

The toll during the 1968 Labor Day period was 688, highest for any Labor Day weekend.

Wheat Talk Aims at End To Price War

WASHINGTON (CP) — A super-secret meeting on wheat pricing was under way here today as experts from several major wheat exporting countries sought to negotiate a ceasefire in the price war of recent months.

Spokesmen would acknowledge only that the meeting was in progress but emphasized there would be no communique, statement or press briefing following the session.

There even was doubt as to which countries were represented aside from Canada, the United States and Australia.

There were reports that other members of the exporting Big Five—Argentina and the European Common Market—had declined to send representatives, preferring to await a similar wheat meeting scheduled for London Friday.

Still other rumors had it that the two had not even been invited. Argentina has been less and less active in the export field of late.

In line with the "sealed-lips" policy surrounding the secret meeting, a U.S. spokesman would say only that the Common Market had been "informed" of the meeting.

Preserving a Balance

THE ISSUE OF WAGE PARITY with mainland employees has been injected into the current negotiations of local municipal police forces, but despite the heated arguments of Mr. Ed Lawson, who represented the Victoria Policemen's Union before the B.C. Mediation Commission, it is a hard case to make.

It is a common negotiating practice to pick some locality which for one reason or another has established a high pay scale and insist that all other places match the rate. But surely the nature of the situation, the size of the employing firm, the scope of the market, the cost of living and similar factors have a bearing on the matter. In the present case, the issue concerns the relative responsibilities of a policeman in a large metropolitan area compared with those of an officer in a smaller and normally less active community.

Mr. Lawson suggests that Victoria officers will choose to seek work on the mainland for higher pay scales, and surely mobility in the labor market is an essential part of the labor structure. But it would be interesting to see how many employees will assess the balance so strongly in favor of, say, the Vancouver situation.

In saying that he will recommend that Oak Bay and Saanich police serve strike notice, Mr. Lawson terms the Mediation Commission finding "irrational, illogical and unfair" since it was adverse to his wishes. But it must be recognized that no negotiation or mediation procedure can always guarantee the full demands of either party, and Mr. Lawson, who had publicly congratulated the Commission on the fairness of its hearing, should be prepared to accept with some grace what is in no sense a harsh or "punitive" decision.

In any case, resort to strike action by so necessary an agency as the police cannot be allowed in any community. There are certain vital jobs in society which have to be maintained for the health or security of the public. Persons taking such work should recognize that this is so, and be prepared to abide by it.

The law provides for government action to prevent such strikes and it is difficult to see how any other arrangement could be permitted if society is to function in an organized manner. That is not so say that police officers, or any other necessary workers, should be victimized for the public benefit. The latest pay increases do not suggest that they are.

Circling the Square

MAYOR STEPHEN AND SOME of his aldermen have rightly sought to cool the heat arising from protests of merchants in the Centennial Square neighborhood. Clearly, the almost constant presence of large numbers of young people who affect the appearance and manners of the so-called drop-out generation must have some impact on the use of the square by shoppers, housewives, and other ordinary citizens.

When to the crowd effect is added the group preference for horizontal resting, physical demonstrations of affection and other non-conformist attitudes, the merchants may well feel that the atmosphere of the square has been compromised, that their interests are being harmed. This is particularly the case in as much as the city went to some effort to persuade shop-keepers to rent premises in the Centennial arcade on the grounds that it would be a popular thoroughfare for potential purchasers.

All sides to the dispute agree that there is a "problem". But it is a problem that must be solved with justice and an absence of angry discrimination. So long as their behavior is reasonably civilized, any group in the community has a right to use a public place. The litter is a relatively minor part of the problem — it can be solved by self-policing by youth organizations or restraint, in their own interests, by the young people themselves. More serious acts resulting in fouling of doorways and windows call for police action, just as they would in any part of town by any persons.

The square is a public place, for use of the public. The basic problem which faces City Council is to ensure that all members of the public —men, women and children—can use the square without embarrassment, hindrance or dismay. That is not quite the case at present.

A Distaff Victory

THERE IS A WIDESPREAD feeling, among men anyway, that women in politics are vulnerable, that their emotional nature makes them temperamentally unsuited for the rugged in-fighting sometimes necessary. Or so the conventional wisdom goes. Mrs. Gandhi has done a lot in recent days to dispel that notion.

The Indian Prime Minister may have attained her position in the first place partly because she is the daughter of Pandit Nehru, but she is holding on to the job and expanding her power with a mettle and determination that are impressive by any standards. She took on a group of powerful opponents within the Congress Party known as "The Syndicate" and has beaten them handily. Most observers were dubious when she decided to oppose the Syndicate's candidate for president but her nominee, Mr. V. V. Giri, was the victor.

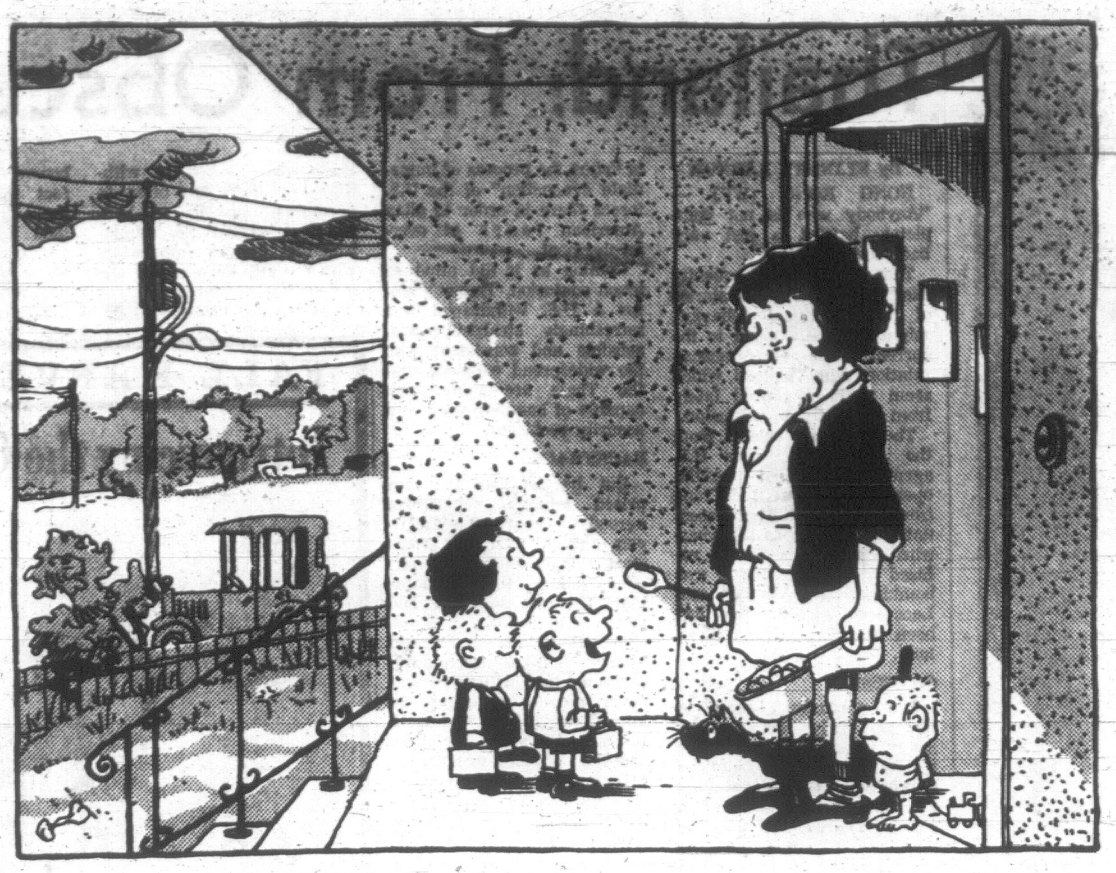

Coming on the heels of her recent nationalization of the banks, which had been bitterly resisted by the deposed Congress Party conservatives, the political coup appears to have made Mrs. Gandhi's position stronger than ever. It has been an impressive political performance, and it isn't necessary to add that common qualifying phrase, "for a woman."

Deep as the Ocean

ON SEPTEMBER 10 THE RUSsian research ship Akadamic Kurchatov, on which three American scientists have been guests for the summer, is scheduled to visit Boston and American oceanographers will have an opportunity to look over the equipment.

During recent weeks the three United States experts have been able to use the equipment to take deep ocean photographs and make acoustical and heat-flow measurements in the deep sea—a possible prelude to activities in the United States' proposed "international oceanographic decade."

The experience aboard the Russian vessel this summer indicates that Soviet-American scientific co-operation can go as deep as the ocean. A pity the principle cannot be applied more fully on the surface, where co-operation remains dangerously patchy, or in space, where joint research programs would save billions of dollars.

Mixed Feelings About the B.C. Returns

THE Social Credit victory in the British Columbia general election was bound to arouse conflicting feelings in the national capital. Neither the Liberals nor the Conservatives have any reason to look with affection on Premier Bennett. Except for Jean Lesage, in his heyday, no provincial magnate has done more to create trouble for successive national governments. Mr. Bennett has been an unpredictable force in Canadian politics, at times disarmingly accommodating, at others hostile. Often he has simply ignored Ottawa, treating it virtually as the capital of some not-very-important foreign country.

Western

From this standpoint, a government in Victoria headed by Mr. Berger might have been looked upon at least at the outset as a welcome change.

On the other hand, the NDP has been over the years a considerably more serious threat to the federal parties than its strangely erratic rival, Social Credit. While its fortunes vary, there is a quality of permanence about the NDP.

But the official Social Credit Party, despite occasional and ephemeral displays of strength, has twice been eliminated from the Federal scene; once by Mr. Diefenbaker and once by Mr. Trudeau. What is left is the Creditiste fragment, which appears to be increasingly redirecting its attention to the Quebec provincial scene.

Gaining Ground

Moreover, the NDP, even before Mr. Schreyer's Manitoba victory had been gaining ground (as evidenced by the polls and byelections) and directly threatening the Liberals who dominate the urban ridings of Canada.

On such a reckoning an NDP provincial victory in British Columbia, immediately following the Manitoba turnover would have been widely interpreted — whether correctly or not — as evidence of gathering momentum and a portent of political trouble for the Trudeau government.

Whatever impression it may have made on B.C. voters, Mr. Bennett's posture as the saviour of his province from "Marxian Socialism" was generally dismissed in Ottawa as extravagant melodrama. It even aroused some mild amusement. For the NDP plot, as detected by Mr. Bennett and reported in newspaper despatches, apparently involved a succession of provincial power seizures leading to the final enthronement socialism in the national capital.

It is wryly recalled that this is precisely the sort of staged triumph which Mr. Bennett on more than one occasion publicly predicted for Social Credit. On to Ottawa was the rallying cry. There was even a strong suspicion that Mr. Bennett, like Warwick, had hand-picked Real Caouette to wear the federal crown.

A Forlorn Battle

As the B.C. leaders, from the outset, appeared to be fighting a forlorn battle, there is no particular disappointment over Dr. McGeer's showing. The confident NDP campaign did, however create a quite general feeling that the province was headed for minority government, in which case a small Liberal group might have enjoyed disproportionate influence.

Some observers think that the rout of the NDP has in any case created a Liberal opportunity. For the record strongly suggests that the NDP, ineradicable as it may well be, is not a force capable of dislodging Social Credit in British Columbia.

After all, it has made six attempts since the initial Social Credit victory — the last in circumstances which certainly appeared favorable to NDP stalwarts — only to find itself weaker at the end, in terms of legislative seats, than it was at the beginning of the Bennett era.

This is almost bound to shake the credibility of the NDP as the B.C. alternative and thus to deny Mr. Berger's group the clear advantage over provincial Liberals which it has long enjoyed.

The failure of Mr. Schreyer's venture into coastal politics is also instructive. In accepting the B.C. invitation, the Manitoba premier conformed to the pattern established by Mr. Douglas who, as premier of Saskatchewan, regularly offered his services to the party in other provinces. Never has this strategy proved effective. Other party leaders — including Social Credit's first leader, the late Mr. Aberhart — have followed the same practice with equal lack of success.

But the NDP seems to have been more reluctant than other parties to draw conclusions from the experience. With every miscalculation the idea seems to take firmer root that what failed to work last time, or the time before, or the time before that, is a reliable socialist victory formula for the next round.

Others Unimpressed

Whatever may have been the case in earlier times, modern evidence suggests that people in one province are remarkably unimpressed by what happens in the politics of others. Plainly Mr. Schreyer's victory did not seem particularly relevant to B.C. voters in their provincial situation—unless, of course, they accepted it as confirmations of the dire warning of W. A. C. Bennett.

It is easier to discern a phenomenon than to explain it. The compartmentalization of politics is not nearly so new as some have suggested. In the last century, for example, Ontario citizens regularly voted for Mowat, the Liberal, provincially and for Macdonald, the Conservative, federally.

But this was considered remarkable and it may well be true that political momentum, represented by a build-up of provincial victories, counted for more, then and for long afterwards, than it does today.

As federalsim has blurred party distinctions, it has doubtless tended to weaken the political allegiance of voters. Nowadays people cross lines with comparative indifference and federal voting patterns seem to have no more significance for provincial elections than provincial returns do for national contests.

Resent Outside Advice

If the provincial voter is indifferent to federal politics as he makes his decision about local matters, there is even less reason why he should be moved by political results in another province. He may even resent advice from outside, as Mr. Bennett—to judge from his campaign speeches—evidently calculated. This makes the transition from one field of politics to another distinctly hazardous.

There is currently talk that Mr. Marchand may replace Mr. Lesage as Liberal leader in Quebec. As a former federal minister, Mr. Lesage achieved great success in provincial politics but he did so while the Conservatives ruled in Ottawa. If Mr. Marchand, as the closest associate of Mr. Trudeau, should make the jump, the Union Nationale unquestionably would argue that a single group was attempting to monopolize power in the two capitals.

The resulting suspicion might make for a difficult campaign even for Mr. Marchand who, up to now, has enjoyed great popularity in his native province.

Letters to the Editor

Square Dealers

I noticed that a certain number of businessmen in this city are trying to persecute and discriminate against another element of our society (or badger city hall into doing it for them). If these businessmen had footed the total cost of building and maintaining Centennial Square, I could sympathize with them, but this is partially a gift from a former businessman and tax money from all of us.

I suppose we should erect a large sign at each entrance saying, "No admittance unless you are prepared to spend (a certain amount of money) in the business establishments surrounding this square."

If the so-called "unwashed" youth groups are defying or breaking any laws, then these businessmen should lay charges, and if convicted, the guilty made to pay the penalty the same as you or I would if we broke any laws. But it seems that the only thing bothering these businessmen is that this group are not spending any money in their places of business. I suspect if they were they would be welcomed with open arms. — Wm. Mason, 1019 Rockland Ave.

Memories

Obviously, we the voters have forgiven Mr. Gaglardi for his attitude to those land deals, as we have forgiven his Prime Minister for offering public funds to protect the financial interests of a select few persons; furthermore, we shall soon forget these naughty deeds just as we have forgotten the forest licensing indiscretion of many Summers ago.

But I, for one, shall neither forgive the Conservative Party for deserting their solid middle-of-the-road principles, nor condone the leader for urging the members to support the party with the far right (dictatorial) policies. — An Ex-Conservative.

Looking Back

From the Times, Sept. 3, 1909

Victoria Trades and Labor Council passed a resolution favoring the building of warships at Esquimalt. There was a good deal of opposition on grounds of "militarism." The council said, while it was in favor of settling international disputes by arbitration, it would not oppose "reorganization of our military and naval forces for the better protection of our Empire."

Wasting The Peace

By JAMES RESTON

THE FIRST WORLD WAR ended in 1919 and the Second World War began 20 years later, at the beginning of September, 1939. That is now just 30 years ago — 30 tumultuous years that have toppled the old empires, created over 50 new nations, produced an endless series of alarms, rebellions, massacres, civil wars, limited wars and profoundly disturbing scientific, racial, and economic revolutions — but no total war among the major powers.

Reston

This can't be all bad. Somebody must have learned something from the unspeakable agony of the human family in these two world wars. It is obscene what has happened in Vietnam and Czechoslovakia, and the indifference of the world to the wholesale destruction of human life in Indonesia and Biafra is a disgrace, but as we have just passed the thirtieth anniversary of the German invasion of Poland, something should be said about the ultimate disasters that have been avoided as well as the tragedies that have been endured.

Never in human history have two sovereign nations, with such contradictory philosophies of human life and such apocalyptic military power, faced one another over so large an area of the earth and even the universe, as the United States and the Soviet Union in the last generation.

Many Provocations

Never have two such hostile powers with such conflicting interests faced so many provocations to let events get out of hand in Berlin, Hungary, Korea, the Middle East, Cuba, and Vietnam, and go to the big war. But always, in this phase of Washington-Moscow control of world events, one or the other of the two major governments has pulled back from major war at the point of crisis.

They have missed many opportunities to reach a sensible accommodation over atomic weapons, Germany, Europe, Cuba and Vietnam, but at least they have avoided the silly pride that led to the First World War over an assassination at Saravejo, or the madness of Hitler that produced the Second World War, and in the process, they have gained time.

Britain, France and Germany, when they had dominant world power between 1914-1939, also had the advantage of a common civilization, but they fell apart and stumbled into two world wars. The United States and the Soviet Union, despite their different backgrounds and interests, at least managed to give the world 10 additional years for reflection.

Turned Clock Back

The tragedy is that they have not used this extra 10 years of relative peace to produce a sensible world order. Khrushchev began to relax the Soviet system and give more freedom of expression to his people at home, and more freedom of experiment to his Communist allies in Eastern Europe, but Kosygin and Brezhnev have turned the clock back, not to Stalinism, but to a repressive and narrow nationalistic policy.

They have come down hard on their own intellectuals and on the hesitant reforms of their Communist allies, and are now in such trouble with the Chinese, and the most creative Communists within the Soviet Union and Eastern and Western Europe, that they are not confident enough to make a genuine accommodation with anybody, either at home or abroad.

Nevertheless, they have seen the main point, that the big war has to be avoided, at all costs, and that the nationalistic conflicts with China may be more important to them than the old ideological struggles with the West.

Similarly, President Nixon has stopped talking as if he were involved in a religious war with the Soviet Union, and is trying to get the Soviets to help end the war in Vietnam, control the savage conflict between the Israelis and Arabs in the Middle East, and control the arms race.

Carry on Propaganda

Both sides are slow and ambiguous. Both are carrying on the propaganda of the past without quite believing it, and both know that they are not really going to reach agreement on a sensible and decent organization of the world.

But somehow they have managed to agree on the main point — that a big war is a disaster for everybody — and after 30 years this is something. At least it is 10 years longer than the period between the two world wars, and it gives people more time to think. In this sense, the 30 years since the outbreak of the last world war, in spite of the disappointments and stupidities, are important, and maybe even reassuring. At least the absence of total war gives man time to think and the question is whether they will use it wisely.

Siberian Blast Still a Mystery 60 Years Later

By VADIM ORLOV
UNESCO Features

Early one midsummer morning 61 years ago—7:15 a.m. on June 30, 1908—the Siberian taiga was lit up by a blaze of light brighter than the brightest sunlight. Simultaneously, a tremendous explosion rent the atmosphere, and a pall of smoke settled over the forest.

Immediately afterwards, investigators from the Irkutsk Seismological Station and Observatory collected statements from over a thousand eye-witnesses in the region of the Stony Tunguska River, where the explosion had occurred.

Many reported seeing a flaming object flying across the sky, leaving a trail like that of a falling meteorite; others, near at hand, saw a blinding fireball appear above the taiga near Vanovara trading post, then turn into a pillar of fire reaching up into the cloudless sky.

After these visual phenomena came a crash, repeated several times over like a peal of thunder and audible up to a thousand kilometres away. It was followed by a hurricane of terrible force, which tore the roofs off houses and flattened fences over an area several hundred kilometres in diameter.

Inside buildings features characteristic of earthquakes were observed. Movement of the earth's crust was recorded by seismological stations in Irkutsk, Tashkent and Jena, Germany.

For three days after the event the sky 86 kilometres above Europe and North Africa was covered in luminous cloud which made it possible to take photographs or read a newspaper even in the middle of the night.

However, it was not until 1921, 13 years later, that the first scientific expedition reached the scene of the disturbance. It was equipped by the USSR Academy of Sciences, and led by the enthusiastic meteorite specialist Lev Kulik. He hoped to find the remains of a gigantic meteorite deep in the taiga, lumps of iron thousands of tons in weight.

However, no large fragments were found either by this or any of the subsequent expeditions in 1927, 1928, 1930 and 1939. All that the explorers could find were minute silvery beads of malleable nickel-iron, fragments of bluish glass with bubbles in, and rounded granules of quartz.

The war interrupted investigations. Interest in the Tunguska mystery was suddenly revived when, in February 1947, a large iron meteorite weighing about 100 metric tons fell near the mountain range of Sikhote Alin, in the Soviet Far East.

This provided Soviet scientists with 23 tons of iron from outer space, which was studied in great detail and is now preserved in Moscow. With new and invaluable information at their disposal, the experts again turned their attention to the secret of the 1908 taiga explosion.

It was established that there was no large crater at the centre of the disturbance, but that all the trees in the area had been torn down, and were lying with their tops pointing away from the explosion. V. Fesenkov, basing his conclusions on the evidence produced by new expeditions, proposed a fresh hypothesis on the origin of the disturbance.

Like the earlier one, it also assumed that something had reached Earth from outer space, but that this was not a meteorite but a comet. According to current assumptions, the nucleus of a comet is made up of solidified, frozen gas. On entering our atmosphere at a speed of 30 kilometres a second, such a nucleus would instantaneously break up into minute fragments.

With the coming of the space age, ideas about the nature of the Tunguska explosion have undergone further modification. Another recent theory suggests that an interplanetary space ship sent to Earth from some other civilization was overtaken by disaster.

But none of the hypotheses put forward so far provides a conclusive and consistent explanation of all the available data. Scientists are therefore continuing to search for the cause of this extraordinary event, and both official and individual expeditions continue to visit the scene of the occurrence.

In 1938, a seminar of young scientists started work near the scene of the explosion in an attempt to solve the mystery conclusively. For the first time, the problem was discussed, not in studies thousands of miles from the scene, but actually on the spot, where traces remain.

This circumstance lends particular force and persuasiveness to the various arguments. Moreover, discussion was not confined to going over the details of ideas already advanced. There are some new clues, differing radically from all previous data.

★

The main question now is whether the 1908 Tunguska explosion was unique and unrepeatable, or whether other occurrences can be shown to be similar in character. The advocates of an arrival from outer space, of whatever kind, favour the first alternative.

Other experts, however, claim that in fact similar cases have been known and carefully recorded. These geologists cite examples of volcanic eruptions which throw up gas and earth, but are not accompanied by the emission of large quantities of lava.

The obvious example of this is Great Kyanizadag, Azerbaijan's biggest volcano, which in 1950 erupted burning gas, earth and a small amount of argillaceous matter. A pillar of flame leapt 600 feet skywards above it at an angle of 55 degrees, before trailing away in ash-grey smoke. The flame bursting out of the crater swirled upwards like globes of fire. It is interesting that eye-witnesses of the Tunguska explosion also saw a brilliant fireball.

An even more powerful eruption of huge masses of ash, slag and sticky lumps of earth occurred with the remarkable explosion of Krakatoa volcano, off Java, on 26th August 1883. Here again the earth was scorched, and instead of a crater there was merely a depression in the ground.

The main eruption caused a strong shock wave in the atmosphere which was recorded all over the world. The height to which matter was thrown was estimated at 60 kilimetres, and the noise of the eruption was audible over 2,000 miles away.

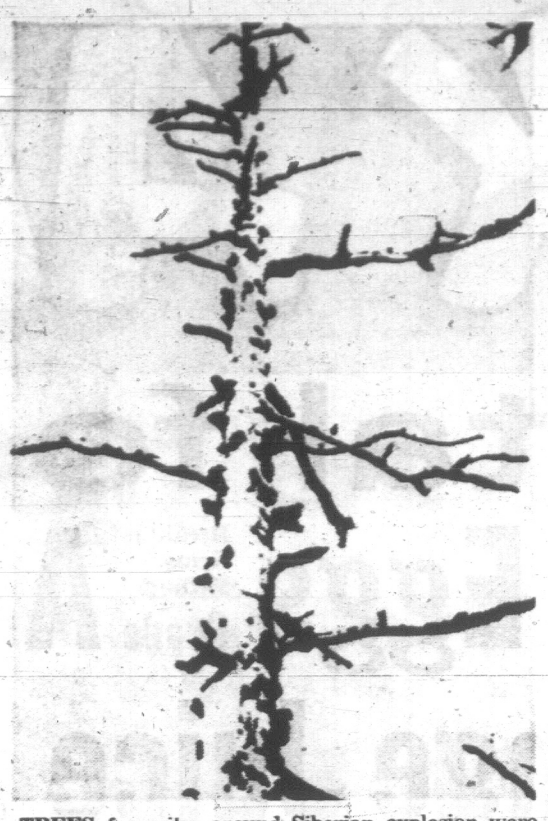

★

In a hollow surrounded by low hills in the region of the Tunguska explosion, Kulik discovered a large number of craters filled with black, liquid mud. To the south of the craters is a marsh where mounds are heaped up in waves, as if someone had pushed them outwards from the middle. An Evenk who used to live nearby has declared that up to the time of the disturbance there was no marsh here, the earth being firm enough for anyone to walk over. This and other indications strongly suggest that what took place in Siberia in 1908 was a mighty volcanic eruption of gas and earth.

The small quantity of hard substances forced up to the surface can obviously be explained by the fact that the centres of volcanic activity in the Tunguska basin are fairly deep. Our present knowledge of the geology of the deepest layers of earth already adequate for explaining the processes which take place there.

For example, it is indisputable that the volcanic activity in the area is connected with the Kimberlite diamond-bearing strata. If burning gas erupted here, then the area is obviously likely to conceal large reservoirs of oil and natural gas.

This explanation, like many others, has its attractions, but it signally fails to account for the many eye-witness reports describing a glowing celestial body heading northward over Siberia. The mystery remains.

TREES for miles around Siberian explosion were flattened outwards, except in the very epicentre, where they remained scorched but upright, like this one. This would seem to indicate an above-ground explosion. (Novosti Press Agency Photos)

CROSS-SECTION of a mature larch which was felled in the area of the explosion shows wider rings which begin about three-quarters of the way from the centre with a different growth pattern in the years following the blast.

Eskimo Fears Persuade Ottawa To Delay Takeover by Quebec

By ANTHONY WESTELL

RESOLUTE BAY, N.W.T.—Eskimos in arctic Quebec are confused and concerned at federal plans to transfer to the provincial government responsibility for providing them with social services.

This became clear last week after Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien visited remote settlements on the east coast of Hudson Bay, in New Quebec.

Federal and Quebec officials have held a series of quiet, unpublicized meetings this year to plan the transfer of Eskimo services, and the target date is April 1, 1970.

But despite the fact that Eskimo delegates have been brought into the federal-provincial talks, Chretien soon discovered that the Eskimo people and their leaders in the settlements do not understand what is happening.

They fear that Quebec will cut their services, force their children into French language, rather than English, schools, and perhaps even take them out of Canada by separating.

Postpone Meeting?

Now back in Ottawa, Chretien has to decide how to proceed with his policy of transferring responsibility to the province in face of Eskimo doubts and opposition.

He will probably postpone the federal-provincial-Eskimo conference due to be held in Quebec City on Sept. 10 and 11, give up the idea of completing the transfer next spring, and seek Quebec's agreement to phase in the new administrative arrangements over a period of years.

He may invite the provincial government to join with the federal government in a joint administration of Eskimo affairs for several years, to accustom the Eskimo people to the scheme.

This could serve also as a pattern for implementation of Chretien's new Indian policy, which calls for the provinces ro recognize Indians as full citizens and to extend to them regular provincial services —replacing present federal services.

Indians, like the Eskimos, are objecting to this transfer and Chretien may find it necessary to phase in the policy by a period of joint administration.

Almost Accident

The 3,000 Eskimos in arctic Quebec are under federal jurisdiction almost by accident. When the provincial government, many years ago, failed to care for their needs, Ottawa stepped into the vacuum.

But while the British North American Act makes specific federal provision for Indians, it says nothing to suggest that Eskimos living within a province are not entitled to the same provincial services as all other citizens—provincial schools and health services, for example.

Beyond Quebec, the only province with an Eskimo population is Newfoundland. And there, in fact, they are recognized as provincial citizens—although Ottawa pays 90 per cent of the cost of services to them.

Quebec's neglect of its Eskimo population was suddenly reversed by the Quiet Revolution ushered in by the Lesage government, and particularly by Rene Levesque when he was a radical minister in that administration.

In the name of Quebec nationalism, Levesque told Ottawa to pull out of the north of the province and leave the Eskimos to the Quebec government. The federal government insisted on first consulting the Eskimo people on their wishes.

Hapless Pawns

There was an ugly political confrontation between Quebec City and Ottawa, in which the Eskimo people were hapless pawns. And the federal-provincial talks broke down in 1964.

Ottawa maintained its services in arctic Quebec, but has given the area low priority in expanding the services—in housing for example—because of uncertainty about the future.

"Quebec posted officers to the north where their talents are sometimes wasted because they lack authority and started a school system which overlaps the federal system.

Last March, federal and provincial officials quietly resumed talks, and decided to invite Eskimo delegates into the negotiations.

Federal-provincial committees, meanwhile, prepared reports on existing services and what may be needed in the next five years in the way of housing, education, health and welfare, development of Eskimo co-ops and small business administration and municipal services.

The federal and provincial officials quickly agreed also on two basic principals:

1. Services to be provided by the province must be at least as good as those now provided by Ottawa.

2. Eskimo parents must be free to choose whether their children should be educated in English or French (after the initial instruction in Eskimo).

Discuss Reports

The report of the federal-provincial committees were translated into Eskimo and circulated to the settlements last month, the elected Eskimo delegates were asked to discuss the reports and forecasts in their areas, and to be ready for a major conference this month—probably leading to provincial take-over next April 1.

But when Chretien began to visit the Eskimo settlements on his way to the high arctic last week, it was apparent that the elaborate plans for consultation have not functioned.

Eskimo woman sewing in tent

At his first stop, Poste-de-la-Baleine (Great Whale), he talked through an interpreter with the Eskimo council led by Silas Cookie.

In the Eskimo meeting hut there were flags of Canada and of Quebec, and a compromise flag which the Eskimos designed and made for themselves out of seal skin—a fleur-de-lys embossed on a maple leaf.

The council had received the federal-provincial reports, but instead of regarding them as an agenda—as matters for discussion—thought of them as decisions already made without consent of the people.

Cookie enquired anxiously about Quebec separatism, and obviously had trouble with the idea that Rene Levesque, once a member of the government, now leads a separatist party.

Chretien told the council not to fear separatism because it would not happen, and he wrote off Levesque by explaining: "Four years ago he was a minister of the government. Two years ago he was a member of the opposition. Now he has his own party but he is still in the Legislature. In two years time, after the next election, he will not even be that."

Up the Hudson Bay coast at Povungnituk, about 150 Eskimos crowded into the Roman Catholic mission hall to hear the chairman of their council, Davidapik Nuvalinga, question Chretien.

"When the Eskimo people were starving, the federal government found them," said Nuvalinga. "We do not forget that." He was concerned the Quebec government might not be able to afford health services, might insist on French-language education, and might separate.

Unqualified Pledge

Chretien gave the meeting an unqualified pledge that Ottawa will sign no agreement which does not guarantee freedom of choice in language of education and at least maintenance of present services.

Federal experts said later that the tour had made it apparent that more efforts are necessary to explain to the Eskimos the federal and provincial policies and intentions.

But it now remains to be seen if the Quebec government is willing to postpone again the extension of its authority in the north.

A powerful argument is that even when it takes over responsibility for services, Quebec hopes Ottawa will continue to pay most of the $4-million a year bill.

The Sneaky Way to Sideburns

By RUSSELL BAKER

"My wife wants me to grow sideburns," writes a man who wishes not to be publicly identified. "Do you think I should and, if so, can you please tell me how to go about it?"

Dear Sir:

If you want to have women swooning in front of you every time you enter a room, you should by all means grow sideburns. Science has not yet discovered why a sideburn affects a woman so powerfully, but from Rudolph Valentino through Clark Gable to Gary Belisarius (who has the apartment next to mine), history is replete with examples of the sideburn's irresistible charm.

My neighbor Belisarius likes having women swoon when they enter his presence. Personally, I have found it extremely annoying.

Have you ever had a 250-pound charwoman come in to clean up your office at the end of the day and swoon dead away on the coffee table? If you have a taste for this sort of thing, however, and are well muscled, there is no reason for not humoring your wife's whim.

Here in the effete Northeast nearly everybody is now growing sideburns, despite J. Edgar Hoover's refusal to follow the fashion. And if Joe Namath has another good year they may even be socially acceptable in Idaho by Christmas time.

Now, how do you grow sideburns? The answer is: sneakily. You do not want the children or the girls in the office to call everyone's attention to it on the first day with a cry of, "Oh, he's growing sideburns!"

●

It is conceivable that after making the effort, you may discover you cannot grow sideburns. The failure will do nothing for your reputation.

Sideburns are composed of chin hair, sometimes called whiskers, which is quiet a different matter from head hair, sometimes called hair. On most men, head hair ceases growing at the point where the upper and lower jaws hinge together. This is called the frost line.

If you are lucky, whiskers take over at the exact point at which the head hair stops growing. Thus, by neglecting to shave one-eighth of an inch of whiskery expanse alongside each ear you will be on the sneaky way to a splendid set of sideburns.

Problems arise in cases where the uppermost edge of the whisker line lies well below the bottom edge of the hair line.

This condition, known as the hair gap, leaves you with a quarter-inch or so of skin on which nothing will grow and, if you insist upon plunging ahead with the sideburn you are going to look pretty silly.

You may, of course, let strands of head hair grow down in a rat tail beside the ear to screen the gap, but if you do you will have to fight your barber to prevent him from shearing it off and exposing you as a man with a comically high frost line. (Barbers for some reason despise sideburns on anyone but a barber; perhaps because they want to keep all the female swoonings for themselves.)

The safer course is to forget about sideburns and grow a goatee instead.

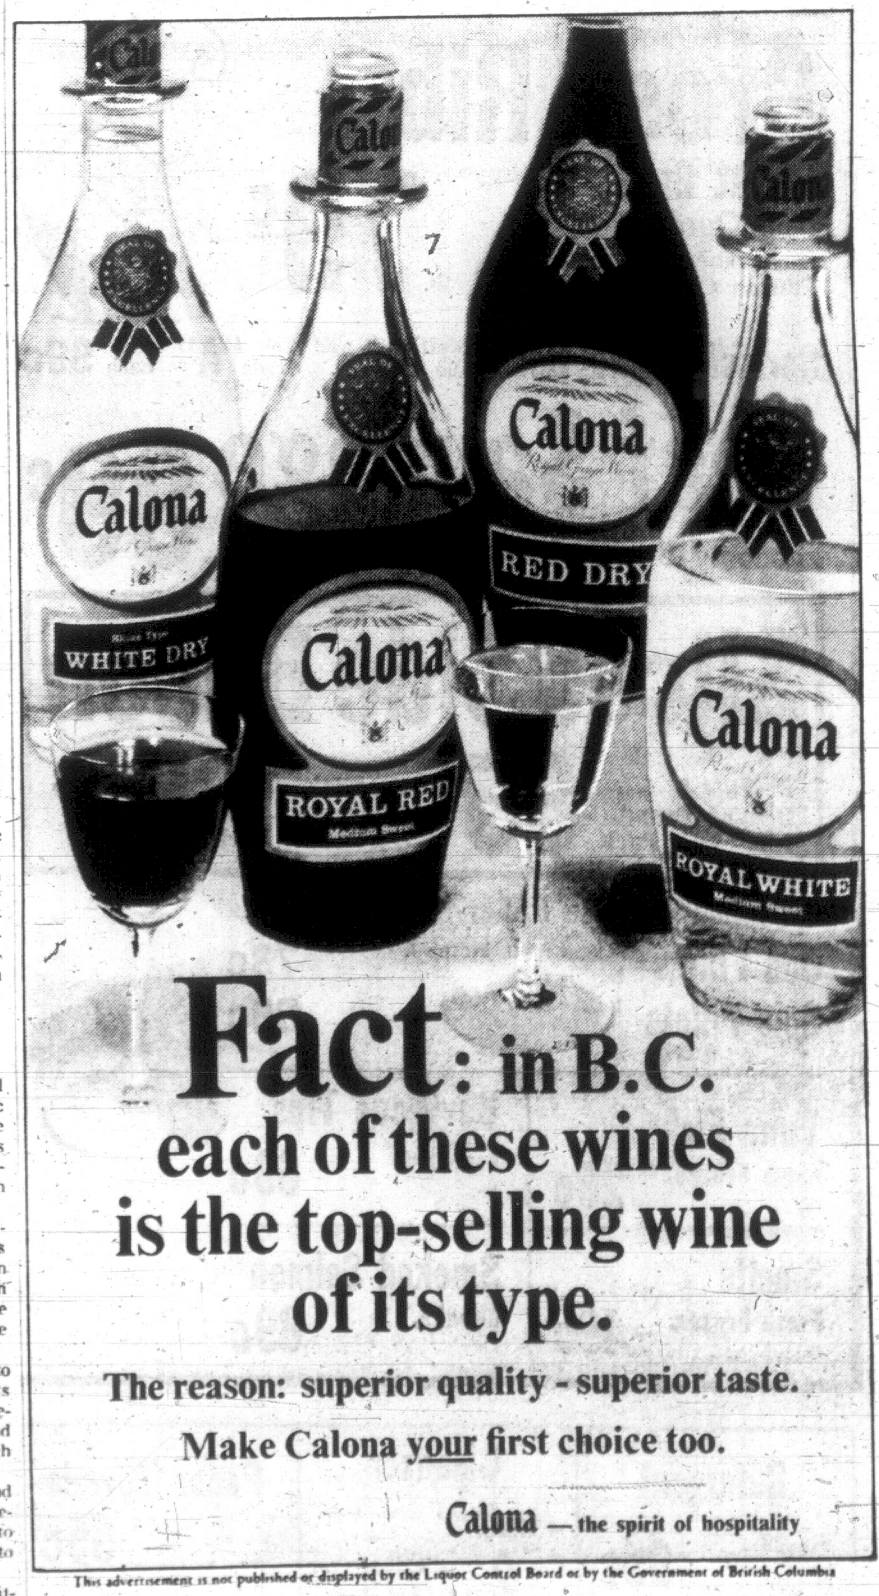

Assume, however, that your sideburns are perfectly normal and that they are coming down nicely and sneakily at the rate of an eighth of an inch a week. How far shall you let them descend?

●

As far as you like until they flare outwards toward the mustache zone and threaten to become a beard. A beard is an entirely different kettle of fish from sideburns. It commonly denotes—even among persons with flourishing sideburns—a person of dangerously unorthodox turn of mind, perhaps even—let us face it—a hippie!

The instant a sideburn threatens to turn into a beard, give it the scissors. Remember, a sideburn that knows its place is welcome in the best homes, and even nowadays in government, but America has no patience with uppity sideburns that want to take over the whole face.

Canada's Gold Holdings Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars rose to $2,594,200,000 at the end of August from $2,565,000,000 at the end of July, the finance department reported today.

The department also reported that Canada's net creditor position in the International Monetary Fund rose to $175,700,000 at the end of August from $170,700,000 at the end of July.

The official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars, in the Bank of Canada, the finance ministry, and the exchange fund account, are the resources the government has immediately available to enter the foreign exchange market for the purpose of moderating day-to-day exchange rate fluctuations.

The new credit in the IMF is the equivalent of additional foreign exchange reserves, which may be drawn from the fund at any time without any obligation to repay. It is in addition to Canada's subscription of $740,000,000, one quarter of which was paid in gold and can be drawn to defend the Canadian dollar in foreign exchange markets but would have to be repaid.

The official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars, quoted in terms of U.S. dollars, reached a recent peak of $2,864,500,000 at the end of January but declined in the first half of the year to the July level from which they recovered in August.

Officials said the addition of $5,000,000 to Canada's net creditor position in the IMF resulted from miscellaneous transactions by other countries with the fund.

Work-Week Average Takes Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturing activity slowed perceptibly in July when the average work-week fell below 40 hours and average weekly wages were reduced to $110.77 from $111.81 in June and $111.97 in May, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Average hours worked were trimmed to 39.9 a week in July from 40.2 in June and 40.4 in May. In July last year, 40 hours was the average work-week, and $107.23 the average weekly wage.

DBS reported that mining and milling wages fell in July to $132.51 from $132.82 in June and $134.51 in May, but average wages in construction rose sharply to $154.05 in July from $145.90 in June and $146.61 in May. In July last year, average wages in mining and milling were $126.44, and in construction $138.69.

Average hours worked were down to, or below, year-ago levels in all regions except the Atlantic provinces in July. Atlantic region activity eased to 41 hours a week from 41.6 in June, but was higher than 40.9 in May and 40.4 in July last year.

In Quebec, average weekly hours were down to 40.3 in July from 40.4 in June, 41.2 in May, and 40.4 in July last year.

Ontario average was down to 40.1 from 40.4 in June and 40.5 in May, matching 40.1 in July last year.

The prairie region recorded 39.6 average hours a week in July this year, the same as last year and in May, 1969. In June this year the figure was 39.7.

The British Columbia average was down to 37.3 in July this year from 37.5 in June and 37.8 in both May this year and July last year.

Rasminsky Named IMF Governor

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada has been appointed Canada's governor on the International Monetary Fund in place of Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

The announcement was made Friday and a spokesman for the finance department said it was in line with appointments being made by other countries.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Canada Cement

Canada Cement has reported net earnings of $3.09 million or $1.21 a share for the three months ended July 30 compared with $2,624 million or $1.17 a share for the same period in 1968.

The company predicted total net earnings per common share for the full year would increase over the $2.67 of last year because of the relative calm in the construction industry at the moment.

Ford

The Ford Motor Co., announced today it will drop its compact Falcon line.

The Falcon production line, Ford said, will be converted to the popular Maverick.

Ford also said, without further explanation, that early in 1970, the Falcon name will be on a new car, to be announced later. There has been speculation that Ford will introduce a car to compete directly with the Volkswagen.

Braisaman

Braisaman Petroleums Ltd. of Calgary had consolidated net earnings of $40,851 in the first half of 1969 compared with $197,577 in the same period of 1968.

Net earnings in the first half of 1968 included a gain of $190,421 on a sale of investments.

An interim report shows Braisamen had gross revenue of $77,000 in 1969, up $39,000, with oil and gas revenue up $3,000 to $25,000.

Braisaman has acreage off the east coast of Canada, in Indonesia, Alaska and Saskatchewan.

Chieftain

Chieftain Development Co. Ltd. of Edmonton announced a rise in gross revenue for the first half of 1969 to $2,018 million up 62 per cent over revenue for the first six months of 1968.

In its interim report to shareholders the company reported a new high for net income after expenditures of $276,000. The report showed the company's working capital at June 30, 1969, as $3.241 million, up 190 per cent from a year earlier.

Homestead

Canadian Homestead Oils Ltd. of Calgary had record consolidated net earnings of $623,711 or 13 cents a share in the year ended last May 31, compared with $565,854 or 15 cents a share in the previous year.

The company's annual report shows gross income amounted to $3.515 million, an increase of 19 per cent over the previous year. Oil and gas revenue was up 19 per cent to $2.106 million.

Cash flow from operations totalled $1.303 million an increase of 19 per cent over $1.097 million in 1968.

The lower earnings of a common share were due to a significant increase in shares outstanding to 4,182,370 from 3,521,900.

Production of crude oil and condensate rose to 2,008 net barrels daily from 1,681 and sales of natural gas averaged 4,850,000 cubic feet a day, a gain of 40 per cent.

Neonex Buys Trailer Firm

VANCOUVER (CP) — Neonex International Ltd. announced acquisition of Triple-E Manufacturing Inc. of Winkler, Man., subject to regulatory agencies.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Triple-E makes travel trailers for a network of dealers from Vancouver to Toronto. Projected sales for the year are $2 million.

Vancouver-based Neonex, Canada's largest consumer services and transportation company, predicts consolidated 1969 sales to top $150 million.

Freight Rates Given Boost

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Shipping freight rates for trade between Australia and the North American East Coast ports went up 7½ per cent Monday.

The increased rates apply to ships operating in the Australia-United States Atlantic-Gulf conference and the Australia-Canada East Coast, St. Lawrence and Lakes conference.

V. E. Clarke, chairman of both conferences, also announced that a dual-rate tariff and contract system will be put into effect immediately in the wool and general cargo teade.

$34 Million Development Near Kelowna

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett Tuesday revealed plans for a $34,000,000 shopping centre, commercial and residential project three miles from the centre of Kelowna.

Premier Bennett said the development of Orchard Park will include a 150-room hotel. It will cover 69 acres at the southwest intersection of highway 97 and Benvoulin Road. The plan provides for parking for 1,850 cars.

The premier said that besides the hotel, the development will include a regional shopping centre of more than 40 stores, four of which will be major department stores and supermarkets, a multi-family residential area made up of garden apartments, condominiums, town houses and high-rise structures and an office-commercial area.

Construction will start next spring.

The $13,000,000 shopping centre will be developed by Marathon Realty, a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments, Ltd.

The hotel, office buildings and residential areas will be developed by Okanagan Holdings of Kelowna. There has been no decision as to the operation of the hotel.

Next to the hotel there will be a twin theatre containing 1,500 seats.

The remaining 30 acres is to contain high rise and garden apartments.

Firm Will Develop Mobile Centres

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver-based firms of Neonex International Ltds. and Dawson Developments Ltd. today announced joint formation of a new company to develop communities of mobile homes in five Canadian provinces and two American states.

James A. Pattison, Neonex president, and Graham R. Dawson, chairman of Dawson Developments, said in a joint statement the new firm of Dawnex Properties Ltd. will operate in B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Washington and Oregon.

Neonex is entering the venture through a subsidiary, United Trailer Co. Ltd. of Calgary.

The new firm initially will develop residential accommodations in the B.C. centres of Kelowna, Vernon, Kamloops, Vancouver, Kitimat, Penticton and Victoria. Other locations will be Calgary, Edmonton and Regina. Dawnex's first U.S. project already is under way at Lincoln City, Ore.

Dawnex is expected to invest more than $20,000,000 in the first five years of developing mobile home communities, the statement said.

British Wildcat Striking Continues Despite Wilson

By JOHN LEBLANC

LONDON (CP) — While British trade unions mull over Prime Minister Wilson's latest strictures against wildcat strikes, wildcat strikes roll right along.

Wilson has been suffering embarrassment since his cabinet in June ditched a bold move—for a Labor government—to bring wildcat strikers under legal punishment. Instead, it turned the problem over to a cumbersome process invented by leaders of the 10,000,000-member Trades Union Congress.

This has not shown outstanding results up to now and at the moment big segments of British industry are tied up by the same kind of "unofficial" strikes by small groups that plagued the shaky economy before the government's June backdown in the face of arm-twisting by the muscular TUC.

Wilson got fairly tough before the TUC's annual conference at Portsmouth Monday and told the delegates:

"The fullest authority must be given by the trade union movement, by the constituent unions, to ensure that the damaging wildcat strikes of the kind we have seen before—and indeed since—the undertaking of June 18 must be dealt with."

GAVE PLEDGE

This undertaking was a pledge by TUC leaders that they would turn beat on individual unions to club members—small groups of whom have called damaging walkouts in free-and-easy fashion over local grievances—into getting back to work while responsible officers negotiate.

If the TUC leaders weren't tied up in convention, they could find plenty of work pulling down the current outbreak of outlaw strikes choking production in the steel and automobile industries.

One wildcat walkout of 228 men has made about 5,000 workers idle and halted production at the nationalized British Steel Corp's plant at Shotton, Flintshire.

The pay dispute by key workers has kicked back into larger groups and the corporation said it will decide today whether the remainder of the plant's 11,000 workers are to be laid off.

In the automobile industry, several thousand employees have been put out of work temporarily by strikes of small groups.

More than 2,000 men were idle at Standard Triumph's auto plant in Coventry because of a dispute at the firm's Liverpool plant. Production at Rootes, a branch of Chrysler, came to a halt because of a small strike in a Birmingham factory that cut off their supplies of engine blocks.

Another 2,300 car body workers at Pressed Steel in Birmingham were idle because of a strike by 130 workmen. And there were several other small ones with the same kind of repercussions.

Wilson, evidently referring to this kind of strike, told the Trades Union Congress that "there are vitally important cases which the undertaking was intended to cover, which must be dealt with speedily and effectively."

"The TUC has accepted this responsibility," he added. "There can be no backsliding now."

But his speech got a lukewarm reception. Vic Feather, the congress' acting general secretary, commented in a back-hander that it was "none the worse for not having any new thinking in it." Feather is the man who blackjacked the cabinet into dropping the anti-wildcat law.

Archbishop's New Home 'Against Vows'

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed purchase of a new $130,000 residence for the Roman Catholic archbishop here has stirred some opposition on grounds that it could go against the virtues of poverty and charity.

Several members of the executive of the diocesan synod of priests have expressed disapproval of the purchase of a big house overlooking Dow's Lake in one of Ottawa's best residential sections. The present 120-year-old residence and chancery is on midtown St. Patrick St.

Rev. Jacques Faucher of the diocese said in an interview the proposed Lakeview Terrace residence is "somewhat elegant."

"We feel in any residence of the bishop in the community there has to be some sign of a true disciple of Christ. A disciple should show the virtues of poverty and charity."

At the $130,000 price tag, he said, "there is bound to be some public reaction."

The archbishop, Most Rev. Joseph Aurele Plourde, sent a letter last week to all priests in the diocese outlining reasons for the purchase of the Lakeview Terrace home.

He noted the present residence is in a noisy, midtown area and is "not conducive to work and reflection." In three weeks at a cottage this summer, he wrote, he had done "more work than would ever had been done in two months at the present residence."

A residence in the capital entailed an obligation not found elsewhere, the letter said.

Rangeland Abounds In North

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta specialist says there are 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 acres of undeveloped potential rangeland in Western Canada north of 52 degrees latitude.

The 52nd parallel runs approximately through Red Deer, Alta., Saskatoon and Swan River, Man.

Dr. H. G. Vaartnou of the Alberta department of agriculture says the key to development of this potential range for cattle and other livestock production could be the cultivation of native northern grasses, already adapted to northern growing conditions.

Most grasses planted in the northwestern part of Canada now, he says, are non-native species which are good for short-term hay or pasture land but lack the longevity required for permanent rangeland.

Dr. Vaartnou says northern grasses that would be suitable for permanent ranges include slender wheatgrass, meadow foxtail, Kentucky bluegrass, rough fescue, hairy wild rye and red canary grass.

He says a number of these species are resistant to snow moulds and fungus diseases, both prevalent in northern areas.

Memory Enhancing Pill Made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University students soon will be able to take a memory pill to help them retain things like history dates and math equations, Dr. Wendell Jolley, professor of chemistry at Loma Linda University, said Tuesday.

He presented the memory-enhancing pill called Ribaminol to a news conference Tuesday.

The International Chemical and Nuclear Corp. of Newport Beach, Calif., said the pill will be produced and distributed in Mexico in November, and authority for marketing the drug in the United States has been sought.

The firm said the drug, which stimulates protein synthesis in the brain, was developed during the last five years at the cost of several million dollars.

Slide Kills 16

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters)—Sixteen persons died in a landslide following heavy rains in the town of Maquibil de San Miguel near the Mexican border, Guatemalan police reported Tuesday.

Saanich Force to Add Four More Constables

Saanich council agreed Tuesday night to hire four new police constables, starting in the last quarter of 1969.

The proposal of the Saanich police commission was agreed to unanimously, although Ald. William Noel said he would have preferred current wage negotiations settled first.

Mayor Hugh Curtis, who is chairman of the police commission, said contingency funds were available to cover the unbudgeted hirings.

He pointed out that original requests for new men were cut down to four in the provisional budget, and this was then wiped out, leaving the police force for 1969 at its 1968 strength. (The same happened with the fire department.)

But on the basis of the first six months' experience this year, "it's simple—we need more men. The commission has reviewed the remarkable increase in the activity of the department."

No figures were given for the cost of hiring four constables or the increased activity of the police force.

REGIONAL MOVE

Bringing garbage disposal on southern Vancouver Island under one authority—the Capital Regional District—moved a step closer as council set out its opinions for district executive director, William Long.

Council agreed the area involved should be all municipalities plus the unorganized areas, excepting Sooke and the Gulf Islands. It went along with the regional district holding exclusive control on disposal plus the power to "treat garbage in a nuisance-free fashion."

DUPLEX ISSUE

Long explained that the regional district has given instructions for draft supplementary letters patent to be drawn up. This would then go to member municipalities and the unorganized areas before the additional responsibility could be taken on.

Council wrestled again with the duplex issue, and finally sent the latest recommendations of the lands and planning committee back to the committee.

The recommendations, affecting a section of Gordon Head where duplexes now are permitted, would have the effect of limiting their numbers by insisting on 100 foot frontages, 10,000 square feet lots and connection to a sewer.

"We are hopelessly bogged down once again," said Mayor Curtis, as old arguments were hashed out.

Ald. Leslie Passmore called the recommendations discriminatory, Ald. Alan Newberry—chairman of the lands and planning committee—said any zoning is discriminatory, and urged a vote on the recommendations.

Suddenly, a few minutes later, he moved they be referred back to committee and this was agreed to.

NO RESISTANCE SEEN FOR TAX REFORMS

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Benson said today "good progress" is being made on preparation of the white paper on government tax reform policy with no "resistance" in cabinet.

He expects it will be ready to be made public about the end of October.

"It's just a mater of getting the cabinet together to make decisions on several items now approved and ready for presentation to the cabinet.

"After all, it's been the holiday period but I expect the cabinet will resume regular sessions again next week," he said.

WAITING THEIR TURN to be unloaded, trollers and skippers rest alongside Ogden Point jetties. Packing company staffers were kept busy as the unusually high number of fishing boats came in to unload their catches. Many of the skippers said they had forsaken salmon fishing for tuna because a change in ocean conditions had brought the warm current closer than usual to shore. Fisheries officials agreed the warm current which the tuna needs (with temperatures of more than 60 degrees) had moved much further north than usual. At left, troller fisherman Thomas Russell relaxes as packing company worker George Makow sends albacore tuna from Russell's Gail Kay on its journey over the conveyor belt. (Times Photos by Irving Strickland)

Salmon-Hungry Fleet Hits Tuna Bonanza

BERG
. . . heading back

Ogden Point looked like a watery version of the corner of Douglas and Yates this morning as an armada of trollers unloaded.

A packing company official said the invasion is the result of a tuna catch.

"Many of these boats normally call in at Vancouver but with the tuna run they're stopping off here first."

He estimated that the 20-odd boats would unload about 100,000 pounds before 5 p.m. today.

Although most of the boats had holds filled with tuna, others were loaded with salmon. One had 7,000 pounds of salmon aboard.

Most of the troller fishermen said they were catching tuna to make up for poor salmon catches.

Thomas Russell of Campbell River, with 20 years commercial fishing to his credit, said he'd fished tuna for the last three years.

• • •

"We're now getting tuna runs like those off California and Oregon 15 years ago. The reason is that the "blue water" warm current is getting closer to the shore as ocean conditions change."

In from a 10-day trip, he said he filled his holds 50 miles off Tofino. He plans two more trips before the season ends.

Brian Berg and Norm Egan of Nanaimo were less fortunate. Out a week, gale-force winds forced them to abandon fishing after four days. They had "about three tons" of tuna aboard their 42-foot Western Standard.

Berg said after repairs he would make another trip. During the storm Western Standard lost two stabilizers and broke rigging and stays.

• • •

Berg estimated that about half the troller fleet is currently fishing tuna.

Berg figured he'd call it quits after the next trip because the equinox has started and that means bigger and more unpredictable gales."

An official estimated that $1 million dollars of tuna was landed at Ogden Point last year.

Forecasts are for a bigger catch this year.

M. P. Houghton, chief of the fisheries conservation and protection branch in Vancouver, explained:

"The warm current that often stays around California and Oregon has moved further north this year along our coast. When this happens our fishermen can expect to get catches similiar to those further south."

He added that the season would last only a few weeks.

SEARCH FOR MEN PRESSED

The search for two men missing off this west coast Vancouver Island community since Monday afternoon resumed at dawn today.

An RCMP spokesman said an RCMP vessel and a Department of Transport helicopter searched the area all Tuesday. The two men, whose identities have not been released, are from the Victoria area.

The spokesman said a 12-foot aluminum skiff was found in the area Tuesday afternoon, "but there was nothing in it to give us any indication of what might have happened."

Loffmark To Meet Wallace

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today he wants to meet the new Oak Bay MLA, Dr. G. Scott Wallace, — and is ready to listen to the physician's often critical views on government health policies.

Loffmark was attempting to arrange the meeting today.

He said he welcomes the outspoken views Wallace put forward during his successful campaign as Social Credit candidate in Oak Bay.

"I think he is competent and sincere and these are the only tests that really matter," said Loffmark.

SEWAGE TALK

The health minister particularly wants to discuss Wallace's suggestions for sewage treatment and planning for hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria Regional District.

"Dr. Wallace is very close to the operational side of hospitals and he will be a most welcome source of advice to me in my work with the Capital Regional Hospital District."

"I'm sure he enjoys the confidence of the medical profession."

Loffmark said the "whole strength of a political party depends on its willingness and ability to admit new members to its council and to listen to what they are saying."

VOTE SOON

He said he hopes the question of acute care hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria area will be put to the people soon.

There had been "healthy competition" among hospitals for new facilities.

Wallace, an Oak Bay alderman, met council Tuesday and asked for a motion on whether he should resign or wait until the municipal term ends in December. Council unanimously voted in favor of his continuing as an alderman.

Region Facing Crisis As 3 Mayors Retiring

By JIM HUME

The retirement of three Greater Victoria mayors in December may force the Regional District and the Regional Hospital District into a year of crisis.

North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming, vice-chairman of both boards, made the statement this morning after being informed of the three-fold retirement plans.

Stepping down this year are Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt; Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria and Mayor Fred Hawes, Oak Bay.

All hold key positions on the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board.

Bryant announced his retirement from civic politics this morning.

Stephen has repeatedly stated since his election in 1966 that he would retire in 1969.

Hawes, this morning, says "it was a little early to say, but at this point the answer is no. I shall not be seeking re-election."

The retirements, says Cumming, "will leave the regional district government flying high in the air.

'MUCH HARDER'

"The loss of Bryant as chairman of finance in a crucial year is going to make it very difficult for a newcomer to take over.

"Next year was going to be a tough year anyway, with a huge acute-care-bed hospital referendum scheduled to go to the people in the late spring. It will be that much harder now."

Estimated cost of the referendum has been set at between $40 and $50 million.

"I don't know what the answer is," Cumming added. "But the retirement of three key members of two regional district boards is going to leave some big holes to fill.

Cumming, vice-chairman of both regional boards, said he wouldn't mind stepping out of the political arena himself.

"But there are too many vital things to be done, too many details to tidy up," he said. "I feel obliged to run again, to stay in office if the people permit me, so that the objectives we have worked so hard for during the past four or five years can be cleared up."

Bryant's decision to call it quits will bring to an end close to 20 years of service by the Bryant family in Esquimalt.

James "Jimmy" Bryant, the mayor's father, served on council for 16 consecutive years, his last year on council with his son as mayor.

Mayor Bryant is concluding his fourth year in office.

THIRD YEAR

Stephen is completing his third year. He took office in 1966 following the death of Mayor A. W. Toone. He said then, he intended to hold office for no more than two terms.

Hawes was a councillor in Oak Bay before being elected mayor in 1967 to succeed Allan Cox.

With three mayors stepping down, Mayor Hugh Curtis in Saanich remains to seek re-election in the winter polls.

Curtis, scheduled to move from first vice-president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to president in September, has stated that he will definitely seek another term in office.

LAW PRACTICE

Bryant said his retirement, at least on a temporary basis, was brought about by the necessity to spend more time on his law practice.

In addition to serving as the mayor of Esquimalt Bryant was chairman of the regional district finance committee and of the executive committee for the regional hospital district.

Stephen has been chairman of the regional district board and the regional hospital district board since January. He succeeded Curtis to that office.

Hawes is chairman of the sewage and garbage disposal committee for the district government.

In addition to the critical hospital issues facing the regional government in 1970, the retirement of the three mayors could bring to a head the always present, but never faced, differences between urban and rural representatives on the board.

URBAN CONTROL

Since its inception, the chairman and key committee members have been from the urban municipalities.

With three new mayors taking office, all newcomers to regional government ways, the question is already being posed: "Who will succeed Stephen as chairman of the two main boards?"

Curtis would be the logical choice, say insiders, but he has already served a three-year stint and, with the added duties as president of the UBCM, would have difficulty in finding time for the added burdens of office.

SAANICH MAN CHARGED IN CAR DEATH

A 21-year-old Saanich man was charged with criminal negligence Tuesday in Princeton court after a traffic death Monday near the interior British Columbia community.

Charged was Marlin Stanley Hurst, 3281 Shelley. He was remanded to Sept. 24.

The accident, which occurred on the southern Trans-Canada Highway 17 miles west of Princeton, killed 67-year-old Philip Lindeman of Chilliwack.

Record Price For Simcoes

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments in James Bay have been sold for $4,250,000 to Amon Investments, a Vancouver company.

Wall and Redekop Realty of Vancouver, which handled the transaction, said it is the largest apartment sale through a real estate broker in British Columbia. Seller was Norol Developments of Vancouver.

The same real estate company recently handled the $2,750,000 sale of the Princess Patricia apartments.

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments are at 440 and 450 Simcoe Street.

The twin 13-storey towers contain 293 suites and parking for 220 cars. Rents range from $120 to $162 a month for one-bedroom suites and from $160 to $205 a month for two-bedroom suites.

When they were built in 1964 and 1965, construction cost estimated in the building permits was a total of $2.4 million.

SEVEN FLAGS DISAPPEAR

City police are investigating theft of seven flags on Yates Street.

They were stolen from the north side canopy over the sidewalk in the 700 block.

Belonging to the block's merchants, they included Canadian, British Columbia and U.S flags, worth $270. The poles were left behind.

Crash Injures Five

Five persons were injured when a car smashed into a guard ramp and plunged into Goldstream early this morning.

All are reported to be in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Names of passengers and driver are being withheld until next-of-kin have been contacted by RCMP.

Police said the accident occurred at 1 a.m. at "suicide corner" at the bottom of the Malahat near the Goldstream Park entrance.

Special Lectures to Analyze Future of B.C.'s Universities

In an effort to present authoritative opinion on the future of universities in this community and the rest of the province, the University Extension Association of Victoria has scheduled special speakers for a series of four lectures at the beginning of its 46th season opening Sept. 15.

Dr. S. N. F. Chant, author of the report which bears his name, will lead off.

As vice-chairman and director of research for the Academic Board for Higher Education in B.C. he brings particular, up-to-date knowledge and wide experience to his treatment of The Future of Higher Education in British Columbia.

He will be followed, Oct. 6, by Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, who will discuss The University of Victoria and the Municipality in terms of community and local relationships.

Dr. Bruce Partridge, president of the University of Victoria, will speak Oct. 27 on that institution's position today and prospects for the future, and on Nov. 17. Frederick Edell, assistant professor of theatre at Uvic, will speak on The University Ferment.

INDIAN SPEAKER

At the completion of the special series, George Clutesi, author and artist, will close the first half of the season Dec. 1 with an address on The Indian —Past, Present and Future.

The program will be resumed Janex 12, with Dr. Atholl Sutherland Brown speaking on Continental Drift—A View from the Leading Edge of a Raft.

Colin Graham, director of the Victoria Art Gallery, will follow Jan. 12, with Dr. Atholl Victoria. Rev. Richard F. Sherburne, University of Washington, will speak Feb. 9 on Buddhist Kingdoms of the High Himalaya—Their Culture and Religion and on Feb. 23, Dr. William Rodney, professor of history at Royal Roads, will speak on Kootenai Brown and Colorful B.C.

The season will close March 23 with Dr. David Suzuki, department of zoology, UBC, discussing Genetics and the Responsibility of Science.

Membership in the association may be taken out before the meetings on Monday evenings in Room 144 MacLaurin Building, University of Victoria. All lectures, starting at 8:15, are open to the public.

OAK BAY OKAYS APARTMENTS

'High-Rise Ghetto' Feared

Construction approval of an 188-suite and a 50-suite apartment building was given by Oak Bay council after a 90-minute public hearing Tuesday.

The larger building will be on the site of the former city-owned Old Men's Home at Cadboro Bay and Bowker. The other will be built at the east corner of Mitchell and Granite. Both are three storeys plus basement.

Several residents objected to the projects.

Ian Parker, 2146 Windsor, described Oak Bay as a potential "high-rise ghetto."

The protesters angered Ald. G. Scott Wallace, who said he was "not entirely impressed with public hearings." He said those who attended were often motivated by selfish reasons.

★ ★ ★

"When I was fighting tooth and nail on high-rise development on Beach Drive only people on Deal Street turned out. Most of the people sat on the sidelines."

He said residents should emulate councillors who tried to envision the whole problem of Oak Bay, which involves development of land for its best purposes, holding the tax line, and preservation of park areas.

Don McAdam, developer of the Cadboro Bay Road project, said that apartment development upgraded values of single-dwelling homes in the vicinity.

"Property values go up and the houses become future candidates for apartment sites."

Gorde Hunter, 3557 Kelsey Place, asked if apartment construction wasn't the first step for home-owners in the surrounding area being pressured into selling at inflated prices.

Another zoning bylaw, permitting the extension of Saunders and Hitchman Ltd., facilities on Foul Bay was stalled. For more than a year residents on Florence Street have complained the garage employees block the street with cars throughout the working day.

The matter was referred back to the streets and traffic committee for more study.

Bill WALKER

Some people have said that since you are 28 years of age, you are slowing down; that because you have an Olympic berth behind you, the motivation for the future is gone; that because earlier this year you lost a couple of races to a couple of youngsters, the road ahead is all downhill.

How about it, Mrs. Irene Piotrowski, queen of Canadian track, what do you say?

This was the question of import at the weekend Canadian Track and Field Association championships in Centennial Stadium.

And I think it was well answered with performance — two gold medal victories. But really, how about it Irene? Are the kids giving you a bad time?

"No, not really," said the vibrant Vancouver teacher.

"Oh, they stand back and smile, a knowing smile, after I'm beaten, but they don't rub it in."

Irene was referring to her double loss in the Canada Games at Halifax, first to Stephanie Berto in the 100 metres and then to both Stephanie and Anne Langdale, who finished first, in the 200 metres.

"Yes, Stephanie has been beating me all season," Irene confessed, "until now."

The "until now," is the crux of the matter in Canadian track, for this was the Canadian championship and Irene, after all, was champion and record holder in both the 100 and 200 metres and defending honors hard won.

"Oh sure," she laughed, "It gave me a lot of satisfaction to beat them here, but I was probably at the best I've been since Mexico."

"Probably because I'm lighter now, (134) than I was earlier in the year," she added, "and I think that if I had a good start in the 100 I might have hit an 11.3."

As it was Irene ran an 11.6 for the 100 metres and she came driving from behind to nip Berto at the tape in a thrilling finish after that lagging start.

Then, the next day came the 200, and if age was going to bow to youth, this might be it.

But no, not to Irene. "I really thought I could do it," she said. "And I felt good winning, which always means a lot."

It means to most people that Irene had a little left in reserve, that's how far she had come back from her two setbacks in Halifax, and it also meant that she had knocked Victoria's Anne Langdale right off the Pan Pacific Team.

But that's what champions are made of, and Irene has proven her mettle, and to emphasize it, she later went out and ran legs on both the 4 x 100 relay and the 4 x 400 relay.

And do you know what she said, "if I hadn't loafed the first 100 of the quarter, I think I could have hit 55.5 seconds, and that would have been something."

Was she weary from the three events in one day?

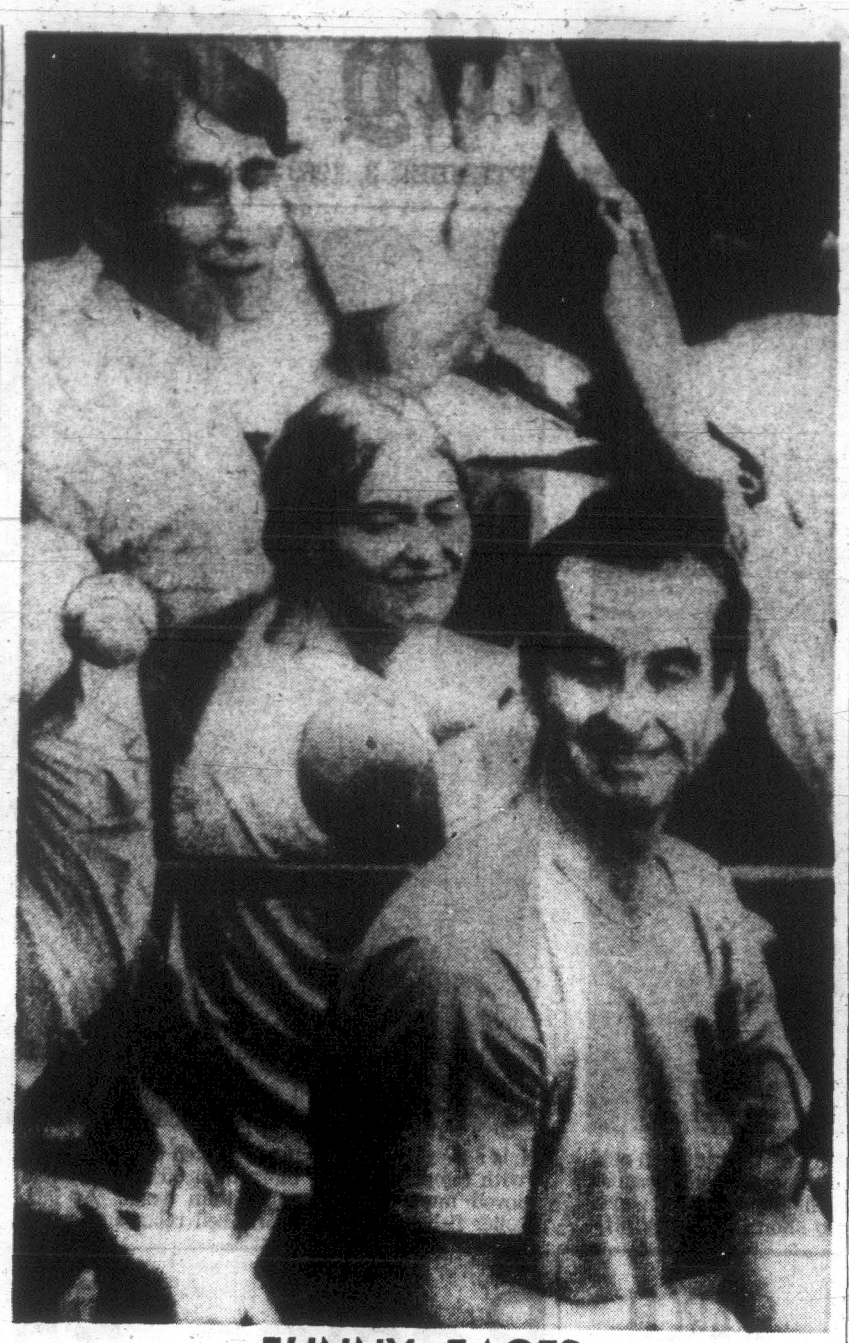

"No, I feel surprisingly good," she said.

And when reminded that the interviewer earlier had picked her for no better than second in the sprints, she answered with a knowing smile and a laugh!

"How about that, I was looking for you."

And so now it is almost all the way back again for Queen Irene with an excellent opportunity to add more glory at Tokyo later this month, something to go with other international stature, which besides that Olympic team berth at Mexico, includes a silver medal at the Commonwealth Games and a bronze in the 100 at at the Pan-Am games in 1966.

Yes, Irene, some people may have thought otherwise earlier this season, but I think they all agree now that, win or lose at the Pan-Pacific Games, you are "some people" yourself.

Jenkins Marks Up 19th Win for Cubs

Dodgers' Willie Davis Extends Hitting Streak to 30 Straight

By The Canadian Press

Fergie's at it again.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., who won 20 games for Chicago Cubs in 1967 and 1968, scored his 19th victory of 1969 Tuesday night as the Cubs roared over Cincinnati Reds 8-2.

That victory, combined with an earlier 5-4 win in the first part of a doubleheader extended the Cubs' lead to five games in the National League's eastern division over New York Mets who beat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4 Tuesday.

The twin defeats left the Reds 1½ games behind first-place San Francisco Giants and a half game back of Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Houston Astros nipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 11 innings and Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 2-0 in the only other scheduled action Tuesday.

Oscar Gamble, Glenn Beckert and Don Kessinger keyed Chicago's second victory—Jenkins' 19th against 11 defeats. Gamble singled in a run and tripled in two more, Beckert produced two more with a pair of singles and Kessinger drove in two with his fourth homer and a double.

Los Angeles' Willie Davis broke the Dodger record for a hitting streak set by Zack Wheat and became the first in the majors to hit in 30 straight games since Stan Musial in 1950. But he struck out with two out and men on first and third in the ninth after the Dodgers had scored three times to make it 5-4.

Davis kept his streak alive by doubling in the sixth. He then scored the first Los Angeles run.

Clendenon's Clouts Power Mets

New York built up its five-run lead when Donn Clendenon hit his 10th and 11th homers, Ron Swoboda cracked a two-run double and Clendenon singled, stole second and scored on Ken Boswell's eighth-inning single.

St. Louis built up a 6-1 lead before Houston came back on Joe Morgan's three-run homer, Doug Rader's solo shot and Jesus Alou's seventh-inning RBI double.

The Astros then won it in the 11th when John Edwards raced home from third on Alou's infield hit. The victory left Houston five games back of San Francisco.

Rookie Billy Champion pitched a three-hitter and was backed by Richie Allen's run-scoring single and Cookie Rojas' sacrifice fly in Philadelphia's victory over San Diego.

Baltimore Orioles have made a mockery of the American League Eastern race for the last two months with their big lead and fans looked to the west for excitement.

That has changed, however, as Minnesota Twins now are turning the Western battle into a runaway too.

The Twins clubbed Cleveland Indians and hard-luck Luis Tiant 5-2 Tuesday night for their third straight victory, their sixth in seven games and ninth in 11 games.

Minnesota Moves Six Games Up

That triumph, combined with Oakland Athletics' rainout at Boston, widened the Twins' lead to six games over the Athletics with just a month left in the season.

The Twins have held first since July 5, but Oakland was only two games off the pace a week ago. However, Oakland has lost six of its last seven games during the Twins string of successes.

In other American League activity Tuesday, Chicago White Sox mauled Baltimore and Dave McNally 10-3, Kansas City Royals whipped Detroit Tigers 6-2, New York Yankees nipped Seattle Pilots 5-4 in 15 innings and Washington Senators took a doubleheader from California Angels 2-0 and 3-2.

Tiant, who won 21 games last year, had checked the Twins on three hits in a 1-1 tie in the fifth, when Minnesota exploded for two runs and then drove him from the mound in the sixth with two more. It was Tiant's 18th loss and the seventh straight for the Indians.

Ted Uhlaender drove in one of Minnesota's sixth-inning counters with a single that extended his hitting streak to 15 games.

McNally, who won his first 15 games, suffered his sixth loss in his last eight decisions as the White Sox erupted for nine runs in the sixth inning to top Baltimore for the first time this year in their last meeting of the season.

Obstruction Call Topples Pilots

Boog Powell homered for the Orioles, his 35th of the year.

Kansas City handed World Series hero Mickey Lolich his eighth loss in 25 decisions even though Tom Tresh and Jim Nortrup hit consecutive homers off winner Roger Nelson in the fourth.

Jerry Kenney's RBI single in the 15th gave the Yankees their victory over Seattle, after an unusual obstruction play kept the New Yorkers alive in the 14th inning.

Pilot pinch-ithter Merritt Ranew had lashed an RBI single with two out in the 14th inning to give Seattle a 4-3 lead. But, in the bottom of the inning, Horace Clarke singled, stole second and moved to third on a groundout.

When Roy White smacked an infield grounder, Clarke was trapped in a rundown between third and the plate. Clarke eventually was caught but was declared safe and allowed to score when third base umpire Larry Barnett ruled that pitcher Gene Brabender had obstructed Clark's path.

Bobby Murcer hit his 22nd homer for the Yanks in the sixth, a solo blast.

Coffey Eyes Record

TORONTO (CP) — End Tommy Joe Coffey, who has averaged 14 points a game for the last five games, could drop three points off his average and still fracture the Canadian Football League all-time scoring record this year.

Official CFL statistics, released Tuesday night, showed that in the last week the big Hamilton Tiger-Cats pass-catcher and kicker had leaped into second place in career scoring.

Jackie Parker, former Edmonton Eskimos backfield great and now a coach with British Columbia Lions, holds the career record of 750 points.

Coffey has 656 with nine games left in the Estern Conference season.

So far, Coffey is the leading scorer in Canada this year, ahead of Don Sutherin of Ottawa Rough Riders by 16 points. Last year, Sutherin beat Coffey 112 points to 111 for the EFC scoring title.

TRADED BY ESKIMOS

Coffey broke into Canadian football in 1959 with Edmonton and quit to go into business in Vancouver in 1961.

The life of a merchant prince palled and he returned to Edmonton in 1962.

Coffey was with the Esks until 1967 when he was traded to Hamilton.

Coffey has 502 career pass receptions, tops in the country. Only three receivers in the National Football League hit that plateau—Ray Berry, Bob Mitchell and Bill Howton.

The CFL statistics show Vic Washington of Ottawa leading the rushers with 402 yards and a 7.1 average.

ABENDSCHAN LEADS

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders with eight points against B.C. Lions Monday has boosted his point total in the Western Conference to 52.

Larry Robinson of Calgary is second with 33 points followed by Terry Swarn of Edmonton with 30 points.

In rushing, Jim Evenson of British Columbia leads with a 4.8-yard average in 95 carries for 455 yards. He is followed by Saskatchewan's George Reed with a 4.5-yard average and 365 yards in 79 carries.

Gaudaur Has Praise For Rules-Breakers

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said today he will not fine coaches Leo Cahill and Bob Gibson of Toronto Argonauts following the Aug. 23 altercation in Vancouver.

In fact, Gaudaur had kind words for both coaches who ran onto the field in violation of CFL rules when Toronto players became involved in a brawl near the British Columbia Lions' bench.

"Yes, it was against the rules," Gaudaur said.

"But you have to be sensible. In the event of a mob scene such as this, I would hope the coaches would intervene. They, after all, are the only ones who can regain control of their players and prevent a bad situation from getting worse.

"This is what Cahill and Gibson seemed to have in mind. I was at that game and that is my opinion. The idea is that we don't want coaches inciting trouble or aggravating trouble by running onto the field where they don't belong."

Coaches are restricted to an area behind the sideline and extending no further than five yards beyond either end of the players' bench.

"Some coaches are getting into the habit of going far outside the restraining area," Gaudaur said. "We may be forced to remind them."

Frampton Dominates Silverware Collection

Century Inn's Don Frampton carried off a major share of the silverware as the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League named its all-star team and trophy winners.

Frampton filled one of the outfield spots in the all-star squad, captured the home-run trophy with a season-total of 11 and was voted the most-valuable-player.

First-baseman Gord Rutherford was the only other Century Inn player to make the team, which included four Denford Electric players.

Denfords were represented by pitcher Barry Wilkin, second-baseman Scott Sinclair, shortstop Brian Grexton and outfielder Pete Isaacson.

LAKERS PLACE THREE

League-champion Lake Cowichan was represented by three players — Ken Berry, voted the league's outstanding pitcher, third-baseman Roman Krakowiec, the league-leading batter with a .429 average, and catcher Lou Shreenan.

Colwood Inn outfielder Ron Griffis completed the team which was coached by Cliff Bates and managed by Gordie Wilkins, both of Denford.

Runners-up were Pete Songhurst, Bruce Smith and Ray Mellings of Colwood; Paul Morrison and Wayne Forland of Denfords; Art Watson and Jim Robertson of Cowichan; John Paul of Century; Jim Kennedy of Sooke Hotel and Bob Harris of CFB Combos.

SOCCER WORKOUTS

Lake Hill Soccer Association's entry in the Victoria and District League's third division is holding practice sessions every Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Reynolds Road Park.

NAMATH SELLS HIS INTEREST IN NIGHTSPOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback star of New York Jets, has officially sold his share of Bachelors III, an East Side nightspot, to Ray Abruzese, spokesman for pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday.

It was his refusal to sell in June that led to Namath's brief, stormy retirement.

Leos to Try Charlie Brown

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League today announced they will give a five-day try-out to import defensive-back Charlie Brown.

The University of Missouri graduate was earlier released from the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League. Brown, 23, is five feet 10 inches and was a college all-star.

Elsewhere in the WFC, Larry Slagle, a second-year guard with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, will be out of action with strained knee ligaments for three weeks. Bombers also stated that Tommy Grant, a veteran split end, has a broken nose and was termed a doubtful starter for Saturday's game against B.C.

Calgary Stampeders are taking steps to strengthen their injury-riddled defensive unit.

Jeff Steinberger, a defensive end tackle from Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, joined the club Tuesday for a five-day trial. Two or three other recruits are scheduled to arrive later this week.

Tennis Players Unite

From the world of sport, briefly, these are some of the names, faces and places in the news:

Australian tennis star John Newcombe says about 80 of the world's leading players have agreed to formation of a tennis players' association which will operate much in th fashion of the Professional Golfers' Association . . . Two former professional athletes have died violently in recent days . . . Tim McKeithan, 60, who played baseball for the old Philadelphia Athletics, was shot to death in Forest City, N.C., and a 53-year-old man has been charged with murder . . . Benny MacDonell, 39, who played football for Ottawa and Saskatchewan, died at his home Tuesday . . . police said the death was accidental but refused to give details . . . Professional Bob Breen of Toronto dropped a birdie putt on the first extra hole to defeat Vancouver's Bobby Cox for top honors in the 10th annual Moncton Open golf tournament . . .

British Columbia's No. 1 team has captured the Canadian field hockey championship by finishing with five wins and a draw in the three-day tournament at Vancouver . . . Controversial Olympic sprinter Tommie Smith, trying out as a wide end, has been released by Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League . . . Argentine-bred Figonero, high-weighted at 124 pounds, has been credited with a world record after winning the Del Mar Handicap in California . . . The four-year-old ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:46 1-5 to shave a fifth of a second off the old mark . . . Bud Brush, Colorado King, Quicken Tree and Olde Bob Bowers shared the former record.

Apologetic Pepitone Back in Yank Lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Pepitone, saying he's $4,800 in debt and living on $50 a week, has apologized to New York Yankees and returned to the American League baseball team.

The controversial first baseman met with manager Ralph Houk and then talked to reporters.

"I went against the club rules, he said. "I deserved to be fined. It was entirely justified."

Last Wednesday Pepitone, who was not playing, left the team's dugout during the fifth inning, dressed and left the stadium. He was called into Houk's office Friday and told he was being fined. He then left the Stadium without permission and was put on indefinite suspension and fined $500.

"I do bave financial trouble," Pepitone said. "But it is mostly cleared up. It is not true that my money problems have anything to do with loan sharks and I'm not involved with the Mafia.

"Right now," I'm $4,800 in debt. I don't think that's an awful lot for a fellow making $40,000 a year. The last three years I've been living on $50 a week which my lawyer gives to me, and the rest has been used to pay off debts.

Wanderers clash with Irish visitors in international rugby exhibition at 8 in Royal Athletic Park. Scholars lost first game of Canadian tour, 13-3 to Calgary, then won next two 19-3 and 9-6 over James Bay and Cowichan-Nanaimo squads, respectively.

Homers Power Eugene Squad

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Home runs by Larry Bowa and Bill Lis sparked the Eugene Emeralds to a 6-1 Pacific Coast League playoff victory over Tacoma Tuesday night.

Back-to-back doubles in the ninth inning by Jim Dunegan and Randy Bobb gave Tacoma its only run of the game.

Winning pitcher Gary Wagner struck out five and walked two. Every man on the Eugene lineup hit safely at least once.

Hockey Honors Taken by Navy

Hardy Crowe scored the goal which gave Navy the Summer Hockey League playoff championship Sunday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The second-minute goal during a sudden-death overtime period brought Navy a 10-9 victory in the two-game, total-goal series against Flyers.

Downed 5-4 in the opening game, Flyers forced overtime when Ross Carnahan scored at 19:25 of the third period, nine seconds after a goal by Frank Seddon appeared to sew it up for Sailors.

Kershaw Third In Monroe Race

MONROE, Wash. — Victoria drivers Gary Kershaw and Roy Haslam piloted their super-stocks to third and fifth-place finishes, respectively, during the 50-lap main event of a National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing meet Monday at Evergreen Speedway.

Fred Hayes, who finished first, took over the NASCAR points lead from second-place finisher Jack Jefferson.

Seniors All Square

John Carlow and Stu Mitchell of Gorge Vale retained the senior buttons by playing Royal Colwood challengers Don Ross and Harry Pike to a draw at Victoria Golf Club. They'll meet again Thursday.

Juvenile Boot Meet

Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association will hold a general meeting at 7:30 tonight in the Ingraham Hotel. Each team should be represented for purposes of registration.

SNO-BIRDS GATHER

Sno-Birds Ski Club will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 8 at The Inn, 1528 Cook Street.

Gaels Fluster Legion

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels used "frustration techniques" Tuesday night for a 14-8 win over South Vancouver Legionnaires in the Canadian junior lacrosse championship.

The Gaels now go into Thursday's third game of the best-of-seven series for the Minto Cup with a 2-0 lead in games.

Coach Jim Bishop said his floating zone defence and his goaltenders frustrated the Legionnaires into losing.

"They couldn't break through our floating zone defence and this confused them and prevented them from playing their best game."

Under the Bishop defence, four players each guard a zone while a "floater" covers the ball carrier.

GOALIES' STYLES DIFFER

He said the varying styles of his two goal tenders, Fred Cundell and Tom Christie, also shook up the Legionnaires.

Bishop described Cundell as a "reflex goalie" who can be far out of position but can recover to stop the shot. Christie is an "angle man" who usually crouches while awaiting the shot and stands serenely as the ball bounces off his chest.

The star of the game was Tom Simpson, a rookie who scored three goals. Simpson, of Huntsville, Ont., commutes to the games from Sudbury, Ont., where he is attending Laurentian University.

Peter Vipond and Mike Lewis each scored two goals while Terry Rowland, Bill Langley, Jim Higgs, Mike Beamish, Charlie Marlowe, Chuck Liand Tom Vann added one apiece.

SCORE FOR VANCOUVER

The Legionnaire's top scorers were Ray Bennie, picked up from New Westminster, B.C., Salmonbellies, and Al Tasker with two goals each.

Other goals went to Butch Skrizyk, Tom Somner, Dave Tasker and Les Shoumaker.

The Legionnaires have picked up six players from the British Columbia Intercity Lacrosse League, including Bennie, the team's leading scorer with five goals and four assists for the series.

Bishop said the Legionnaires "seem to be having trouble working six new players into their team. They just don't seem to be running as hard as most Western teams."

Whalley B.C. 'B' Champions

KELOWNA—Whalley breezed undefeated through the seven-team, double-knockout tournament on the weekend to capture the B.C. senior "B" men's softball title.

Whalley defeated Victoria's Century Inn, 7-0, Rutland, 7-1, and Prince George, 7-2, before blanking Rutland, 1-0, in the final.

Century Inn was eliminated, 13-0, by Kelowna.

Burnside Pairing Wins Yarrow Cup

Burnside lawn bowlers took the lion's share of prizes in the last inter-club competition of the season as John McMillan and Colin Fleck captured the Yarrow Cup in men's doubles at Canadian Pacific greens Monday with a 25-13 win over the father and son team of John and Grant Clegg.

Another Burnside pair, Jimmy Pollock and Bill Cruikshank, topped "B" section of the two-day event by downing Ron Andrews and Jack Carpenter of Lake Hill.

It was all Victoria Club in "C" section as Danny Millar and Hector Tapp defeated Tom McKeachie and Lionel Nichols.

PANCHO ACHES . . . . . . ASHE AILING

U.S. Hopes Tested

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The big test comes today for America's two leading tennis personalities—Pancho Gonzales and Arthur Ashe, Jr.

Pancho, 41, still aching from a tough tennis campaign, goes against third-seeded Tony Roche in a rain-delayed fourth round of the United States open championships.

Ashe, fighting a tennis elbow, meets Ken Rosewall in one of two men's quarter-finals. The other sends favorite Rod Laver, unbeaten in his last 27 matches, against fellow Australian Roy Emerson.

Three other players advanced to the men's quarter-finals Tuesday.

GIMENO UPSET

They were second-seeded John Newcombe of Australia who beat Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 25-23; Fred Stolle of Australia, who beat Britain's Roger Taylor 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3; and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, who upset 11th-seeded Andres Gimeno 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

Newcombe plays Stolle and Buchholz faces the Gonzales-Roche survivor in the men's quarter-finals Thursday.

Finalists were to be decided also today in the women's singles.

Margaret Court, the favorite, opposes Virginia Wade of Britain, the defending titleholder, and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, takes on Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.

Gonzales' match with Roche had to be put off when rain interrupted play for one hour, 15 minutes and the match between Newcombe and Riessen lasted more than five hours.

The rain-interrupted four-hour 10-minute match between Newcombe and Riessen provided the only real excitement of Tuesday's matches. Both men were amazingly steady in the fourth set when they played 26 games without a service break. When Newcombe finally did accomplish one, it started to rain and the set was held up 70 minutes.

Both players, rested and benefitting from cooler temperatures after the rain, played to a standstill. Each refused to give in when receiving and there were five straight service breaks. Newcombe was able to rescue five set points during this stretch. With both men making next-to-no errors and the passing shots and angled volleys flying from their racquets, it looked as if the match would go on until dark.

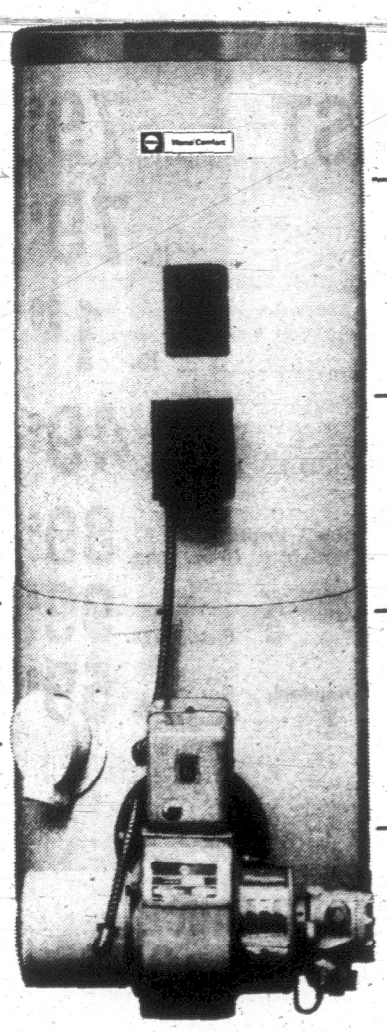

But in the 47th game, Riessen double-faulted, fell behind and lost his service for the first time in 14 games. Newcombe, serving for the match, deuced for the first match point. His sharply angled forehand on Riessen's short return of service then completed the marathon.

"Lease this heater for $4.13* a month— you'll get more hot water—and pay less!"

You can have so much hot water the tap may never run cold. This oil-powered Shell Home Comfort Heater heats water 3 times faster than gas—7 times faster than electricity!

And we can show you pay less for each gallon of hot water than you'd pay using either gas or electricity.

Just think, enough hot water to do four full washloads without a break . . . enough to bathe four kids in the bedtime hour . . . enough for the breakfast scramble—showers, dishes, washing and all!

How much will you save?

You could save many dollars over the years. Give us a call. One of our Consultants can show you exactly how much. He will compare the cost of hot water from the Shell Turboflue® Water Heater with the cost of gas and electric water-heaters. And it will be a fair comparison.

He will prove to your satisfaction that the Shell Turboflue Water Heater can give you more hot water—without sending your bills skyrocketing.

Why does it cost less to run?

This Shell waterheater is one of the most efficient ever built. Instead of just heating the base of the tank, the flame swirls up through the centre. This unique patented process can produce 90 gallons of boiling water every hour.

It runs on clean, safe Shell Heating Oil. In the area we serve, Shell Heating Oil packs more heat energy per dollar than gas or electricity.

No extra charge for installing or service

It will be installed and linked up to your existing oil lines in less than a day. At no extra charge Shell Home Comfort looks after all servicing needs—both parts and labour.

All you pay is the monthly amount quoted above and the monthly fuel oil bill. Both payments appear on one statement. You write just one cheque a month.

CHIEF SPEAKS OUT

Indians Seek Native State

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Most Indians on the Six Nations reserve near here want an independent Indian state, says Chief Joseph Logan.

"For us integration into Canadian life, as Ottawa wants, would mean creeping genocide," he said in an interview.

"We don't want our traditional way of life wiped out. We happen to like it."

Chief Logan said three-quarters of the 9,000 Indians on the reserve want an independent state.

"Look at our side as we see it," he said. "To start with, we don't call ourselves Indians. That was Columbus' mistake, remember? We are Ongwehwaweh — the original people.

"Our ancestors were a mighty nation long before the white man came to this continent. We had our own version of the UN, a confederacy or peace league of five tribes. Later another tribe joined and we became the Six Nations.

"Our ancestors were farmers, not bloodthirsty savages. Sure, they killed Jesuit martyrs near what's now Midland, but why? In retaliation for the murder of six of our braves by Hurons who were the allies of the French.

"Our confederacy was a democracy and a matriarchal society in which the women had superior status to the man, unlike the white man's world. The hereditary chiefs were elected by the clan mothers, leaders of family groups within the tribes, and could be deposed by them.

"In 1664, our people made a treaty with the Dutch, the first white man in what is today New York state. When the British displaced the Dutch, we made the same treaty with them.

"This treaty was called the Two Row Wampum. Its symbol was a white belt with two parallel black stripes. This meant that the white man's boat and the red man's boat were to travel side by side in peace but they must never interfere with one another.

"That treaty, and others like it, were never revoked. According to international law, the only way a sovereign nation can lose its sovereignty is by voluntarily surrendering it or being defeated in war. Neither is true of us. Therefore we are legally still a sovereign nation."

WOULD STAY IN CANADA

Chief Logan said an independent state of Indians would maintain close relations with Canada but would run its own internal affairs.

"We've been advised to take our case to the world court of The Hague. If we did, we probably would sue for the return of Vermont while we were at it since by treaty it still belongs to us.

"But what good would it do? If the court decided in our favor, who would enforce its ruling?

"We don't want to be Canadians any more than the Czechs want to be Russians or the Mennonites want to be Catholics.

"We just want to be ourselves and get what's rightfully ours."

BROADWAY 'MAYOR' DIES AT 80 YEARS

NEW YORK (AP)—Dan Healy, 80, a song and dance man of the 1920s-30s and the third and last husband of the late Helen Kane, a singer known as the "boop-boop-a-doop girl," died Monday.

Mayor Jimmy Walker had once labelled Healy "the night mayor of Broadway" for the way he sparked several of the town's liveliest night spots in the '20s and '30s as a master of ceremonies, singer and dancer. He also ran two nightclubs.

He starred in many Broadway revues, including Florenz Ziegfeld's Follies of 1927 and The Midnight Frolic. He was a past president of the Catholic Actors' Guild.

His wife, Helen Kane, died three years ago, at 62, of chest cancer.

He began his stage career at 14, and during both world wars he played with Irving Berlin in special army shows. He spent his last years entertaining patients in veterans' hospitals.

Modern Prisoners Get Home Pass

DRUMHELLER, Alta. (CP) — The warden of the federal penitentiary here says his aim is eventually to "do away with the prison entirely" and leave it to the community to put convicts back on the straight and narrow.

Whatever the chances of fully realizing his goal, Warden Pierre Jutras can look back on the last two years here as a time when major strides were made in the direction he is pointing.

Prisoners at the two-year-old Drumheller penitentiary can go home on weekends, work in the community unsupervised, and attend school daily for vocational courses and academic courses up to the high school diploma level.

"We have men doing every kind of job in Drumheller," Warden Jutras said in an interview. "There's an inmate right now who's levelling sidewalks in the town. He's working all by himself."

Barney Popovitich, owner of Popovitich Heating and Plumbing in Drumheller, has hired a number of prisoners.

"I used to leave them in charge of the store quite often and I never had any trouble. I have a sporting goods section where I've got guns, and they never went near them."

KEEP THEIR TRUST

Warden Jutras says "what we work on is trust, and we have found when you trust a prisoner he usually doesn't let you down."

The only men who have tried to escape in the two years of the penitentiary's operation were inside the seven-foot fence surrounding the prison when they made their attempts. None has ever walked away during an outside job or a weekend visit to his family.

A total of 155 prisoners have been released, and of these only 10 have had to be returned—some for only minor parole violations.

"The average prisoner goes back to jail six times," says Rev. A. Bell of Drumheller, "and we're trying to break that pattern."

Warden Jutras says: "The emphasis is on probation and the future lies with communities like Drumheller.

"Eventually our aim is to do away with the prison entirely and leave it to the community."

The new, broader rules—they still lock the doors in the prison at night—are part of a planned new direction in prisoner rehabilitation by federal and provincial authorities.

The emphasis is to be on rehabilitation rather than punishment, on cure rather than cruelty, and the Drumheller prison is a pioneering institution for the new direction.

The first move by Warden Jutras was to permit certain prisoners to visit their families at home on three-day passes. This program was so successful that the warden moved on to the program of outside jobs.

Some Drumheller residents complained that prisoners were taking work from local people, but a Canada Manpower official says they are not allowed to hold a job that a member of the community could hold.

On the whole, the local people are co-operating.

"We've got to get men back into the society one way or another," the warden says, "and with the co-operation of the town we've been very successful."

New Credit Education Aimed at Poor Risks

EDMONTON (CP) — Two Canadian consumer credit organizations have embarked on a program to keep people from getting into debt over their heads.

The consumer credit education program, sponsored by the Canadian Consumer Loan Association and the Federated Council of Sales Finance Companies, was launched last year to help teach people how to manage their cash and their credit.

At a showing in Edmonton of two of the organizations' new film strips, C. H. Bray, executive vice-president of the Federated Council, said the long-range aim is to prevent poor credit risks in future by educating young people.

The organizations also make available films and speakers to welfare groups and adult consumer agencies.

A finance company official who attended the Edmonton preview of the program said individuals' credit problems can easily reach mountainous proportions.

For example, he said, newly married couples can make a major purchase on time payments, such as a car, borrow money from a finance company to purchase home appliances and run up a $1,000 account at a department store on their new credit card—all within a month.

CAN'T GET OUT

They then are so deeply in debt that they have no idea how to get out.

Only a small percentage of the population get into this kind of difficulty, he said, "but wow, are they in trouble!"

The CCLA-FCSFC educational program points out that almost everyone uses credit in some form—even if only the kind called service credit, which involves paying the telephone, electricity or water bills at the end of the month.

But more than 50 per cent of Canadian families also now use some form of consumer instalment credit—either purchase credit in buying a house or car "on time" or cash credit in which money is borrowed from a bank, credit union or finance company.

At the end of 1967, outstanding consumer credit in Canada totalled more than $8,000,000,000, Mr. Bray said.

He added that enough people now "over-value" their own credit ratings that about 50 per cent of applications for cash loans are refused.

CREDIT THEIR JOB

Marvin Lucey of Calgary, regional chairman of the education program, said that the basic job of the companies in the sponsoring organizations is to put out credit, not education.

"But the more people who understand the proper and wise use of credit, the better it is for us. Credit fulfils a certain need and our standard of living would not be the way it is without it."

Mr. Bray said the educational program so far is aimed at prevention, not cure. Most finance companies now provide individual counselling for persons who do get into difficulty and try to help them work out a solution, he said.

"About 95 per cent of those borrowing from acceptance companies don't get into difficulty," Mr. Bray said.

Dirksen Satisfactory After Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, 73, was reported in satisfactory condition after surgeons removed a growth from his right lung, but there was no official word on whether the tumor was cancerous.

The upper lobe of Dirksen's right lung was removed Tuesday by army doctors at Walter Red Hospital.

A statement issued by Dirksen's office said "there was no evidence of spread of the tumor" and his condition after the operation was termed satisfactory.

A spokesman for the Illinois Republican, who suffers from emphysema, said Dirksen smokes "lots" of cigarettes. "I don't know how many, but lots," the aide said.

New Daily Will Cater To Italians

TORONTO (CP) — Corriere Canadese Tuesday became the first Italian-language daily newspaper in Canada.

Premier John Robarts of Ontario pushed two buttons to start the press rolling in a brief ceremony at the newspaper's plant in northwest Toronto.

He said it was a "great moment" for Italians, who form a "very integral" part of Ontario.

"The dissemination of news is one of the most important parts of a democracy," he said. "Corriere Canadese's progression from a weekly to a daily paper means that Italians will be better served in their understanding of the Canadian way of life."

The evening paper had been a thrice-weekly publication since 1954. It is aimed mainly at the 300,000 Italians in Metropolitan Toronto and is distributed to many centres in southwestern Ontario.

WORKERS PROTEST

About 80 Italian construction workers gathered at the newspaper plant shortly before the premier arrived. They carried placards asking: "Mr. Robarts, why can't Canadian independent trade unions get a square deal in Ontario?" and "Why are Canadian workers forced to join American-controlled unions?".

The men are members of the independent Canadian Concrete Forming Union No. 1 led by Bruno Zanini and are locked in a jurisdictional dispute with the Toronto Building Trades Council which has halted concrete construction in Metropolitan Toronto.

It was a friendly demonstration and did not interrupt the ceremony. Mr. Zanini and other union officials accepted an invitation into the plant to join Mr. Robarts at coffee and to watch the ceremony.

Publisher Dan Iannuzzi said Corriere Canadese—The Canadian Courier in English—is dedicated to "interpreting for Italians the opportunities available to them in Canada so that they will seek such opportunities honestly and deservedly."

The paper, with a circulation of 19,000 and averaging 20 pages daily, will be published Monday to Friday by 117 employees. It receives national and international news from The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative.

Tipping Ban Proposed In N.Z.

WELLINGTON (CP) — Offer a New Zealander a tip and he will be insulted. That at least is the authorized version, cited to show the sturdy independence of the average New Zealander's attitude to life.

But the extent to which modern New Zealanders are managing to swallow the insult has led to moves to ban tipping by law.

About the only people most New Zealanders would tip, and then only in small amounts, are bell boys carrying bags to a hotel room and waiters bringing drinks to a table.

Traditionally New Zealanders do not tip chambermaids, restaurant waiters, doormen, taxi drivers, hairdressers or barbers, airways porters or tourist guides. But because of tourist habits, many are liable to expect tips.

OUTCRY

When a new hotel was believed to be considering a 10-per-cent service charge there was such an outcry that the idea was hastily abandoned.

An attempt to make tipping illegal was made during the present session of Parliament by Labor MP J. A. Walding, who introduced a private member's bill to outlaw tipping in hotels and restaurants.

Walding said there was overwhelming evidence that New Zealanders found the custom repugnant—96 to 97 per cent of hundreds of letters he received supported the idea behind the bill.

But there was also strong bipartisan support for the view that tipping was not a matter which could be legislated against.

As a result the measure was killed in the form presented.

But a counter-attack on tipping seems likely to continue. The discussion in Parliament showed a good deal of support for the idea of erecting notices in hotels disparaging tipping as an un-New Zealand custom.

The proposal is now being urged on companies operating hotel chains.

Dies at 110

SALEM, N.J. (AP) — Alexander Tanner, a former slave who said he was 110 years old and voted in every presidential election since 1880, died here Tuesday. Last November, Tanner appeared at the polls here to vote for Democratic presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey. Tanner gave 1849 as the year of his birth, somewhere near Lynchburg, Va.

He's Always Yearned for a Buck Rogers Gun

By RITA REIG
New York Times

NEW YORK — The laminated plastic Buck Rogers paint book in the penny candy display case dominating Tony Goodstone's living room is the actor's shimmering route back to a 1930s childhood.

Ernest Trova travels the same road with Mickey Mouse watches, Tom Mix signet rings and Log Cabin syrup cans.

Stanley Landsman is transported by "greenies" — those pot metal nymphets that flanked clocks and vases, shored up ash trays and lamps.

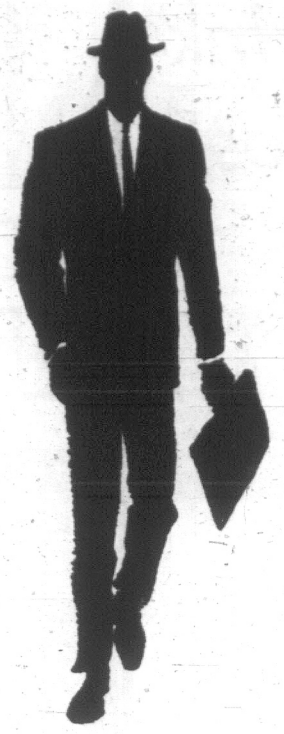

Ed Maslow uses Flash Gordon Big Little Books to refocus on the planet Mongo and restage battles with Ming the Merciless.

For Marilyn Gelfman-Pereira, a sculptor, Coca-Cola trays return her to the era of the all-American girl and the all-American boy toasting each other with soda pop bottles.

Her husband, Ivan Karp, the art gallery director, does it with an Andy Gump toy car, a "Call-for-Philip-Morris" Johnny ash tray or a chromed statuary group of three marching men representing industry, science and business.

Each collection is different, but the nostalgia, excitement, curiosity and compulsions aroused are much the same. Most of the collectors were born in the period that began with the Depression and ended with the Second World War. For many, owning such objects is the fulfilment of a childhood wish.

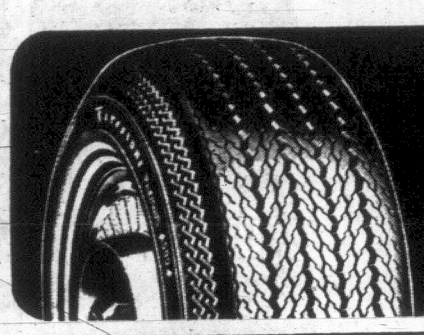

Goodstone says he'd always yearned for a Buck Rogers disintegrating gun. He now owns many.

French Drink Most

By CY FOX

PARIS (CP) — The sight of a Frenchman serenely sipping beer or white wine before 9 a.m. is anything but rare in the cafes that abound throughout this country's cities and villages.

And with wineless meals a bizarre exception in French dining customs, the statement by a newly published report that consumption of alcohol in France over a 15-year period substantially exceeded the intake by numerous other Western countries, per head of the adult population, comes as no surprise.

The report is in the latest bulletin issued by a Paris-based study group called the Institut National de la Consommation, which specializes in analysis of such consumer habits.

Measuring the national consumption of intoxicating drinks in terms of pure alcohol, the institute says that between 1951 and 1966 national intake averaged 28 litres, or 49 pints, annually for every adult in France.

The institute said the average adult consumption every year in Italy was 35 pints, in West Germany 25 and Switzerland 19.

There was no reference to Canada, but in the United States, Britain and Belgium the average annual intake of pure alcohol per adult resident was 18 pints, the organization reported.

In France, wine accounted for 75 per cent of alcohol drinks consumed.

Drinking of cider by Frenchmen fell off, partly because producers of this refreshment put more emphasis on a sweet taste than the French palate was willing to tolerate.

But consumption of beer increased and the drink's alcoholic content rose to 4.7 per cent from 3.65 over the 1951-66 period, said the institute.

The group agreed with public-opinion experts that prices currently charged for non-alcoholic drinks are a factor in the pronounced national preference for intoxicants.

SADDLED WITH TAXES

Since alcoholic drinks are saddled with government taxation, restaurateurs try making an unhindered profit from sale of fruit juices and mineral water, and prices for these items rise accordingly.

As with the drink-more-milk campaign associated with Pierre Mendes-France, French premier in the mid-1950s, efforts continue to wean consumers away from alcohol.

Special emphasis is put, by way of notices in bars and cafes, on discouragement of drinking among teen-agers.

While the results of such efforts may be questionable in the light of such statistics as those included in the new institute report, the foreigner living in Paris sees fewer helplessly drunk pedestrians than is the case in Canada or Britain.

And the institute itself says that Paris has the highest rate in France for consumption of non-alcoholic drinks.

Floating Department Stores

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tucked into the bays and inlets of British Columbia's northwest coast, backdropped by green forests rising abruptly out of the sea, are unique general stores selling everything from apples to zinnias.

They sell needles and anchors, T-bone steaks and children's running shoes, aviation gasoline and cosmetics. Beer, wine and spirits are missing—but the stores' post offices will send your money order along to the B.C. Liquor Control Board.

There are no traffic problems in this part of Canada, a roadless land of bays and inlets where shopping is done by boat, and where boats often can be moored to 150-foot Douglas firs growing right to the shoreline.

Many of the stores, set atop layers of massive logs, also feature diesel power plants, providing power for electric lights, deep-freezes, stereo sets and automatic washers in the living quarters.

Typical of these floating department stores is one operated by Thor Bachen, an RCAF veteran, at Dawson's Landing, 280 miles northwest of Victoria.

Shopkeeper Bachen, after fishing and logging in the area, took over a single building 12 years ago which combined living quarters and business.

Today this has expanded into a self-contained unit lining the shore for a quarter of a mile. There is a major oil refuelling depot, a general store with a stock valued at well over $50,000, a private home for his wife and four sons, warehouses, a cookhouse and two houses for a staff of seven.

Radical Left Causes Convention Break-Up

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The annual convention of the Canadian Union of Students broke into an emotion-charged debate early today and adjourned after considering only about half its prepared program.

Delegates and observers voted for adjournment of the week-long convention, in its final day, at about 6 a.m. after an uninterrupted 17-hour session.

The crisis began in the early hours today when Barry McPeake, acting as chairman of all plenary sessions, left the chair to address the students.

"I could no longer sit in the chair and submerge the contradictions that are in this congress," said McPeake, a Maritime field worker with CUS.

The conflict he referred to was one that plagued the congress throughout. A struggle between radical, leftist groups who demand uncompromising, revolutionary stands and the new CUS executive, trying to take clear positions but without the use of radical language.

McPeake said there was "a primary contradiction" between the strong, radical terms many delegates wanted to use and the milder language they were forced to use to meet the needs of CUS.

The union has faced a serious membership drain over the last several years but Martin Loney, new CUS president from Simon Fraser University had hoped to tone down some of the statements this year to attract new members.

"I want to smash the illusion that I'm a good boy because I'm not. I want to smash capitalism and imperialism," McPeake told the delegates.

CUS was only obscuring student issues, not doing anything to alleviate the problems.

He said some delegates want to preserve CUS only because it provided them with a kind of "power structure" within which they can operate.

He said nothing that happened at the conference would convince delegates to return to their campuses and push to win referendums on CUS membership.

Most CUS officials now agree there is little if any chance of winning the required membership after the convention failure.

McPeake told the students they must work to "liberate the working people so they are free to decide themselves how they will spend their time and their lives."

These aims could not be achieved within CUS as it now exists.

Loney said in a later interview that "the whole thing was a well-engineered plot."

It had been formed around Jim Harding, a teaching assistant at Simon Fraser who has been active in radical student politics for some years, Loney said.

"It relates to the fact that Harding has an obsession about Martin Loney and it makes him feel he should smash CUS."

The debate after McPeake's address quickly degenerated into bouts of angry name-calling until the vote to adjourn and hold a meeting of the CUS national council later today to ratify the resolutions that have been passed.

One of these states the CUS position that Canada is "a bi-national country . . . and the home of the French national community is Quebec; that of the English-speaking, the rest of Canada."

Cigarette Ban Proposed

BOSTON (AP) — A bill that would outlaw the manufacture, distribution and sale of cigarettes in Massachusetts has been introduced in the state legislature.

The sponsor is Democratic State Representative James R. Nolen, who said:

"Cigarettes are the most harmful product to the public health sold today, and yet they are sold in more places and with more convenience than any other product.

'CUS . . . NOT WORTH SAVING'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mike Doyle, external affairs officer of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia, said Tuesday night that UBC had officially withdrawn from the Canadian Union of Students as of Aug. 31.

He said in an interview that he and the two other UBC delegates to the annual CUS convention in Port Arthur had left the convention on Sunday after deciding the CUS was "not worth saving."

"All we're getting for our $20,000 a year is rhetoric," Doyle said, "and we can get that cheaper in B.C."

With Doyle as UBC delegates to the Port Arthur convention that officially ends today were Fraser Hodge, UBC Student Society president, and Dell Valair, vice-president of the UBC Law Society.

Doyal said UBC students had voted 60 per cent in favor of withdrawing from the CUS at a referendum in March, an abrupt swing from a similar referendum in 1968 which showed the students 70 per cent in favor of CUS membership.

He said that because the vote was close, the delegates had gone to the convention, only to leave early because they felt nothing was being accomplished.

Doyle said the UBC delegates felt the CUS could exist as a student forum, but not as a "federal student parliament" attempting to lead students socially and politically.

He said UBC would not pay the 75-cents-per-student dues for the 1969-70 CUS year.

Kennedy Wins Inquest Delay

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (CP)—District Court Judge James A. Boyle officially postponed this morning the inquest that was to have begun before him today into the death of Miss Mary Jo Kopechne.

The delay was won by lawyers for Senator Edward M. Kennedy despite fears the public might think they were trying to hide something.

The hearing had been expected to clear up much of the mystery surrounding the death of the 28-year-old Miss Kopechne in Kennedy's car, which plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on nearby Chappaquiddick Island July 18.

Justice Paul Reardon of the Massachusetts Supreme Court ordered the postponement Tuesday after lawyers for Kennedy appealed to the state's highest court against a ruling by Boyle that lawyers could not cross-examine witnesses at the inquest.

The appeal must go to the full nine-member court, which is not scheduled to reconvene until Oct. 1. The inquest therefore may not be held until late fall or early winter.

In another development Judge Bernard Brominski in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., rejected a motion by Miss Kopechne's parents to dismiss a petition for an autopsy on the body of the former secretary.

Judge Brominski ruled in common pleas court that he had jurisdiction to order the autopsy, requested by District Attorney Edmund Dinis of Edgartown. The parents had said he did not have the authority. Hearings are still to be held on the actual petition.

Dinis said he wanted the autopsy and the inquest to clear up some of the unanswered questions concerning the accident, which occurred after a party on Chappaquiddick Island attended by a small group of Kennedy aides and several young women who had worked for Robert F. Kennedy.

Among the questions still to be fully answered is why Edward Kennedy waited nine hours before reporting the accident to the police.

Kennedy pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and received a two-month suspended sentence July 25.

Bargaining With Police Continues

The Saanich police commission met negotiators for the police union this afternoon in an effort to avert a strike.

What happened at the meeting will be disclosed Thursday night when the negotiators take the issue to a police union general meeting.

The possibility of a strike arose in the municipality when Victoria police were denied wage parity with Vancouver in a B.C. Mediation Commission decision last week.

The union in Saanich and Oak Bay had suspended negotiations while awaiting the Victoria decision.

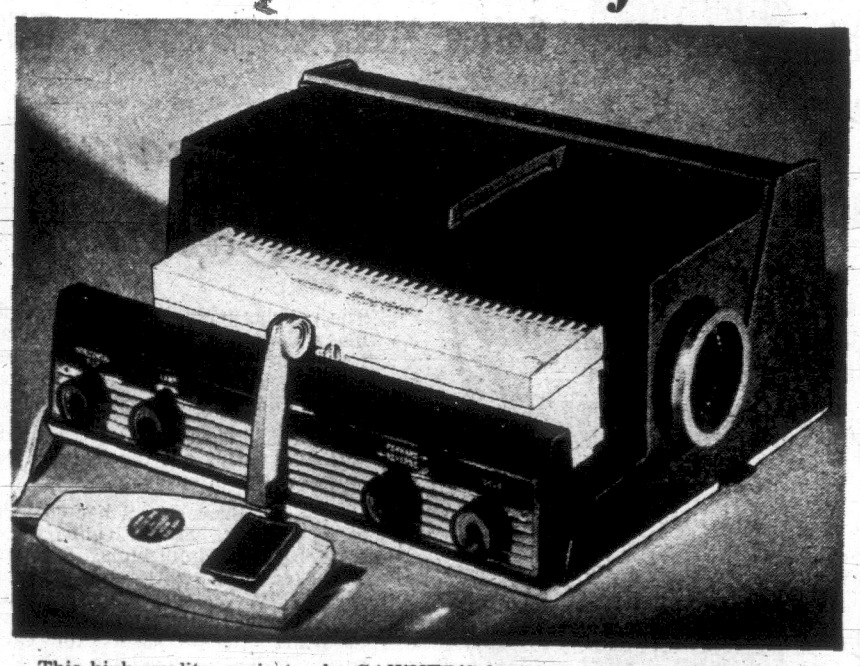

A Saanich union spokesman said it would be up to the membership to decide if they would continue to press for parity, or accept a lower settlement.

The spokesman said the union was invited to the meeting this afternoon, and agreed to attend. Representatives went "prepared for anything."

The union has been urged to strike by Teamsters Union official Ed Lawson, who represented the Victoria police union at the mediation commission hearing in July.

New Ship His Best Command

By PAT DUFOUR

A hardy Newfoundlander, who began his sea apprenticeship in schooners commanded by his father, will set to sea from here Monday at the bridge of the most sophisticated research vessel in the western world.

Captain James C. Bennett, known as Captain Jim to his friends, is skipper of the newly-completed Canadian naval auxiliary vessel Quest.

The Quest is completing shore checks at Esquimalt and will begin her working-up trials Monday.

Bennett has commanded many ships in his time but says that the Quest, his first newly-launched command, is the finest of them all.

"But," he adds, "every ship you sail in has appeal of her own."

EX-NAVY MAN

The stocky captain, whose ruddy face tells of years in wind-swept seas, says he's still a Newfoundlander although it was 1939 when he "left the Rock" to serve in Canadian merchant marine tankers.

"I still go home every two years."

His wife Mildred is also a Newfoundlander, hailing from the village of Heart's Delight.

Bennett spent 1940 to 1945 in the RCNR, serving on the Atlantic run from St. John's Nfld., to Iceland and Londonderry.

He stayed in the merchant marine after the war travelling the world until the service was dissolved in 1950.

It was then he joined the Department of National Defence. For the last six years he has skippered the mine-sweeper New Liskeard, which will be replaced by the Quest.

STAYS MUM

How does a seafaring man pass the long hours off watch? Bennett says "he reads, plays cards or tells stories."

He prefers to remain mum about experiences at sea, especially the bad ones.

Now 52, he's ridden out many a storm but says "there are times, naturally, when you're in the middle of a bad one that you promise yourself you'll get a nice cosy shore job. But the minute you hit port and the first lines are secured you forget all that nonsense."

Bennett says he will have many more thousands of sea miles under his belt before he retires at 60.

SAILOR'S WIFE

Six of the defence research board scientists at Halifax, N.S., the Quest's home base, will arrive in Esquimalt soon and will be aboard Quest when she carries out a three-week, 3,000 mile survey of Pacific waters.

Completely shaken-down, the Quest will then sail for San Diego where she will be on show at a seven-day international scientific convention.

By the time she reaches Halifax Dec. 8 she will have put 10,000 miles under her keel.

Bennett says that British scientists are hoping to see her in Britain next year "but I think we'll be too busy, working in Bermuda waters in the winter and the northern Atlantic in the summer."

Although Mildred Bennett is resigned to her husband being away for lengthy voyages, Bennett says she gets "a little disgruntled" at his return-home routine.

"I have a summer camp where I keep a 20-foot sloop and a runabout fishing boat. As soon as I'm home I head for the camp."

A typical sailor's wife, Mrs. Bennett goes, too.

SHOREBOUND for the next few days, Capt. J. C. Bennett looks forward to Monday when he puts the new naval research vessel Quest through her sea paces.

Integration Moves Spark Fire Bombings, Pickets

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — White boycotts, black picket lines and federal lawsuits faced school systems in the South today as the new term's second day of classes began.

Angry protests against racial integration Tuesday included a firebombing and the padlocking of schools in one area.

White students staged large-scale to wholesale boycotts in some districts of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina.

Negroes protested the closing of individual schools under federal desegregation plans in some districts of South Carolina and Georgia.

Two pre-dawn firebombs struck Irwin Avenue school in Charlotte, N.C., Tuesday. Classes opened anyway at the predominantly Negro junior high school which had to absorb many pupils of lower grades under an integration plan.

Police reported no arrests in the bombings, but 15 Negroes were arrested later in Charlotte after a demonstration blocked traffic. They were protesting an integration plan that closed their school and six other predominantly black schools, and called for 4,200 black students to reach classes elsewhere by bus.

Alabama's former Gov. George C. Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate in 1968, urged Alabama parents to "march on their schools" and demand freedom-of-choice attendance plans for their children.

In Alabama's rural Choctaw County, only 482 of an expected 2,300 white pupils showed up for newly integrated classes.

The justice department, meanwhile, prepared lawsuits against several Georgia school districts. Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the districts had reneged on voluntary integration plans.

Five civil rights division lawyers moved into the state to initiate court action. Suits were filed late Tuesday against three districts.

Other federal attorneys were at work in New Orleans on several Louisiana school cases. One of these involved Ascension Parish.

In East Ascension, schools were padlocked at Gonzales and in other areas Monday night to prevent the opening of classes under court integration orders.

Schools were closed or operating at limited levels Tuesday throughout the eastern part of the parish. There were white pickets at several schools, protesting integration decrees that threw out freedom-of-choice.

There were white pupil boycotts in Florida's Manatee and Hillsborough counties in protest over integration plans which in some schools left whites in the minority.

In Florence, S.C., about 150 Negro children and parents vowed to conduct classes on the lawn until the school board re-opens their closed school.

Manhattan Edges Into Arctic Ice

IN DAVIS STRAIT (CP) — A feeling of impatience gripped the crew of the Canadian ice breaker John A. Macdonald Tuesday as the U.S. oil tanker Manhattan experienced its first day in Arctic ice.

Manhattan skipper Captain Roger Steward slowed his 114,000 deadweight-ton ship almost to a standstill at the edge of the scattered ice field which was the start of the Baffin ice pack.

In Arctic slang it was two-tenths ice—ice that covered only about one fifth of the Davis Strait waters for several miles in front of the Manhattan. In addition it was mostly first-year ice and thus expected to be easy work for the Manhattan's specially fitted 725-ton steel bow.

Capt. Steward, however, approached the ice at about two knots and seemed to make little headway during the three hours. Scientists aboard were taking full advantage of the first ice to make extensive tests. Meanwhile, the Macdonald, having no trouble finding open water, circled the U.S. tanker and poked along as slowly as it could to keep in close quarters with the Manhattan.

"At this rate, we'll be here till Christmas," muttered one Macdonald hand.

The Manhattan is out to prove that the Northwest Passage can be used year round by tankers twice its size. It is scheduled to be in oil rich Alaska around Sept. 21 and then will spend a few weeks in the ice covered Beaufort Sea before steaming back to Philadelphia.

Later Tuesday, at the request of the Manhattan, a helicopter from the Macdonald flew out on ice reconnaissance and confirmed an ice field ahead that promised to be a bigger test. Here the ice was floating over seven-tenths of the water and was described as at least two year ice and up to 12 feet thick.

The Manhattan was to spend several hours in this pack late Tuesday.

Once clear of the Baffin Pack the Manhattan faces open water in Lancaster Sound as far as Resolute Bay. Past that point the Manhattan faces much tougher ice and probably much cooler temperatures than 30 above readings now being experienced. Captain Paul Fournier of the Macdonald said he understood the Manhattan's skippers reluctance to barge into Arctic ice for the first time.

"He has a heavy responsibility and it is better to get some experience first," said Capt. Fournier, who has spent a decade in the ice-breaking business in the St. Lawrence and the Arctic. Once the Americans get the feel of the ice the Manhattan is expected to open up to speeds near its capacity of 16.5 knots.

You Can't Just Sail From Tobacco

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (Reuters) — A young man was in hospital today after failing in a gallant attempt to give up smoking. He got seasick.

David Lindo, 20, and Peter Madgett, 19, planned to kick the smoking habit by rowing across the North Sea, leaving their cigarettes behind.

A week later, they thought, they would reach The Netherlands as healthy non-smokers.

Eight hours after starting out, they sent up distress flares and were towed back to shore by a lifeboat. David was taken to hospital.

Peter said: "David was terribly seasick. We regret starting."

Fishing War Resumes

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Russian patrol boat seized a Japanese fishing boat and its 13 crew members today while two unarmed Japanese ships patrolled the North Pacific in an attempt to avert fresh incidents in a long-standing fishing dispute over territorial waters.

Lunar Samples Producing Mass of Facts, Theories

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Scientist have made important new findings about the moon.

They have discovered:

● The moon may be like a great, shattered ball, broken beneath its surface into huge blocks and split by deep, hidden cracks reaching down tens or hundreds of miles.

● The identity of the lunar "mascons"—the mass concentrations whose gravitational pull confused the navigators of passing spacecraft—has now been solved. In the opinion of a number of scientists, the moon's seas or "maria" are themselves the mascons, rather than the mascons being some mysterious and unseen features beneath the surface.

● The lunar dust, that stuff the Apollo 11 astronauts made their tracks in, is fully 50 per cent glass—shiny little glass globes and teardrops—rather than the "one third to one fourth-glass reported when surprised scientists first examined lunar samples.

●

In addition, it is now known from the astronauts' stereo photography, the men were walking on thin crusts of glass several inches across—which naturally made them report that the surface was "slippery."

● This astonishingly abundant glass; the store of radioactivity in the lunar rocks; the rocks' surprisingly high density compared to the rest of the moon; their peculiar chemistry; the lunar surface's 3.1-billion-year age—all testify now to what Dr. Paul Gast of Columbia University calls "an evolutionary history very different from earth's."

The conjecture about possible deep cracks in the moon's interior—presenting a picture of a fractured moon, like a fractured piece of pottery—comes from Drs. Gary Latham and Maurice Ewing of the Lamont Geological Observatory at Palisades, N.Y.

It was they and associates who devised and operated the super-sensitive siesmometer that the astronauts left at Tranquility Base.

That seismometer almost certainly burned out in some way last week—a last ditch attempt will be made to restart it in mid-September, at the next lunar dawn. But, before sending its last signal, it had already produced a rich record.

●

Rich and puzzling. On July 23 and 24, even before the astronauts were back on earth, it reported three "small surface waves" that the seismologists interpreted as either moonquakes or meteorite hits on the moon. In either case, there was great excitement, for the nature of the signals seemed to say the moon was stratified or "layered" beneath its rough surface, with an outer crust, interior mantle and inner core much like earth's.

Those signals, however, were never repeated, though the seismometer reported "several hundred" tiny events, possibly little landslides down crater walls. The fact that the major events never recurred now makes Latham and Ewing feel they were probably "artifacts"—possibly "something funny happening in the seismometer electronics."

Yet, Latham feels, there seems to be "an even more remarkable finding. It is that the interior of the moon is not like the interior of the earth. We have seen no signals at all like we see on earth. The signals we have seen of natural origin have turned out to be completely different from earth signals, far more scattered and of low efficiency.

●

"Either there are no major seismic sources on the moon, quakes or meteorite impacts, to make signals—and it is hard to believe there have been no impacts—or else the moon is a very heterogeneous body." If the latter, it would be a body of highly fractured material with a very low efficiency in transmitting tremors for the seismometer to pick up.

That deep fracturing could have been caused by great, ancient meteorite strikes, a possiblility some lunar theorists have long suggested. The heterogeneity could also mean the moon's interior was never thoroughly molten, Latham believes — though it could also be that it is "nicely stratified" in some areas due to its materials melting and separating, and "just big blocks" in others.

This is still a "tentative hypothesis," Latham stresses, but "if the moon is indeed fractured, it will be a very exciting discovery in planetary science." Just because the seismometer has quit, says the white-haired and bulky Dr. Ewing, an important and venerable figure among earth and moon scientists, "it doesn't mean we're on the verge of defeat. We're standing on the edge of a great discovery, I would think."

That the moon is almost paved with bits of glass may not seem as startling to lay citizens.

But to scientists it is important testimony that the moon suffered great impact after impact, melting rock, making glass — far more such effect than anyone expected.

●

The same kind of glass is also found in countless little pits in the lunar rocks the astronauts brought back. "The tops of the rocks are dotted with little glass-rimmed craters," says Dr. Clifford Frondel of Harvard. "We call them 'zap craters.'" The zap craters, plus other measures, will tell scientists how many micrometeorites have hit a given area over a given time.

As for the rest of the lunar dust, sometimes described as a "great mystery" in recent weeks, "it is no mystery," Frondel states. It's just "fragmental material," bits of rock pulverized by meteorite rain.

The abundant glass also represents one of several lines of evidence that the moon experienced "great heating — for more than local heating," in one scientist's words. This gets to the most basic argument about the moon's history.

The igneous (fire-made) rock returned by the astronauts testifies clearly that this rock was melted. But was the melting caused only by surface impacts of great meteorites or asteroids, or by inner volcanism, like the volcanism that has shaped the earth?

This question may take a long time to settle. Evidence now available, in the view of several scientists, seems to say the heating was not just local but extensive and deep in the moon's interior.

The rocks proved surprisingly dense. This suggests both that a volcanic process produced the rocks, and that the density is sufficient to account for the mascon effect. Mascon theorists, by this view, need look no further.

The moon rock is sufficiently enriched in radio-active minerals — uranium, thorium, potassium — indicate that there was enough radioactivity in the interior of the early moon to produce enough heat (some 2,000 degrees) to melt rock and trigger volcanism.

●

The "screwey chemistry" of the rocks, as one geo-chemist described it, also seems to say: "This rock was more than locally molten."

Dr. Oliver Schaeffer of the State University of New York at Stony Brook and a U.S.-German team dated the rocks at "something like 3.1 billion years and possibly older.

"We have to be cautious still about this date," Dr. James Arnold of the University of California at San Diego points out. "This is a measurement in a new regime — the moon. I think it will turn out to be right. I'm just saying we have to be careful until we get many more checks."

If the age is correct, however, it indicates that nothing much but cratering has happened at Tranquillity Base for a least 3 billion years — though the moon, like the earth and the solar system, is presumed to be 4.5 billion years old. All the heating — by impacts or volcanism — took place in the first 1-½ billion years of the moon's history.

●

In short, Arnold states, "The moon has not been a continuously evolving place like the earth." This is backed by Schaeffer's measurements of cosmic ray and solar wind effects on two lunar rocks. These show one rock lay on the surface — until it was picked up by an American astronaut — for 50 million years, the other for 150 million years.

This shows that even the rate of meteorite hits and new cratering has been far less than scientists generally supposed.

Does this make the moon a dull "nothing" place? It may now be just the opposite according to lunar scientists like Dr. Robery Jastrow who have hoped the lunar surface would indeed prove an ancient and little-touched "Rosetta Stone of the planets."

Novelist Mom Shows Doubting Sons

Marion Rippon's smile is the smile of a just-published author. Seated at that desk, although in a different house, she wrote two novels and now has a third one under way. Her first "psychological mystery", The Hand of Solange, will hit the bookstands Friday. Her fourth novel may have a Victoria setting; Mrs. Rippon notes many old houses in the provincial capital have "a mysterious air" about them.

By JUDI FREEMAN

Marion Rippon of Victoria took a cynical housewife's look at her kitchen several years ago and decided an electric dishwasher was just the appliance to replace her dishpan hands.

So, to earn money for it, she sat down at the kitchen table and started writing The Hand of Solange.

The book, published by the Doubleday Crime Club, goes on sale Friday in local bookstores and is Mrs. Rippon's first novel.

Mrs. Rippon, mother of three and wife of Lt.-Col. Clive L. Rippon, assistant judge advocate general for Pacific Maritime Forces, seems an unlikely choice for budding Canadian novelist of the year.

Born in Drumheller, Alberta, she trained as a nurse at the University of Alberta and has followed her Armed Forces husband through 18 moves in 25 years. Much of her time was spent helping out in service hospitals "always short of nursing sisters."

But novelist she is and, as a novelist, she's eyeing Victoria as the potential scene for her fourth novel.

She began her first book, Solange, in her Ottawa home. Now recently settled into her Pemberton Road house, her second book is off to the publishers and the third is well under way.

Mixing novel writing and housework is a juggling act which sometimes fails. Mrs. Rippon's family began to find laundry, dishes and dust accumulating while the first book's beginning chapters took shape.

"Things got a little hectic at home with Mother writing all the time so my two sons went out and bought me a dishwasher," she said, recalling her feeling that her sons were confident she would never finish the book.

Daughter Michele, meantime, was teaching in Nova Scotia.

Dishwasher goal down the drain, Mrs. Rippon was stubbornly determined to show the boys she could write a novel that would sell and launched into a study of bestsellers. Results showed abnormal sex and crime were the readers' delights.

"I couldn't write about sex so that left crime."

The main character in The Hand of Solange is a schizophrenic woman and is drawn from Mrs. Rippon's experience as a psychiatric nurse at Stadacona Hospital in Halifax.

"My sympathy toward troubled people shows through in this book," she said. "The murder is secondary. I look into the minds of the characters."

The Hand of Solange is set in France where the Rippons lived for four years and the search into the characters' minds makes the novel into a psychological mystery.

The book took her a year to write due to inexperience with chapters and other physical details that go into a book.

"Also, I didn't know how to type so I went to typing school with all the 17-year-olds."

Two characters from the first book, Sergeant Michelin and gendarme Ygrec, are also in her second book, The Druid Weeps for Thee.

"I have no plots for my books," Mrs. Rippon stated. "I establish the characters and then the characters take over. Half way through the first book Solange was doing the talking through my fingers."

Mrs. Rippon does most of her writing late at night and often gets out of bed when an interesting idea or sentence pops into her head.

"One night I crawled into bed and terribly upset, woke up my husband and said, 'Guess, what, Ygrec just died.'

"My husband exclaimed, 'You can't do that—he's the best character in the book!'

"So I had to get up the next morning and revive him."

Mrs. Rippon said her experiences as a psychiatric nurse gave her the impetus to write psychologically-inspired thrillers.

"Mental illness is more painful than physical illness," she said.

"I want people to know what goes on in their minds."

Widower Trusts Mayor To Pick Suitable Bride

LANCIANO, Italy (AP) — A Toronto widower has written to the mayor of his native town for help in finding a wife, it was disclosed Tuesday.

Mayor Giorgio d'Amico said Lelio Mascioli, 37, of the Toronto suburb of Willowdale had sent him a letter saying that as mayor he was "the right man to choose a good wife among Lanciaco's young women."

The mayor said Mascioli asked that his letter be pinned on the municipal bulletin board so everyone could read it.

Many immigrants come back to Lanciano to find wives and then return to their new country. But, the mayor said, this was the first time one of them had entrusted him with the wife-scouting task.

In his letter, Mascioli said his first wife, also from Lanciano, died this year, leaving him two children, aged 3 and 6.

Mascioli wrote that he would prefer a blonde, aged 24 to 34, "with a few years of education.

He described himself as well off, owner of two houses, two cars and some land, and holder of "a professional job with a real estate firm."

Mascioli added he would pay all expenses incurred by the mayor.

The mayor said he hoped he could carry out his task satisfactorily.

Lanciano, a hillside town near Pescara, has 16,500 inhabitants. As in nearly all Italian rural towns, the women outnumber the men.

Pacifist Scorns 'Museum Piece' Label

By CLAUDIA LEVY

WASHINGTON (WP) — The quest for peace has taken pacifist and poet Rebecca Shelley to countless conferences, anterooms, countries and closed doors.

It took her to Europe during World War I, through a 10-year court battle for her citizenship in the 1930s and, in her anguish over Vietham, on a solitary trip around the world.

At 82, she would rather not be considered a kind of museum piece — strictly a source for historians on disarmament, sufferage and civil rights movements of this century or on Jane Addams or the Ford peace expedition.

She says, with humor, that she would like to be thought of as a modern, elder stateswoman.

It is her plan to end the Vietnam war, based on the neutral mediation concept she helped formulate at The Hague in 1915, that has taken her to heads of state, and to which she now devotes her existence.

It brought her to Washington this summer, to vigils at the White House and Arlington Cemetery and picketing at the Pentagon.

She is calling for withdrawal of all foreign armed forces from South Vietnam, immediate release of all political and war prisoners and sanctuary for persons fearing mass reprisals and personal vengeance. She urges acceptance of neutral peacekeeping forces from Scandanavian countries to implement the armistice.

Hilmar Baunsgaard, prime minister of Denmark, told her he could provide Danish peacekeeping forces, Miss Shelley says. It was an interview that has boosted her confidence, the former teacher, editor and business-woman said.

Soon she may return to her timber farm near Battle Creek, Mich., a tranquil sanctuary she says she may sell to raise money for a trip to the Paris peace talks. She has lived at "Peaceways" — 200 acres and a lake — since 1930.

Rebecca Shelley's ancestors escaped to colonial America to avoid persecution for their pacifist ways. Mennonites, they settled in Armstrong County, Pa., where there was always a picture of William Penn on the classroom wall. Her own father was a Methodist minister, and while she identifies with the Quakers, she has not totally embraced a particular religion.

As a young German teacher, Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Michigan, she was intensely involved in the movement for women's rights and peace. Her admiration for social worker Jane Addams drew her to the International Women's Conference Miss Addams convened at The Hague in 1915, where the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom was organized.

"I was really a conventional United States patriot in the early spring of 1915," Miss Shelley said recently, "but during that week at The Hague I became an avowed pacifist. Great women were there, pioneers in the suffrage movement, German and English women. There was a dynamic spirit."

Unable to justify killing in any context, she broke her engagement with a young German who had become a soldier.

Back in the U.S., she helped organize the peace ship Oscar II, Henry Ford's gesture to end the European fighting, and was one of the delegates who visited European officials.

In 1922 she married a German engineer who had jumped ship and entered the country illegally. They were allowed to remain in Battle Creek, and, under an old law, she forfeited her citizenship with the marriage.

USC Group Moves Depot

The clothing depot for the Victoria Work Group of the Unitarian Service Committee has been moved to 2333 Government Street, above Harknett Fuel.

Jim Coffey requests that he be notified at 382-5730 the day before any large shipment is delivered. Cotton clothing will no longer be included in overseas shipments, but clean, warm clothing is needed.

The work group needs packers to help at the depot every Thursday 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

The sewing and mending meeting of the work group will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m., 1544 Oakland Avenue. It is open to all interested women. Plain buttons, zippers and waist elastic are needed.

Scottish Dancers Plan Fall Classes

Dates for opening classes and dances for the fall season of the Scottish Country Dance Group have been announced by president G. R. Dunn.

The group, which is affiliated with the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society of Edinburgh, plans classes for beginners each Tuesday evening from 8 to 10, starting Sept. 9. Club dances will be held Wednesdays from 8 to 11 p.m., starting Sept. 10.

The group meets in the auditorium of Sir James Douglas School. Further information is available from the president or secretary, Mrs. B. J. Chorlton, 385-5004.

British Union Leaders Condemn 'Cheap Labor'

PORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters) — British Labor union leaders Tuesday condemned the use of women as cheap labor and demanded immediate government action to give women the same pay as men.

"We should throw away the idea that there are such things as women's work," said Frank Cousins, head of Britain's biggest union, the Transport and General Workers.

Cousins, soon to retire from his post, was addressing the annual convention of the Trades Union Congress, which links all major British unions and represents about 9,000,000 workers.

Cousins challenged remarks about equal pay made by Prime Minister Wilson to the convention Monday. Wilson had conceded the principle but said it should come about gradually in the context of the country's over-all incomes policy.

"Unfairness should be stopped immediately," Cousins said.

"We in the union movement are giving notice we have tolerated it for too long."

He said women in general received only about 57 per cent of male rates as against 78 per cent in some other European countries.

Scraper Takes Paint From Spotted Windows

By PENNY SAVER

"Air — give me air!" cried Wendy, as she dramatically staggered through Mathilda's kitchen door.

"Preferably spiced with the aroma of coffee," she added in a more matter-of-fact tone.

"I have been painting the kitchen trim all morning and the whole house smells of paint and solvent. I keep expecting the narcotics squad to arrive any moment to arrest me for sniffing.

"And worst of all, when I cleared the cupboards I hid the coffee."

"How are you doing?" we asked.

"Quite well. I've painted one bank of cupboards, two window frames and many square inches of glass besides. That makes me mad. I hate scraping."

Mathilda nodded. "A razor blade does a fine job but you run the risk of being sliced to pieces."

"Then put it in a guard," I suggested. "You can buy one for 59 cents that is quite adequate. It will even take single or double-bladed razor blades."

This guard is made of metal and is completely adjustable so the blade can be used as a scraper or as a cutter. The blade will also swing completely out of the way for safe storage.

Needless to say the blades can be easily changed when they become dull.

With a razor blade held safely in this guard it becomes simple to scrape paint, open cardboard cartons, clip items for the newspaper or cut tough string.

Chopper Low-Priced

"I don't want a fancy gadget," said Jayne somewhat fretfully as she attacked the head of lettuce with a knife. "But I would appreciate a small mechanical advantage at a low price. You wouldn't happen to know of a good chopper, would you Penny?"

"Is $2 high or low?" I asked, casting my mind back to the last time I visited that sort of store.

"Marvellous — just the price I was looking for."

"Then I know of one. It has, as I recall, three blades — each parallel to the other. The middle one is much lower than the others and is attached to a spring so when you push, it pushes, back, making it easier for you to continue chopping.

"The blades are of stainless steel and the handle of wood. The manufacturer suggested it might be useful for tenderizing meat, or cubing it, if it was that sort of meat; chopping vegetables, shredding cabbage and lettuce.

"And the price was $1.98. Is that the sort of thing you had in mind?'

"Take me to your chopper," replied Jayne, brandishing her knife like a sword. "We will go and inspect it tomorrow."

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Holy Mary Loses to Law

MOSCOW (AP) — The law finally caught up with a self-styled sorceress called Holy Mary, but not before she had obtained thousands of rubles from gullible Russians.

Pravda said Sunday police had arrested the woman, whose real name was Lydia Doshkenty.

Police said she sold a woman physician a bottle of worthless tap water and two handfuls of sand for a diamond brooch, 25 gold pieces, some government bonds and 1,570 rubles nearly $2,000 in cash.

The doctor was looking for a way to prevent her son from marrying a girl she didn't approve of. The sorceress told her all she had to do was pour the magic water on her food and the magic sand in his shoes.

"Days passed," Pravda said, "and the son still went out with the girl despite the inconvenience of sand in his shoes."

He married the girl, and his mother tried to find Mary to get her money back. But the sorceress had skipped town.

In another fraud, she sold a housewife plain water for 600 rubles and told her the "potion," added to her husband's food, would cure him of excessive vodka drinking.

Another housewife with the same problem paid 100 rubles for ordinary buckwheat to make enchanted porridge for her husband.

"Altogether," the Soviet Communist party paper said, "she pumped more than 10,000 rubles out of people."

Pravda said it published the story not to expose Mary's racket but to chastise the suckers who fell for it.

She Wanted Her Share

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) The little old lady plunked a valise down on a vice-president's desk at a Crocker Citizens Bank branch and ordered him to "fill 'er up with money."

"What are you doing about all these robberies?" she asked cheerfully. "You give all the money away, so why not give some to me?"

The bank executive showed her what he was doing about robberies by pressing a foot alarm which summoned police. Inspectors Ray West and Jim Evans decided, however, to turn the little old lady over to relatives, who promised she would undergo psychiatric testing.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Grave Problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after my husband passed away, my sister (who is two years younger than I) expressed a desire to purchase the grave plot next to his for herself when her time comes. She went to pieces when he died. She says it will give her "peace of mind" to be buried next to him. She has a grave in another cemetery with our parents, but now she has changed her mind and wants to be buried next to my husband. (Her husband was buried at sea.)

I have a plot next to my husband's for myself when my time comes, but the one on the other side is still for sale.

My sister and I have always gotten along very well, and she says she will not do anything against my wishes, but I cannot for the life of me understand why she needs to be buried on the other side of my husband for her "peace of mind."

Since that plot will not be available immediately, I must make a decision soon. If I say no, I'll be hurting my sister, and if I say yes, I'll be hurting myself. What should I do?—Anonymously Yours.

DEAR ANONYMOUSLY: Since it would appear that your sister goes "to pieces" more easily than you, say yes, and hope that when her time comes, she will rest in peace.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a divorced man for almost five years. I am also divorced. He is very good to me, but has been a playboy all his life, and it is difficult for me to believe that he will settle down and be a good husband.

He says he loves me and has asked me to marry him several times, and although I am sure I am the number one girl in his life I have reason to believe he cheats on me. When I'm at his apartment, I keep finding evidence of other women, such as cards and notes signed "All my love." He claims he can't help it if women chase him.

I tell him he wouldn't have that problem if he didn't encourage them. I do love him, but I'm wondering if I should marry him feeling the way I do.—Distrusting.

DEAR DISTRUSTING: A woman who loves a man she cannot trust during the courtship doesn't know what misery is until she marries him.

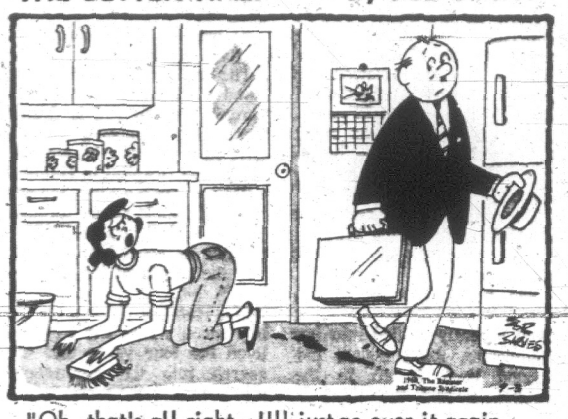

DEAR ABBY: I am almost 70 years old and have lived long enough to know that people who mistrust every other person are not to be trusted themselves. Very truly yours, Victor in Pittsburgh.

DEAR VICTOR: To which I can only add, "Amen."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Oh, that's all right--I'll just go over it again... I was too tired to get up off my knees anyway."

Emergency Divorce Granted

LONDON (Reuters) — A judge decided last week to grant an emergency divorce to a woman who wants to free her husband so he can remarry and bring his new wife and unborn child from Hungary.

Eileen Mary Forster said her husband Peter wanted to wed Eva Torok of Budapest. Unless he did so before Mrs. Torok's expected baby was born the mother and child might have trouble leaving Hungary to join him, the court was told.

"I am very much against divorce, but I feel it would be spiteful to stop it when I can do nothing with my marriage," she told the judge.

The Forsters were married 15 years ago when both were 33. They had no children.

The judge agreed to the divorce and the final stage came effective Thursday.

Autumn Dreams A Varied Lot

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Autumn! A time when Nature, like an old, old grandmother, dreams away her days!

Cornfields are brown. Meadows are expanses of yellow stubble. Fruits hang ripe on the trees and the leaves are beginning to fall. The warmth of the sun is mellow and in its golden glow nature rests. Her work is done!

Forbes

Many people believe autumn is the best of all earth's varied and exciting moods. There is something in the hint of Indian summer days that stirs their blood. They love the brilliant colors of the dahlias, the chrysanthemums and the Michaelmas daisies and they revel in the golden yellows of the trees.

Others find in autumn days a sense of foreboding. They see up ahead, rain-swept hours, frost that will take the leaves and the flowers by surprise and sharp winds that will strip the trees and the vines and bring winter tumbling into our laps.

The majority of us, however, tend to take autumn as it comes. We enjoy its splendor to the full. We bask in its mellow heat. We gather the ripe fruit. And, like nature, we rest and dream for a little time, before tackling the many things we must do in the months that are to come.

In the course of a recent "tidying up" mood, I came across some notes I had made when I was in Scotland a few years back. They had to do with unconventional wedding ceremonies that were still in use over there.

The subject came up when I was in Dunbar, not far from Edinburgh.

There was a wedding where as a matter of course a basket of stones was tied around the bridegroom's back with a rope which the bride then cut, symbolically relieving him of all his burdens. For this service she was rewarded with a kiss by her husband.

That night, my host Jim Anderson, reminded me of another Scottish custom which he insisted was handed down from our caveman ancestors. It's the one where the bridegroom carries his bride across the threshold of their new home.

He also spoke of the town if Annmouth, where both bride and groom are helped to jump over a stool placed outside the church. A similar Northumberland custom, he said, sometimes took place on Holy Island, where the bride is helped by the island's two oldest fishermen to jump over the "petting stone."

When the couple get back to the bride's home, three men fire a salute. A cake is then placed on a plate and thrown into the air. If that cake is not broken by the fall, bad luck is supposed to result for the newlyweds.

They would be safe, I remember telling Jim Anderson, for no self-respecting cake could survive being thrown into the air and plunked down on the floor without showing some sign of breakage.

★ ★ ★

The tidying-up process also brought to light a letter sent me by a friend some time ago in which she told of being at a perfume counter and witnessing "an amazing tragedy."

A young man stood beside her with a girl's crumpled handkerchief in his hand. He was hunting for a perfume that matched the faint fragrance that wafted out from the bit of linen.

She heard the sales clerk suggest he ask the girl the name of the perfume. That would spoil it, he said.

Then, blushing to the roots of his hair, he explained he had told the particular young lady that the magic of her perfume was unforgettable—and now he was obsessed with the need to make good.

He had taken the handkerchief when she wasn't looking. Thought he could go to any perfume counter and match the scent. But all those "darned perfumes" smelled alike to him.

My friend wrote that when she moved away he was still hopefully sniffing.

The truth! So help me!

TOBACCO HAZARD DOWN?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States tobacco industry has arranged for independent tests of a new chemical process which its backers say will produce less hazardous cigarettes.

Nine cigarette manufacturers made the offer to finance the testing of the process called Chemosol, and Chemosol officials have accepted, an industry spokesman said Tuesday. The process was described to the House of Representatives commerce committee last April by Dr. Perry B. Hudson, president of High Tor Foundation Inc. He said it was researched in his laboratories and reduces what he called a cancer-producing substance he identified as benzo a pyrene.

Hudson said the chemical is applied to tobacco before the cigarette manufacturing process and doesn't affect the taste or aroma.

The testing is expected to take at least a year and involve batched of treated and untreated cigarettes on smoking machines. The concentrates of smoke then may be tested on mice.

William Kloepfer, public information director of the Tobacco Institute, said the decision to sponsor the testing does not mean that the tobacco industry has changed its position that there is no proven relationship between cigarette smoking and cancer.

Soviet-Cuba Harmony Apparent

By FENTON WHEELER

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's relations with the Soviet Union seem the warmest since the Russians yielded to the United States challenge in 1962 and took their missiles out of Cuba.

A recently-concluded visit by a Soviet naval force underscores the new solidarity.

In the view of veteran Havana diplomats, thhe Soviet visit represented a reward to the Cuban premier for moving his revolution closer to the Soviet line.

These sources place slight credence in any suggestions the Russians were reacting to U.S. President Nixon's visit to Romania. And they see the Soviet navy trip into the Western Hemisphere as having limited military implications.

For one thing, Havana diplomatic circles were confident there would be no weapon rattling while the Russians parked their guns only 90 miles from the U.S. mainland. And there wasn't.

Soviet public statements during the visit were confined to pledges of solidarity, with nothing about defence commitments.

Castro has said more than once that Cuba was prepared to go it alone militarily if necessary.

After the Soviet led invasion of Czechoslovakia he asked whether the Warsaw pact countries would do the same for Cuba if it were threatened by imperialism. Some sources suggested, not too seriously, that perhaps the Soviet visit was the answer.

RELATIONS SLUMPED

But Castro's meetings with the Russians, at least those publicly reported, were of such a nature and under such conditions that it seems unlikely defence commitments could have been discussed comprehensively. The Soviet ambassador to Cuba, Alexandr Soldatov, was out of the country when his countrymen arrived.

Cuban-Soviet relations slumped after the 1962 missile crisis.

The Russians disagreed with Castro's policy of trying to export armed revolution to overthrow governments in Latin American countries where Moscow was trying to expand trade.

Castro in turn publicly attacked the Russians for offering technical aid to his enemies. In one speech, Castro suggested that the Soviet Union, easily Cuba's biggest supporter with at least $1,000,000 daily coming into the island, had tried financial blackmail to get him to change his line.

The big thaw came after Cuban guerrilla leader Che Guevara's death in Bolivia. This made a big impact on Havana thinking and appears to have led Castro to alter or at least postpone his efforts to export armed revolt.

Soviet sources contend a Russian economic commission which came to Havana shortly after Guevara's death also warmed up things. The atmosphere improved after Castro supported the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Old Barn Converted To Museum

GARDEN HILL, Ont. (CP) — The pride and interest in preserving the memory of pioneer rural life in Durham County are evident in the farm of Edward Wilson near this small village 18 miles southwest of Peterborough.

Mr. Wilson has converted a portion of his barn into a makeshift museum to display historic books, maps and instruments, most of which are over 100 years old.

His collection includes a rare map of the county, a wooden hand-operated washing machine, early oil and gas lanterns, and a religious book dating back more than 300 years.

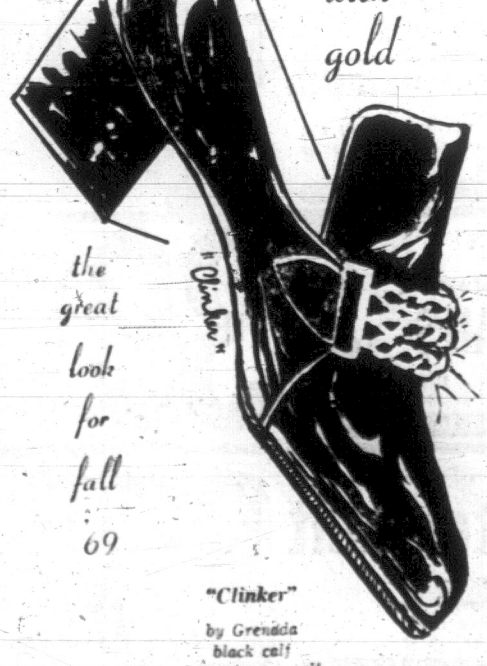

Many of the exhibits in Mr. Wilson's barn sit atop bales of hay. Swallows sing and swoop across the roof of the barn while interested visitors inspect the collection.

Mr. Wilson says he is waiting for the township or an interested historical group to establish proper museum facilities in the area to preserve the relics of the pioneers of a century ago.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Nuclear Weapons Key Block in Okinawa Talks

By A. D. HORNE

WASHINGTON (WP) — Negotiations over the return of Okinawa to Japan will reach a critical phase next month when Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi visits Washington for a third round of talks with Secretary of State William Q. Rogers.

The United States, diplomatic sources said in interviews last week, has offered to meet Japan's 1972 target date for reversion of Okinawa and the other Ryukyu Islands provided it can win detailed advance assurances that Okinawa's giant base complex, valued by the Pentagon at $3 billion, can continue to be used as Washington requires to meet threats to security in an arc ranging from South Korea to South Vietnam.

Ban N-Weapons

Japan, these sources indicated, still resists giving explicit advance assurances as part of a reversion agreement. Instead, the Japanese negotiators reportedly are stressing that Tokyo will cooperate with Washington in any emergency after reversion as it applies to the Okinawa bases the rules that now govern U.S. bases in Japan. These rules bar the bases' use for combat unless there is "prior consultation" with Tokyo, and in effect bar introduction of nuclear weapons.

The nuclear issue, informants said, has not yet been resolved in three months of negotiations, despite initial reports that the United States had decided to remove the weapons from Okinawa as part of reversion. One version has it that the United States now seeks Japan's advance agreement to return the nuclear weapons to the island in emergency situations after reversion, but other sources dispute this.

Open Secret

Officially, the United States never has acknowledged storing nuclear weapons on Okinawa. But their presence is an open secret; leftist politicians on the island reportedly even have counted 3,000 warheads in a nuclear census conducted through collaborators among the 30,000 or more Okinawans employed at the U.S. bases.

Another open secret figuring in the negotiations is use of the island's Kadena Air Force Base for B52 bombing missions against suspected enemy concentrations in South Vietnam. U.S. negotiators, according to informed sources, are asking for language in the reversion agreement that could allow the B52 raids from the island to continue if the Vietnam war still is being fought in 1972.

Demand Voice

The form that the reversion agreement would take is still to be decided, the sources said. With America's foreign commitments the subject of continuing controvery on Capitol Hill, the administration is said to be considering a form of agreement that would be submitted to congress, at least for informal clearance.

Critics of U.S. military involvement overseas, such as Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. William Fulbright (D—Ark.), have been demanding a voice for the Senate in such non-treaty matters as the renewal of the 1952 bases agreement with Spain and the status of the 1965 military contingency arrangement with Thailend.

In recognition of the Thai and other commitments controversies here, informants said, both governments are ruling out any secret agreement or "contingency plan" as part of the reversion arrangements.

The treasury has sent experts to the island to survey the balance of payments problem. These include conversion of the Ryukyuan currency from dollars to Japanese yen—the Japanese estimate of money in circulation on Okinawa is $500 million.

Free Trade

The United States seeks, and probably will get, a guarantee that reversion will not add to the U.S. balance of payments deficit. As part of the bargain, the American negotiators want Japan to assume the debts of the waterworks, sewage system and other U.S.-built utilities on the island.

Before the Second World War, Okinawa was among the poorest prefectures of Japan. Its economic prospects for reversion are not bright, even if the U.S. bases continue to pour an estimated $260 million a year into the economy. The main crops—sugar and pineapples—are heavily subsidized by Japan.

Now, however, there are plans to make economic use of the island's strategic location and of the harbors and air strips built by the United States.

One idea advanced by Japanese businessmen is for an Okinawa free trade zone, where travellers could purchase goods duty-free as they now do in Hong Kong.

The separate proposal, made this summer by a Tokyo consulting firm under contract to the Japanese government, is for development of Okinawa as an oil refining centre for all Japan. Standard Oil of New Jersey already plans to build a $55 million, 80,000-barrel-a-day refinery on the island, and Gulf Oil is building a $39 million crude oil terminal on a nearby islet as a central storage and shipping point for East Asia markets. At least two other U.S. firms seek licences to build refineries.

All this crude oil would come to Okinawa from Middle East sources. Last week, however, Japanese geologists reported discovery of a huge underwater oil field in the East China Sea near the southernmost Ryukyus group, the Senkaku Islands, about 100 miles from Taiwan. Development of these oil deposits, with reversion of the Ryukyus, could dramatically alter Japan's present role as a $1 billion-a-year importer of oil.

Aichi will be coming here not directly from Tokyo but via Europe from Moscow, where he will delicately raise the question of Habomai and Shikotan, two small fishing islands north of Japan, which the Soviets seized after the Second World War. Tokyo would like to have the islands back, but reportedly see little hope for a quick settlement that would increase pressure on Washington for return of Okinawa.

Search Continued

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—A search for the bodies of three men killed in a helicopter crash in the Liard River Aug. 14 continues but police don't think they will find them. One of the dead was Walter Jeffrey, a professor at the University of British Columbia.

Classes Boycotted

MORLEY, Alta. (CP)—Indian students boycotted classes here Tuesday after the Stoney Indian band opposed appointment of a new school principal who will not live in the town. Chief John Snow said all of the 200 students would quit school if the principal did not move to the town, 40 miles west of Calgary.

ANTI-BRA ADVOCATE SUES CORPORATION

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A woman who says she was fired for refusing to wear a brassiere and for advocating a "bra-less Friday" for 2,200 other girls in the plant has filed a $1,400,000 suit against General Dynamics, Inc.

Jane M. Andre, 39-year-old divorcee, formerly was a supervising engineer in General Dynamics' welding department at an annual salary of $18,000.

Her suit, filed in Superior Court Tuesday, charged her reputation and character had been damaged by statements made by General Dynamics regarding her suggestion for a bra-less day.

Heart Specialists Planning Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Pierre Grondin and Dr. Gilles Lepage of the Montreal Heart Institute returned early today from Santo Domingo with plans to help train a medical team to perform heart surgery in the Dominican Republic.

Both surgeons spent two weeks at the Salvador B. Gautier Hospital operating on critically ill, but surgically correctable, heart patients.

"We don't often get a chance to see such advanced stages of heart disease," Dr. Grondin told a news conference," because here, with advanced equipment and our trained cardiologists, we are able to do something about the disease earlier.

"But there, we saw cases which we don't often see but which also proved to us that it is never too late for surgery."

The surgeons and a compact team from the institute performed 15 heart operations in six days and devoted the rest of their stay to post-operative care and the presentation of papers at the second national cardiology conference.

They were invited to demonstrate their surgical techniques by the Dominican Institute of Social Security.

Dr. Lepage told reporters he was hopeful the institute might be instrumental in helping train doctors from Santo Domingo in heart surgery and related care of the patient so a "team" would be able to operate there.

Dr. Crondin said that while it was good to send a Montreal team to an area to do open heart or other surgery, it was also very expensive.

Two of the 15 patients operated on by the Montreal surgeons died.

The other 13 were reported in good condition.

Machine-Gun Kits Banned

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a bill outlawing do-it-yourself machine-guns in California, his office announced Tuesday.

The measure adds to the definition of machine-gun any combination of parts designed and intended for use in converting a firearm into a machine-gun.

Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch said the new law is necessary because white and black extremist groups are secretly stockpiling weapons and do-it-yourself conversion kits are widely advertised.

The Guardsman Wins Audience In National Arts Centre Opening

By MARIE RILEY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Shaw Festival production of The Guardsman, fresh from a successful run at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., opened to an enthusiastic audience at the National Arts Centre Tuesday night.

Members of the Canadian Bar Association, here for its 51st annual meeting, and their wives filled most of the seats in the 800-seat theatre.

Leading roles were played by Lila Kedrova, the Russian-born actress who won an academy award for her portrayal of a middle-aged French coquette in the film Zorba the Greek, and Paxton Whitehead, the festival's artistic director.

The story, written by Shaw's Hungarian contemporary, Ferenc Molnar, centres around the couple's ability as professional actors to outfox one another when Mr. Whitehead, as Nandor, suspects his wife of infidelity.

TRANSLATION NEW

The translation used is a new one by Frank Marcus, an English playwright and drama critic for the London Sunday Telegraph.

As Ilona, Miss Kedrova frisks around the stage, dressed in a succession of filmy gowns, a charming match for her sleek actor-husband and his impersonation of a dashing Viennese Guardsman.

The play's director is Stephen Porter, a former McGill University drama professor and former director of the Montreal Repertory Theatre.

Sets, which feature a plush drawing room in a Budapest home and a box at the opera, circa 1910, were designed by Maurice Strike. Tina Lipp, a graduate of the Ontario College of Art, designed the costumes.

The performance, which opens the first winter season at the arts centre, will run until Sunday.

Real-Life Escape Story Impressive

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A real-life escape story—Russian author Anatoly Kuznetsov's account of his defection from the Soviet Union—was the dramatic curtain raiser on CBS's season of Tuesday night news hours.

Kuznetsov speaks no English, but the hour-long interview taped in London overcame the obstacle neatly. CBS Correspondent Morley Safer, a native of Toronto, asked the questions and Kuznetsov's answers were translated simultaneously by a Russian-speaking newspaper man, David Floyd, to whom Kuznetsov turned for help.

Safer explained the writer still lives in hiding and Anatoly—he prefers to drop his last name—said: "I am still afraid of Soviet officials."

In a quiet voice, the tense, bespectacled writer told of his carefully laid plans to escape from his native land after Soviet troops went into Czechoslovakia, "the last straw."

He told how he persuaded officials he was loyal and finally received permission to go to London for some research on a book about Lenin. Even when he told how he got rid of his official "watchdog" — his guard went off to a burlesque show — Anatoly showed only utter seriousness and almost apprehension.

GOOD CAMERA WORK

The camera stayed in close-up on the subject most of the time the Russian was telling his story, and although the sound track recorded English, the effect was impressive.

Safer occasionally pressed Anatoly as if he were cross-examining him, asking almost accusingly if he felt guilt about his actions. Anatoly admitted he did, but spoke of the surveillance and suspicion in his homeland—"a concentration camp," he called it.

At one point he pulled a handful of film from his pocket. The rolls contained negatives of his manuscripts, he said, "my life."

Safer asked if Anatoly did not fear for the safety of the family he left behind. There was a pause before the sad-looking man answered "very much indeed."

It was a vivid enterprising piece of broadcasting, and would have been, perhaps, even more effective if Safer had restrained his impulse to push with dramatic questions.

Woman Injured In Car Crash

DUNCAN — A Cobble Hill woman is in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District Hospital following a one-car accident on Cherry Point Road, about one mile from Four-Ways Auto Court near Cowichan Bay.

Elizabeth Haley was in the car alone, RCMP said. The accident happened at 6:10 p.m. Monday.

No Bull, Just Cash

An 80-year-old Oak Bay woman won a steer in a deep freezer — a prize valued at $1,000 — in a Saanichton Fair contest Tuesday.

Mrs. Margaret Young, 2363 Epworth, took a $500 cash prize instead of the frozen steer. She told contest organizers that "she just wouldn't know what to do with it."

Village to Celebrate Visit Of Its Famous Moon Doctor

LAKE COWICHAN — William Carpentire, native son and physician who attended the lunar astronauts when they returned to earth, will be given a civic reception when he visits home Monday.

Prior to the reception and banquet at Centennial Hall, Dr. Carpentier will be escorted to Central Park where a tree will be planted and a plaque erected honoring his part in the historic event.

His mother and one brother, Gary, live here.

Dr. Carpentier was the first person to greet the astronauts — Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Mike Collins — when they returned to earth after their successful moon landing July 20. He attended them during the 21 days they spent in confinement to avert any danger of contamination.

★ ★ ★

The reception for Carpentier, who leaves Sept. 15 for a six-week trip around the world with the three astronauts and their wives, was announced at a special meeting of village council.

Representatives of the Kinsmen Club, Chamber of Commerce and press attended.

The chamber announced it will establish a Bill Carpentier Scholarship fund to assist capable students to continue their studies in the scientific field.

Store owners in the village are being asked to decorate their windows for the occasion.

IN CHRONIC UNITS

Hospital Fears Infections May Break Out

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN—Inadequate provision is being made in chronic care hospitals for isolation of patients suffering transmittable infections or illnesses, administrator Ken Noton of Cowichan District Hospital said Tuesday.

Noton told a news conference hospitals don't have facilities to handle isolation cases in extended care wards and an outbreak of boils or golden staph disease could create a serious problem.

Extended care patients could not be moved to isolation facilities in the acute care department either, he said.

"We have written British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service urging consideration be given to including isolation facilities in extended care wings now being planned."

Noton also said the hospital board is being supported in its bid for a psychiatric clinic by the local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

A 15-bed clinic with a psychiatrist, a psychiatric nurse, a psychologist and a social worker would be adequate at present, he said. Approval in principle is being sought from BCHIS.

The Cowichan Valley, which according to the CMHA has the highest incidence of mental illness in Canada, has no psychiatrist. It is hoped that if a clinic is established, whether part of the present hospital or separate, a psychiatrist would be established to practice in Duncan.

Confusion Over Admissions

Noton said there are seven patients from this area on the waiting list for extended care service. He said there is still a great deal of confusion and misconception about how a person gets on the list for admission.

"Several times a week we get phone calls or letters asking why a certain person has been refused admission to the extended care ward," Noton said. "We can assure you that no one has a priority or is given preference over anyone else. The decision is not made by us."

Noton said a patient and his doctor applied for admission by first submitting an application to an independent screening committee based in Vancouver.

The committee, approved by the government, determines whether the patient is eligible for the $1 a day treatment. If approved, the patient is notified and when an opening occurs he is admitted.

"The committee is completely unbiased and since they decide on all cases throughout the province their criteria is consistent," he said.

The 17 patients in extended care at Cowichan Hospital are from Cobble Hill, Lake Cowichan, Youbou, Shawnigan Lake, Duncan and Cedar.

In other hospital news: Former Duncan mayor Jack Dobson has been appointed chairman of the hospital advisory committee to Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

Tenders for demolition of the old King's Daughters' Hospital will be opened at 2 p.m. Friday with the contract to be let Sept. 19.

A total of $10,000 in B.C. Hydro bonds had matured and the money re-invested in a bank term deposit netting 7½ per cent.

The hospital's air-conditioning system, inoperative most of the summer because of a fault in the mechanism, has been restored to service. Cost of repairs, which were extensive, were covered by insurance.

Additional controls were added.

The hospital has acquired a fifth anesthetic machine for $1,585.

Fishing Extended

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Department of Fisheries announced Tuesday an additional 24 hours of net fishing would be permitted in the open portion of fishing areas 12 and 13 until 6 p.m. today. The areas affected are between central Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Deadheads Even Stopping Emergency Trips—Mayor

DUNCAN—Emergency trips from some islands in the Gulf of Georgia are being cancelled because boat owners are afraid of hitting logs and deadheads, Mayor Jim Quaife said Tuesday.

"You really become aware of the extent of pollution of our navigable waters when people in distress, who rely on their boats for transportation, are afraid to go out on the water."

Quaife returned late Monday from a fishing trip at Rodenda Island between Campbell River and Powell River.

"Logs and deadheads are everywhere," he said.

Some of them were 40 or 50 feet long underwater with just a tip showing.

'SERIOUS LOOK'

"It is getting really dangerous to take a small boat out in that water. We must start taking a serious look at this type of pollution."

Quaife said the recent indictment that Prime Minister Trudeau suggested be clamped on corporation heads and mayors allowing pollution in their areas be extended to premiers of the province as well.

He also suggested anti-pollution education begin in Grade 1 so that students reaching high school age would be aware of their responsibilities to the community.

School Board Picketed By Mother

NANAIMO — A one-woman picket showed up at the Nanaimo school board office Tuesday to protest inadequate school facilities.

Mrs. Ruth Thompson, school rural representative for the Cedar area; picketted for about six hours with a sign that read:

"1. Lack of adequate school buildings, shift classes.

"2. Too large and-or split classes.

"3. Lack of gymnasiums — $10,000,000 in perpetuity to sports tied to tourism but no permission to boards to build gymnasiums. Where gymnasiums exist some used to house academic classes.

"4. Slowness of boards drawing up and department of education approving working drawings for new schools and classrooms."

"My youngest girl has spent half her school life in a gymnasium," said Mrs. Thompson.

"It isn't just my area's school nor the Nanaimo school district. It's all of them throughout British Columbia."

'Color Hike' On Saturday

The junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will start its fall activities on Saturday.

The intermediate section will meet at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a "color hike" at Francis Park.

Unemployment Fraud Brings Jail Sentence

NANAIMO—Clarence Scovil, 28, of Nanaimo has been sentenced to a month in jail for defrauding the Unemployment Insurance Fund of $103.

He was charged with seven counts of making false statements to the commission.

The prosecution stated that from Dec. 1 to March 16, Scovill had been employed part-time by a local moving and trucking firm.

Some weeks he had declared simself unemployed; in other weeks he had under-stated his employment.

Judge Eric Winch said taking money from welfare or unemployment funds, falsely or fraudulently, was a breach of trust.

Council Takes Away Licences From Cabs

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two local companies, operating under the name of Frank's Taxi Ltd., have had their licences revoked.

Municipal solicitor Anthony Sarich said the companies — B & M Cabs Ltd. and Atwater Cabs Ltd. — had consistently disregarded warnings by the council over traffic offences.

A special meeting was called with representatives of the companies Aug. 20 to show cause why their licences should not be cancelled.

Richard Hampton, for the companies, said in may cases they did not know they were breaking the law.

FAILED TO PAY

Sarich said it seemed strange that operators of taxi companies were not aware of traffic bylaws.

He said the companies had infringed traffic bylaws, ignored warnings issued by council and had neglected to pay fines for infringements.

Council decided their licences should be revoked.

Mayor Kenneth McDonald opposed the move. He said he would prefer to put the companies on probation until January, 1970, when new business licences would be issued in the municipality.

Goal Increased

VANCOUVER (CP) — This year's United Appeal campaign in the city has been increased 7.9 per cent from last year to $3,900,000. Appeal executives met Tuesday to begin planning this year's campaign.

1,000 Police Quell Riot

TOKYO (Reuters) — Forty-four students were charged with arson and attempted murder today after police used helicopters, water cannon and tear gas to evict them from two buildings of Waseda University.

More than 80 students were arrested after a fierce five-hour battle during which they hurled Molotov cocktails and rocks at about 1,000 police called in by university authorities.

The two buildings — an 11-storey student hall and an auditorium—were occupied by rival groups of leftist students earlier this week.

One group wants to form a National Association of Students to step up political campaigns for the unconditional return of the U.S.-held island of Okinawa to Japan. The other group opposes the association, mainly because of a leadership dispute.

Steelhead Catch Halved By Mesh Size Curb

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon Fish Commission reported Tuesday that a restriction in the mesh size of commercial fishing nets in the Columbia River this summer resulted in more than a 50 per cent reduction in the normal steelhead catch.

In a report to Gov. Tom McCall, the commission said the 7¼-inch mesh limit imposed during the first two-thirds of the steelhead season resulted in an estimated 7,100 steelhead caught commercially, as opposed to about 16,900 taken with unrestricted nets during a comparable period in the past.

The season ran from July 29 through Aug. 26, with the restriction in force through Aug. 15.

The commission said it lifted the mesh limit during the last week to increase the coho catch, but without the desired results.

Libyan Coup Reminiscent of Egypt

DAMASCUS (AP) — Egypt's Middle East News Agency, MENA, reported Tuesday that the coup d'etat in Libya Monday was made by young army, air force and navy officers who call themselves the Organization of Free Unionist Officers.

In some respects the tactics and personnel that overthrew the government of King Idris were similar to those used by the Egyptian Revolutionary Command Council under Nasser to oust King Farouk in July 1952.

Egypt was among the first governments to recognize the new Libyan regime.

Baghdad radio in Iraq, the first country to recognize the new regime, gave details emerging from Libya. It quoted Iraqi military sources as saying the Libyan coup leader, Col. Saad Eddine Abbou Chouireb, was a graduate of Britain's Sandhurst military school.

The radio said Chouireb later underwent military training in Cairo before he joined the Libyan Army tank corps in the late 1950s.

Chouireb was retired from the Libyan army in 1964 for his progressive nationalist views, the Egyptian agency MENA said, and remained a pensioned officer until he led the coup.

In his first dispatch from Libya since the overthrow of the monarchy Monday, MENA's correspondent in Tripoli said the coup was carried out within hours. Here is a summary of his account:

Troops and tanks from army camps outside Tripoli marched on the capital and surrounded the royal palace, the army and security headquarters and the Libyan broadcasting station building. Soon afterward the rebels were in full control of the capital. Crown Prince Hassan el Reda; Maj. Gen. Senoussi Shamseddin, the army chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Salen ben Talen, the chief of security, were arrested.

At the same time, Benghazi, Libya's second city, joined the revolt. It was then that the coup leaders proclaimed the republic.

DOWN WITH THE KING is the chant of Libyan students in Damascus following junta takeover, as they Tuesday take over the Libyan embassy in Syrian capital, forcing diplomats to flee. They unceremoniously remove portrait of deposed King Idris I, who was taking medical treatment in Turkey at time of coup. (AP Wirephoto)

Junta Halts Army Exercise

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Libya's new military government has asked commanders of the American and British military bases in the country to stop training exercises on Libyan soil, Egypt's Middle East news agency reported from Tripoli today.

The report said the commanders of the U.S. Air Force's big Wheelus base outside Tripoli and of the small British bases at Tobruk and El Adem agreed to comply.

The report strengthened belief in the Middle East that closure of the Western bases would be one of the first aims of the leftist junta.

The Arab world's more radical governments were hurrying to recognize the new leftist regime, strengthening belief that the junta would pull away from the West and join them in a more militant stand against Israel.

Iraq was the first government to recognize the revolutionary council that deposed King Idris I in a bloodless coup Monday. In quick succession came messages of recognition and congratulations from Egypt, Syria, the Sudan and South Yemen. East Germany also joined the parade.

Militant Arab leaders hailed the coup in Libya and welcomed the North African nation, world's fourth largest producer of oil, to the camp of Arab socialism.

Syrian President Noureddin Atassi pledged complete support for the new government and called the coup "a bold step toward freedom and Arab solidarity . . . that hoists the banners of unity and socialism."

Baghdad radio said the leader of the coup, Col. Saad Eddine Abbou Chouireb, was a graduate of Sandhurst, had been trained in Cairo, and joined the Libyan army tank corps in the late 1950s.

The radio said the army retired Chouireb in 1964 for his "progressive nationalist views," but the Moroccan press agency said he was put on early retirement in 1967 after being accused of an anti-royalist plot.

Libya's airports and borders, closed when the coup took place, remained closed today.

Libya to Honor Concessions, Pacts

LONDON (AP) — Libya's new rulers have renewed assurances to foreign nations that they mean to respect all oil concessions, international agreements and other obligations, the British foreign office reported today.

The revolutionary command council has announced it considers foreign powers that have retained their missions in the North African country to have thus accorded recognition of the new Libyan Arab Republic.

A broadcast by the state-controlled radio of Libya at the same time condemned the British government for receiving a representative of ousted King Idris I.

The British foreign office has said, however, that the monarch's envoy, Omar el Shelhi, called Tuesday on Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart at his own request and that "Mr. Stewart did most of the listening."

Informed diplomats reported Shelhi brought a request from the King for British help to restore his throne and to put down the military revolt. The envoy was said to have been turned down.

HELD SPECIAL MEET

A foreign office spokesman told reporters Libya's new assurances relating to international agreements were given Tuesday by a representative of the revolutionary command to a special meeting of foreign diplomats.

The spokesman made plain Britain does not yet accept the revolutionary command's assumption that it has been recognized by the British.

"The matter of recognition is still under consideration," the spokesman said.

Britain and the United States have large oil and military concessions in the country.

Deposed King At Greek Spa

KAMMENA VOURLA (CP) — Deposed King Idris of Libya arrived at this popular central Greek spa today under security precautions seldom seen here.

After a brief welcome by the town authorities, the ailing 79-year-old king and his queen went into seclusion at the Hotel Galini where Idris had reserved 24 rooms for his entourage of 32 members.

The king arrived at the Greek port of Volos by ship from Turkey earlier today and vowed he would return soon to Libya.

Evidence Melts Away

EAST CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Edward J. Newcombe, 24, of Arlington appeared in East Cambridge district court Tuesday on a charge of assaulting patrolman Francis E. McKenna of Arlington with a snowball last Feb. 23.

Newcombe's lawyer approached the bench and said to Judge Edward Viola, "Your honor, I request that the charge be dismissed on the grounds that the evidence has disappeared. In fact you might say it has melted."

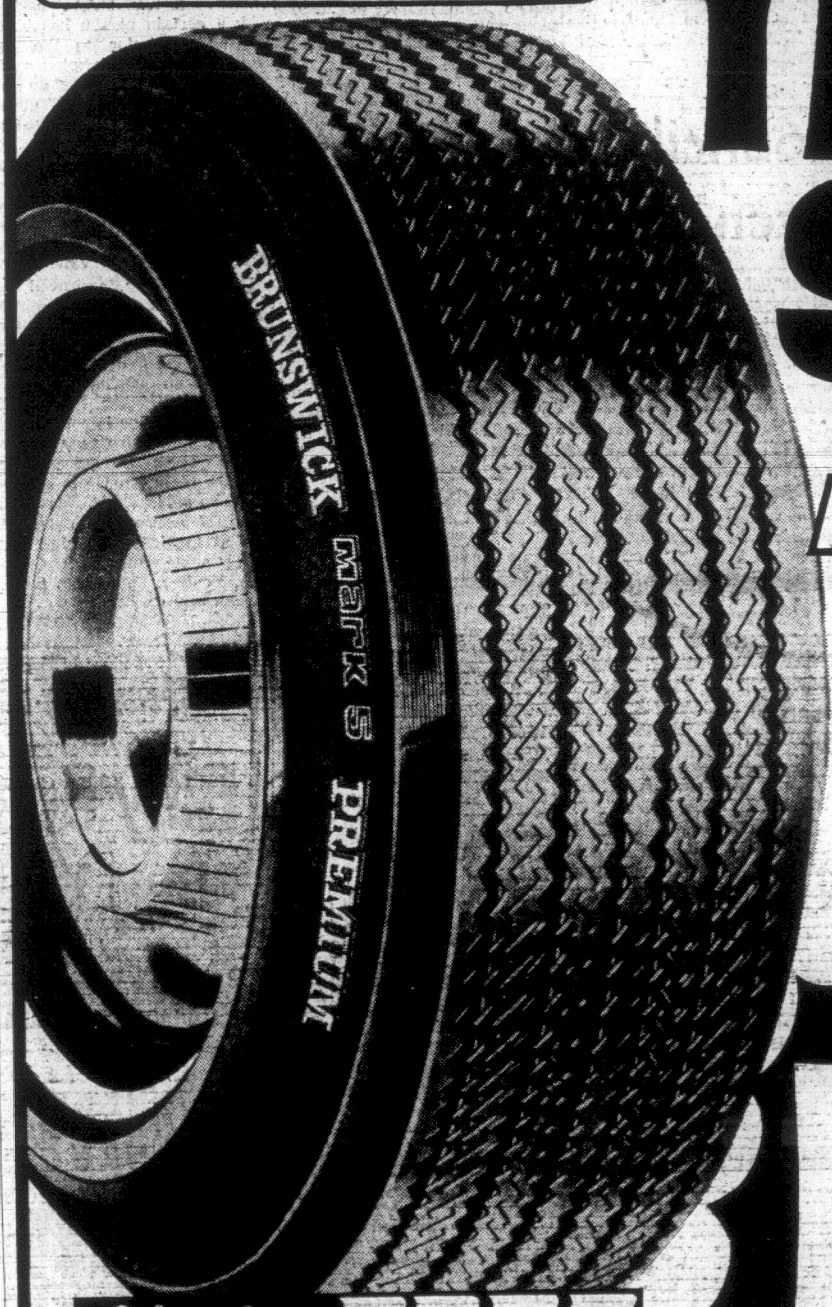

The judge looked down at the defendant, then at the patrolman, and smiled. He dismissed the case.

Prisoner Hangs

BURNABY (CP)—Robert John Pattison, 20, of Ontario, was found hanging dead from a bar in his cell Saturday by a guard making five-minute checks in Oakalla Prison in this Vancouver suburb. He was serving a sentence for breaking and entering and robbery with violence.

U.S. Irish Awakened To Open Purses Wide

SHANNON (AP) — Bernadette Devlin returned to Ireland from the United States today and said she had raised "a great deal of money" for victims of last month's religious warfare in Northern Ireland.

"We awakened in some Irish-American people their need to do something for their old country," she said. "And we succeeded in getting a great deal of money for the needs of those who were burned out during the riots."

The 22-year-old member of British Parliament declined to say how much money she raised, but she said it was being deposited in American cities and would be transferred to Ireland later.

Nor would she say whether it would be transferred to Northern Ireland or the Irish Republic.

"It's not that I do not trust the Stormont (Ulster) government to the extent that they would steal my money," she said, smiling. "But I feel it's best to keep it secret until the time comes."

Miss Devlin promised that the money would not be spent on arms for Northern Ireland's Catholic minority. "I have given my personal guarantee to the people who contributed," she said.

Miss Devlin left New York two days ahead of schedule, cancelling a meeting in Washington with Speaker John McCormack of the U.S. House of Representatives and other congressmen. Her press secretary said she left early because of fatigue and security conditions.

"She has been suffering from extreme fatigue for several days," said Phil Tracy. "In addition to her poor physical condition, security considerations dictated that her return to Northern Ireland be sudden and unannounced."

She spent Tuesday evening at a private fund-raising dinner given by State Assemblyman Frank J. Dodd of New Jersey at his home in West Orange. He is chairman of the Americans for Human Rights in Northern Ireland.

Miss Devlin left the dinner about 7:30 p.m. and took a helicopter from Newark Airport to Kennedy Airport, where she boarded the jetliner.

'Bernadette Using Castro Techniques'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Lawrence Orr, chairman of the Northern Ireland Unionist party group in British Parliament, said Tuesday night that Bernadette Devlin, 22-year-old independent MP for Ulster, represents "an international Marxist group" attempting to stir up revolution with techniques developed by Fidel Castro.

He said her pose as champion of downtrodden Roman Catholics of Northern Ireland is false —she actually wants to eliminate both Catholic and Protestant churches.

She and her cohorts had caused some violence by playing on the people's fears and latent religious frictions, he said at a news conference, but their attempt to start a revolution had failed.

"All the terror and violence was carefully planned in advance by evil people of whom Bernadette Devlin is one. They call themselves the People's Democracy-Militants."

Capt. Orr said recent rioting in Northern Ireland was part of a carefully-laid plan to set off a violent revolution.

Asked why the Ulster government had not arrested Miss Devlin and charged her with treason or with conspiring to start a revolution, Capt. Orr replied:

"She has fled the country. What would happen if she comes back, I cannot say."

Capt. Orr could not be reached for comment after it was learned that Miss Devlin had abandoned her North American fund-raising tour to return suddenly Tuesday night to Ireland.

Kitsilano Fire Deliberately Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said a fire which burned out two shops and damaged three more today in the Kitsilano district of Vancouver was apparently set.

A bakery and delicatessen were burned out. Flames and smoke damaged a florist's shop, a hairdressing salon and a pet shop, killing some animals. No damage estimate was available.

STRIPPERS MISS THEIR FATHERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 7,000 striptease dancers in the United States, on the average, were first-born and received little parental affection, especially from the father.

Two sociologists say they reached that conclusion after studying 119 strippers in nightclubs from Honolulu to New York. They also said they thought the girls began to display their bodies to gain attention they did not receive at home.

●

In most cases, they said, the father usually was away from home.

James J. Skipper Jr. and Charles H. McCaghy, sociology professors at Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, reported on their study Tuesday before 3,000 delegates to the American Sociology Association.

Compared with the average women between ages 20 and 30, they said, strippers are taller, heavier, have bigger hips and "extremely well-developed busts."

'I'm Plugged In With God': WAC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett, fresh from his win in last week's British Columbia provincial election, says he's a success in politics because he is "plugged in with God."

In a weekend interview with reporter Jack Cahill of The Star, he pointed to a television set in his Kelowna home and said it wouldn't work if it wasn't plugged in.

"That's why I'm successful in politics. I'm plugged in with God. If I pulled the plug out, I'd be no good either."

He said his opponents lost because they did not follow the natural laws of the universe.

Bennett explained it this way:

NOTHING NEW

"Those chaps who went to the moon, they didn't create anything new. All the scientists that worked on this, all they found out was some of the great God's laws, and they found out how these laws worked and they saw that these laws always worked, and then these laws will never let you down.

"You might let them down, but they'll never let you down.

"I know what the natural law is. That's how I'm successful in the political campaigns. I know what the natural law is and I work with them."

In Kelowna, the premier said Tuesday his cabinet will remain as it is for the time being because of his party's election success.

The only change will be the earlier announced plan to elevate former highways minister P. A. Gaglardi from minister with portfolio to full cabinet responsibilities.

"All the cabinet ministers were re-elected so there is no problem," Mr. Bennett said. "So for the present time there will be the same cabinet, except that in due course — in due course — Phil Gaglardi will be brought in as a full cabinet minister."

Eight Win Silver Medals

Eight Victoria area students have won silver medals for outstanding achievement in the Toronto Conservatory examinations.

Madeleine Groos (Grade 9), Mrs. Marjory Inglis, (Grade 8) and Fern Chapman, (Grade 6), students of Richard Proudman, won silver medals in the organ category.

Nancy Meredith (Grade 9) and Stephen Calder (Grade 8), students of Jack Kessler, were awarded silver medals for their violin playing. This also makes each of them eligible for awards from the Frederick Harris Scholarship Fund; Nancy will receive $50 and Stephen $40.

Gloria Williams (Grade 6), a student of Mrs. Vera Barclay, and Leslie Powell, (Grade 2), a student of Miss Gladys Pearcy, each sang their way to a silver medal as did Paul Hollands (Grade 6), a speech arts student of Mrs. M. Walker of Cowichan.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BEGGS — In loving memory of "Mom," Nancy Marshall Beggs, who passed away Sept. 3, 1966.
There is a tie death cannot sever.
Love and remembrance like for ever.
—Dearly loved by her son and daughter-in-law, Bert and Rose.

HOFFMANN: In loving memory of my dear husband, father, and grandfather, Stanley Phillips, who passed away September 1, 1968.
—Sadly missed, always remembered. Ethel Mary Hoffmann and family.

MOE — In living memory of my dear husband, Peter L. Moe, who passed away Sept. 3, 1968.
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said come.
And with farewells unspoken
He quietly entered Home.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Martha, and family.

ROCHELEAU—In loving memory of Andy who passed away Sept. 3, 1965.
The face I loved is now laid low,
His living voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine,
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Ever remembered by his loving wife, Toni.

THE BLISSFUL COVE in NORTH SAANICH
Only a few minutes from the SWARTZ BAY FERRY, yet facing due south with an uninterrupted view from the sundeck of the ocean dotted about with ships, small craft and islands. No reminders of the harsh world of commerce here, the property is nearly an acre of seclusion and beauty. The southerly boundary 174 feet, and the beach has a gentle slope of sandy shingle that DOES warm up for swimming, yet collects logs and driftwood for the fireplace. If you make your home here the vegetable garden with its own well and electric pump — is already in top class shape. Dinghy platform and the boat anchorage are there. If you want to enlarge the 1,100 sq. ft. 2 or 3-bedroom home with its polished log interior and ECONOMICAL electric heating, you can — but you don't NEED TO. You could insulate the extra cottage on the point and put a bathroom there, or you could alter the LARGE GARAGE for extra visitors. The only snag with this beautiful property is that all your friends are bound to ask to stay. Main water, hydro and arbutus on site.
THE PRICE $45,000 — Probably worth half as much again in a few years. PERFECT RETIREMENT, SEMI-RETIREMENT, PEACEFUL RETREAT or JUST BLISS, 25 minutes from Victoria.

Strategic, Economic Interests Held by United States in Libya

By RONALD KOVEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Libya represents one of America's largest economic and strategic interests abroad.

Since the closing of the Suez Canal during the Arab-Israeli war in mid-1967, Libya has become the west's most vital single source of Middle East oil.

At its present rate of growth, Libya should become the world's top petroleum exporter in a year or two, replacing Venezuela. Ninety per cent of its production of 3 million barrels a day is U.S.-controlled.

●

American military and economic presence is assumed to have played a role in curbing whatever covetous instincts Libya's two far stronger neighbors, Egypt and Algeria, may have in the under-populated oil kingdom.

Libya serves as a buffer state between Egypt and Algeria. There is a natural line of partition between its two main provinces, Tripolitania in the west and Cyrenaica in the east. Most of the country is a vast desert between the seaside capitals of the two provinces, Tripoli and Benghazi.

It had been assumed that there would be an attempt to close the Algerian-Egyptian nutcraker some day after the eventual death of King Idris, 79, who created the largely artificial unity of the two provinces along with the land-locked province of Fenzan.

●

Libya's high-quality petroleum fuels much of the American and domestic industry in Britain, Italy and West Germany.

In just two years, Libyan oil has drawn abreast and outdistanced Saudi Arabian, Iranian and Kuwaiti oil in importance to west European economies.

Those more traditional Arab suppliers were handicapped by the closing of the Suez Canal. Libya is just a short haul across the Mediterranean from Europe.

A U.S. government estimate of the value of American investments in Libya is "in the neighborhood of $1 billion, "but other sources close to the oil industry say that is definitely on the conservative side and that, depending on the method used to calculate the investment, the $1 billion figure could be raised more than fivefold.

The major U.S. company in Libya is Occidental Petroleum, which produces about 800,000 barrels of crude oil a day. It only went into serious production after the canal closing.

There are 38 other U.S. companies involved, including Esso, Mobil, Marathon and Amerada. The other 10 per cent of the production is British-controlled.

Another major U.S. interest is the huge, strategic Wheelus Air Base. With a vast expanse of desert, it is the last range available for heavy bombing practice by the U.S. air force in Europe.

If Wheelus were abandoned, U.S. fliers in Europe would have to be brought home regularly to stay in practice, an air force spokesman was reported as saying.

Wheelus cost about $100 million to build and is the last remaining U.S. air base in North Africa after the closing of the five bases the United States had in Morocco.

●

Experienced observers of Libya said the army takeover was not necessarily the last word. They noted that the 12,000-man army is roughly matched militarily by the 7,000-man Cyrenaica defence force, a British-trained gendarmerie considered loyal to King Idris personally.

Before being elected king in 1950, he became Emir of Cyrenaica.

Despite the king's friendship with the west, Arab nationalism in his 85 per cent desert kingdom prompted him to back Jordan and Egypt against Israel with $84 million yearly since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Mid-East Influence Of West Now Unclear

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western influence in the Middle East probably will be weakened by the Libyan coup which now possibly aligns the oil-rich desert state more closely with Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

That much appears evident from the scanty initial statements of the shadowy junta and its emphasis on a "revolutionary socialist" regime — words which seem to echo President Nasser's own definition of his Egyptian rule.

These words, of course, may only have been used to reassure and gain the confidence of the anxious Libyan population. But the speed with which Nasser and other Arab states working closely with Nasser recognized the new regime suggests, on balance, that these countries have a warm respect for the new Libyan leaders.

Nasser and the deposed, aging King Idris had a good working relationship but the two were not as close as Nasser desired. Libya used some of her oil wealth to reimburse Nasser for the loss of his Suez canal tolls but Libya did not participate in the 1967 six-day Arab war with Israel.

It was significant that Algerian troops did not get a Libyan land route but had to fly over Libya in going to Egypt's aid.

Now that element of Libyan independence is likely to be washed away by the need of an untried new leadership for support from both its own people and its neighbors.

Western diplomats suggest it is too early to make a judgment on which way the junta may turn but the junta's own appeal appears to be towards the left and the pan-Arabian cause.

This may prove to be another embarrassment for the British government. Britain buys substantial quantities of Libyan oil —which covers about one-fifth of Britain's needs—and supplies Libya with large quantities of arms.

The British argument is that these arms, including an air defence system, are required to discourage encroachment from ambitious Arab states hungering for Libya's wealth.

The possibility now exists that some of these arms may eventually be deployed in some future stages of the Arab-Israeli struggle.

COULD MAKE THREAT

Any enthusiasm for Libyan co-operation in the military struggle may be tempered by the fact that most of Libya's huge wealth comes from oil sales to the West.

The West could threaten market closure but it would be no easy job for the West to find vast alternative supplies quickly and cheaply.

The more evident anxiety, as shown by the oil companies involved, is that the new regime should not stop the oil flow to the West.

The companies have received assurance that there would be no change in oil policy, but that again may be only an initial position. It may take months before the policies and ambitions of the new regime are cemented.

Before the Judge

— Judge William Ostler Tuesday struck a note of despair in his campaign against shoplifting in the city.

"It seems that the more said about shoplifting the less respect there seems to be," he said as three persons appeared before him in court on charges of shoplifting.

And again he said shoplifting is becoming a "pandemic disease" — a phrase he has used before in his frequent condemnations and warnings over this particular offence.

He remanded Aloysius Klamper, 2234 Ida, Frances Felix, 19, and Anne L. Bourne, 18, both of 207-841 Esquimalt Road, to Sept. 9 for presentence report.

Klamper pleaded guilty to stealing a pair of boots valued at $17.97 from the Bay, and the two women pleaded guilty to stealing a leather jacket and a few items of women's clothing from Eaton's.

Edward Evans of the Thunderbird Motel, 600 Douglas Street, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and to assaulting a police officer.

He was remanded until next Tuesday for sentence.

The accused struck Const Brian Bailey on the head when he was placed under arrest.

The police officer said he arrested Evans when the latter was on his way to his parked car on Humboldt. The accused got in his car and had placed his key in the ignition when he was told to get out.

"I had to hold his arm after I had told him he was under arrest three times," the officer said.

He testified a tourist helped him hold the accused until the police wagon arrived.

Two other men pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Surjeet Singh Basi, 20, 1479 Edeware, was fined $350. His licence was also suspended. Thomas A. Haskett, 59, 2877 Heath Road, was sentenced to 21 days in jail.

Several Dead As Hurricane Hits Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Hurricane Francelia remained stationary today in the Gulf of Honduras but its strong winds and heavy rains lashed the coast, killing several persons and causing severe damage.

Francelia was reported between British Honduras and Guatemala, almost in the middle of a coastal triangle formed by parts of Honduras, Guatemala and British Honduras.

As she approached land Tuesday night the hurricane sent strong winds into Honduras near Puerto Cortez and La Ceiba and Puerto Tela and the Bahia Islands. The winds and rain, combined with 10-foot waves caused serious damage on Roatan Island, where several dead and injured were reported.

Damage also was reported in La Ceiba and Puerto Cortez along the coast where nearly 4,000 persons were evacuated to San Pedro Sula.

Highways to the coast were severed. Electric power installations were destroyed. Banana crops also were hit.

Rains fell in most of Honduras, causing floods. In the capital, Tegucigalpa, some slum areas in low parts of the city were flooded by the Rio Grande and Guacerique.

On the Guatemalan side of the coast, Puerto Barrios was hit by strong winds and rains, but it suffered little damage. The government maintained precautionary measures in the area and evacuated 400 persons from the low coastal lands.

Two Flower Shows on Weekend

By HILDA BEASTALL

This weekend local and visiting gardeners will have two flower shows to enjoy of such different character that both should be seen. One is a specialty show for dahlias and early chrysanthemums only, the other is a general fall show of flowers and vegetables.

Hilda

Friday and Saturday in Centennial United Church Hall at 649 Gorge Rd. (near Humber Green), the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society will be staging its annual dahlia and chrysanthemum show.

Even today with so many fine blooms shown each year, a number of gardeners are completely bewildered by the care required to grow the plants for these results.

They find it difficult to believe that the large single-headed blooms are grown on plants started as small cuttings early in the same year.

Pompons and sprays are other types of chrysanthemums. These are not disbudded to a single blossom, but allowed to grow many to a stem.

As with all garden plants, the name of each plant is important, for each one acts and reacts in a different way and the name is the guide to its care.

This show will be open to the public from 2 until 10 p.m. on Friday, and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The 15th annual fall show of Gordon Head Garden Club will be open for visitors from 2 to 9 p.m. on Saturday, September 6.

Just drive out Shelbourne Street to Feltham and turn left on Tyndall Avenue to Gordon Head Community Hall.

You'll love the informality of this fall show, and be amazed at the wide variety of flowers and produce displayed.

Here you will see chrysanthemums and dahlias in company with all the other lovely fall perennials which grow so well on this part of the Island.

Fruits and vegetables are usually excellent at this show, and this year should be no exception.

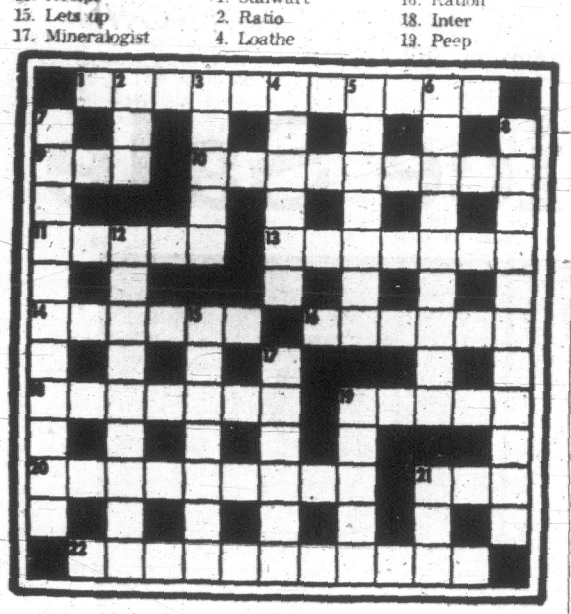

Go to these shows with the idea of asking questions. There are always some of the exhibitors around who like to talk about what they grow, and you will come away with ideas on how to improve your own methods for better results.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Naval Engagements Few, Far Between

By BOB BOWMAN

One of Britain's problems in defending Canada during the War of 1812 was to counter U.S. naval strength on the Great Lakes. It was much easier for the Americans to build and operate ships on the Great Lakes because materials and men were close at hand. It took a year for Britain to get men and supplies to Kingston so Lake Ontario could be defended. Even then there was a good deal of muddling in London. The Admiralty sent kegs of fresh water for the ships evidently under the belief that the water in the Great Lakes was salt!

The commanding officer on Lake Ontario was Admiral Yeo, who had served with Nelson, and he built a fleet of warships capable of fighting the American fleet under Commodore Chauncy. They spent most of their time keeping out of each other's way and the engagements between them were almost comic.

However, there was no comedy on Lake Erie when one-armed Captain Robert Barclay commanded the British fleet. He was defeated by Captain O. H. Perry who announced his victory in a famous U.S. naval message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours." The American naval victory on Lake Erie made it possible for General William Harrison to sweep through the Thames Valley, defeat General Procter and Indian Chief Tecumseh at Moraviantown, and threaten the Niagara Peninsula.

There was also fighting on Lake Huron, but it was more of the hit-and-run variety and had little effect on the outcome of the war. By August, 1814, British naval strength on Lake Huron had been reduced to one vessel, HMS Nancy. She was hiding in the Nottawasaga Riber but was discovered by USS Niagara, Tigress and Scorpion, and destroyed. The British crew escaped by rowing to Michilimackinac, travelling at night.

However, a British unit under Lieutenant Miller Worsley, RN got revenge. It managed to board USS Tigress on the night of Sept. 3, 1814, and capture her. Then on Sept. 6, the same unit was successful in a surprise attack on USS Scorpion. So the Royal Navy regained control of Lake Huron.

'Defective' Food Claims Discounted

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

It bother me to see people constantly crying out that our processed and packaged and canned foods and white bread and pasteurized milk are "defective." It may be that a canned orange juice has lost much of its vitamin C when it was boiled, but most of us, sensible men and women, take some fresh fruit every week, and thus we get all the vitamin C we need. We often eat some berries or a piece of melon or a tomato or an apple or an orange.

As people should know, in the years around 1500, thousands of sailors died of a disease called scurvy, which was due to a lack of the vitamin C that is found in raw fruits and fruit juices. The poor sailors had to live largely on salt pork and hard tack.

Curiously, when some early explorers spent much time in the Arctic, many of them died of scurvy because in that frozen land there is neither fruit nor vegetable nor salad. The great Arctic explorer, Dr. Stefansson, had the good sense to ask how it was that the Eskimos, who never saw a fruit or vegetable or salad, never got scurvy, while the the explorers got it and died of it. The answer that Dr. Stefansson found was that the Eskimos eat much of their meat raw.

★ ★ ★

Interesting was the fact that when the Spaniards conquered Mexicans were doing. Many the cooked beans as the Mwxicans were doing. Many of the Spaniards died of scurvy: while the Mexicans lived on happily. Why? Because the Mexicans consumed chili peppers (full of vitamin C), while the Spaniards left chili out of their diet.

As one of America's wise dietitians said years ago, when an explorer has to live on the local diet, he had better live on every bit of it, because if he doesn't he may become ill and he may die.

Here is an important fact. I have practiced medicine for 54 years, seeing thousands of patients, and I have never been able to find a patient with scurvy. Evidently the North American diet contains enough vitamin C.

In the Orient, each year thousands of people die of beriberi, which is a disease due to a lack of vitamin B1. The trouble is that so many of the Orientals live almost entirely on rice, and the rice has had the vitamin-containing hull removed. I have read that if the Orientals would only eat their rice with the hull left on, they would not suffer from beri-beri. For years I looked for a person suffering from beri-beri, but never found one.

Years ago when I heard food faddists raving at our stupidity in using white bread, I said to them, "Ir I were living on almost nothing but bread like you, I would prefer to have it made of whole wheat, but bread is only a small part of my diet; also, I put butter on it, and every day I drink a glass of milk, thus getting vitamins A and D. Perhaps once a week I eat some liver sausage, which contains a number of important dietary items. Also each week I eat 3 or 4 eggs which contain all of the important chemicals needed for the development of a chicken.

As, through the years, I have watched North Americans growing, each decade, bigger, taller, stronger and more athletic, I have been unable to get excited about "our inadequate diet."

Long years ago when my mother was feeding me and my four brothers and sisters, no one had heard of a vitamin, but all of us five children grew taller and stronger than our parents. Evidently, our food could not have been deficient, even if my mother knew nothing of vitamins. Later, when my wife and I raised four children, they all grew tall and strong and athletic. One of my sons grew to be 6 ft. 2¼ in. tall and became a splendid athlete. Evidently his diet was not defective, although I had not made any effort to add vitamins to it.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The trump echo is a play whereby a "high-low" signal is made within the trumps suit. Whenever a defender plays high-low in trumps, he is stating: "Partner, I started with three trumps." The practicability of this echo can be observed in the deal presented below.

Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♡ A K
◇ 8 7 4 2
♣ K Q J 10

WEST
♠ 6 4 3
♡ 5 4 2
◇ 9 6 5 3
♣ 2

EAST
♠ A 8
♡ J 10 9 3
◇ Q 10

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 10 5
♡ Q 8 7
◇ A K
♣ 7 6 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

East won the opening lead with the ace of clubs and promptly returned a club, West ruffing with the four-spot. West came back with the diamond five, and East's queen was captured by South's ace. South then laid down the king of spades, East winning the trick with his ace.

Had East-West not been familiar with the trump echo, East would now have had a problem as to what to play back. If West possessed the king of diamonds, a diamond return would enable West to take the setting trick. But if West didn't have the diamond king, and had another trump, a club lead would be ruffed by West, for the setting trick.

East had no problem. When West had ruffed a club (at trick two), he had done so with the four of trumps. When declarer subsequently led the king of trumps (at trick four), West had followed suit with the three-spot. Thus West's "high-low" trump echo showed that he had been dealt three trumps originally. So, at trick five, East played back another club, which West ruffed with the six-spot. Declarer was now down one.

It should be noted that if East had played back a diamond instead of a club at trick five, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. He would have won the diamond return with his king, picked up the adversely held trumps, and claimed his contract. Unfortunately for declarer, the defenders were just too good.

Incidentally, if there are still those bridge players who feel that all that is needed to be a winner is plain "common sense," this deal is submitted in refutation.

Japanese Hawks Press for More Defence Expenditure

TOKYO (UPI) — Not all Japanese are pleased that this prospering nation spends a smaller percentage of its gross national product for defence than just about any other nation in the world.

Predictably, much of the grumbling comes from weapons manufacturers and other industries that would stand to profit from a defence buildup.

Position Supported

What is new — and disturbing to Japanese doves — is that hawkish sentiments in regard to defence spending are being expressed more boldly. Some fear a post-war version of a Japanese military-industrial complex.

Japan spends less than 1 per cent of its GNP, currently the world's third highest, on defence, a percentage topped by just about every other nation in the world, including Switzerland.

Kenzo Okubo, president of the Japan Ordnance Association, has urged the government to boost the ratio of defence expenditures to at least 4 per cent of the GNP, the same level as in France.

It should be noted that Okubo also is president of Mitsubishi Electric Corp., one of a number of firms that comprise the Mitsubishi group, the undisputed leader in armaments production in Japan.

The arms makers are not alone in their contention that Japan should spend more for defence. Their position is supported, at least partially, by Keidanren (the federation of economic organizations), the most authoritative voice of Japanese businessmen.

U.S. in Favor

Keidanren President Kogoro Uemura believes that Japan should maintain the security arrangements set forth by the U.S.-Japan security treaty and gradually increase its own defence capability.

"This is an international duty of Japan," Uemura told a recent Keidanran general meeting, "and it is closely related to the future economic growth of the nation."

One factor driving the Japanese financial community toward the defence industry is the fear that Japan's current star industries — automobiles, electric appliances, steel and petrochemicals — may falter in the near future.

The United States has repeatedly urged Japan to shoulder more responsibility for its own defence and has hinted that it would be easier to return Okinawa to Japanese control if Japan demonstrates that it is fully capable of defending the important Pacific base.

One of the more outspoken hawks in regard to defence spending is Takashi Sakurada, president of Nikkeiren, the Japan Federation of Employers' Associations.

Sakurada recently reminded a Nikkeiren general meeting that Japan spends only 5 to 7 per cent of its national budget for defence.

"Is Japan able to assure security by itself for transportation on the high seas or for undersea development projects?" he asked, adding that Japan is greatly dependent on imports of raw materials from overseas countries.

Based on Need

"Isn't Japan almost powerless from this point of view?"

Certainly not all members of the financial and business community favor spending more money for defence. One of the doves is Kazutaka Kikawada, director of the Japan Committee for Economic Development and president of Tokyo Electric Power Company.

He considers economic cooperation with other countries, through foreign aid, more important to Japan's future than a defence buildup.

And many spokesmen in government appear to be trying to curb the mounting demand for more defence spending. Finance Minister Takeo Fukuda believes the ratio of defence spending to GNP should be held at the current level. He expects the GNP to continue to grow, thus providing adequate funds for defence. He fears a sudden increase in defence expenditures could damage the growing national economy.

Freeloader Charge

Many government officials, and some in the defence agency, say defence spending should be based solely on need and not on GNP.

Masayoshi Ohira, minister of international trade and industry, thinks Japan should invest in industries of the future such as aircraft, atomic power, space development, electronics and ocean development. But Ohira also believes the nation should boost its defence spending in order to avoid the charge that Japan is a freeloader.

It is a fact that Japan has achieved its enormous economic growth and post-war prosperity under the protection of a nuclear umbrella bought and paid for by the United States.

But it is also clear that the climate of public opinion in Japan these days will make it difficult to achieve signiifcant increases in military expenditures.

Many Japanese oppose having any military forces at all. Among them are members of the Japan Socialist Party, second only to the ruling and conservative Liberal Democratic Party in political clout, which advocates a national policy of unarmed neutrality.

Despite louder demands for more defence spending, fears of a military-industrial complex seem premature in a nation that has constitutionally outlawed war as a means of settling disputes.

Few doubt that Japan, which builds more and larger ships than any nation in the world, could have a formidable navy if it wanted one.

LECTURER LOSES COUNCIL GRANT

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Gray, political science lecturer dismissed for disrupting meetings of McGill University governing bodies, has lost his $5,500 Canada Council grant.

Frank Milligan, the council's assistant director, said in an interview today that the 24-year-old Gray has advised the council he finds too restrictive a council requirement that he register at Oxford University by next January.

The council decided in mid-August that the grant would be withdrawn unless Gray met that deadline.

Milligan said the decision was based on opinions of Gray's academic supervisors that he should not delay beyond then in going to Oxford to complete the final draft of a Ph.D thesis.

'Yes, We Have No Bahamas'

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — Marshall McLuhan got up there in a horseblanket-type jacket, ripped off a few McLuhanisms and a few bars of songs in a cracked baritone and had them eating out of his hand.

No one quite understood Toronto's sage of communications—as usual—but everyone appeared happy Tuesday night to see him get the British Institute of Public Relations Presidential Medal for 1969.

IPR President Herbert Lloyd said that whether you understand McLuhan or not, you can't ignore the fast-talking pop philosopher of the media.

The professor slipped his audience of 100 a few jokes—one sex-fiend story, one borrowed from W. C. Fields—and obliged them with the expected McLuhan pun.

This was about what he did after he had bought his startling jacket in the Bahamas last year. He vocalized on how he went around Nassau drinking places singing "Yes, we have no Bahamas."

THE JOKES HELP?

"By telling a lot of jokes," he explained, "I help people who can't understand what I say seriously."

When he got away from wisecracks, he left the Britons looking puzzled, as with his philosophy of the miniskirt. There was a strange relationship between it and high-rise buildings and the two seemed "moving away from old hardware and steam engines."

Later, over cocktails, he elaborated, after a fashion: The miniskirt was one of the great inventions of the ages because for the viewer it had eliminated the need for a strong breeze.

McLuhan, who has been proclaiming for a long time that the printed word is dead, also announced that he is getting out the print form and is in the process of making a film about his home town of Toronto called A Place to Squeeze. This let him bring in a subway joke.

"Of course," he qualified, "I won't be quitting print until I've finished the books I'm working on. Six or eight, I think."

More Jobs Needed

MONTREAL (CP) — A shortage of suitable employment for the world's workers "will constitute a greater threat to world peace than even the atomic bomb," Kalmen Kaplansky, director of the Canadian branch of the International Labor Office, said Tuesday. Addressing members of a service club, Mr. Kaplansky said work will have to be found for 280,000,000 people who will enter the world labor market between 1970 and 1980.

'Workers' Island or Tourist Paradise?'

WILLEMSTAD (AP) — Voters will decide Friday whether Curacao should become a "workers' island" or try to regain its image as a Caribbean paradise for tourists and investors.

The image was shattered three months ago when labor unrest exploded in savage rioting that destroyed much of the island's business district, sent tourists rushing home, forced parliament to dissolve and a government call for new elections.

Curacao and six other islands make up the Netherlands Antilles. They are ruled by a council of ministers and have some measure of autonomy, but The Netherlands names the governor and is responsible for security and defence.

Of 97,000 eligible voters in the Antilles, about 64,000 live on Curacao. Friday's election is for representatives in the council of ministers, or parliament—12 from Curacao, eight from the island of Aruba, one from the island of Bonaire and one from the Windward Islands.

Observers see the election as a fight between the establishment politicians and a leftist political organization known as the Frente Obrero-Labor Front.

The establishment is composed of the Democratic party government of former premier Ciro Kroon, which resigned after the May upheaval, three opposition coalitions on Curacao and single opposition parties on the other islands.

The Frente Obrero is running seven candidates on Curacao, advocating a socialist form of government with "everything for the workers." Its supporters wear an olive green uniform to show they belong to the "working class," but some critics say they are trying to emulate the revolutionaries of Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba.

RIOTS AFTER RUMOR

Police officials said the olive green caps of Frent Obrero members were much in evidence at a May 30 labor demonstration against a Shell Oil Co. contractor. Rioting erupted after a report that one of the front's leaders, Wilson Godett, had been shot.

Two persons were killed, 150 injured and more than $20,000,000 worth of damage was reported in the central business district of Curacao before 300 Dutch marines restored order.

Amador Nita, who is leading the front's electoral campaign, claims the Frete Obrero has 4,000 members. But establishment politicians say this is vastly exaggerated. They claim the front has little chance of gaining power through elections.

Report False Says University

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Howard E. Petch, president of the University of Waterloo, expressed strong objection today to parts of a recent study on American influence at the university.

He was referring to a report sponsored by the Montreal Committee on De-Canadianization of the Universities, a group of about 100 professors and graduate students.

The report was prepared by Robin Mathews, 37, a professor of English at Carleton University in Ottawa, and two University of Toronto graduate students. It termed the Waterloo situation a "blueprint for cultural genocide."

Dr. Petch, away on holidays when the report was released last months, said in a statement:

"The Mathews document . . . does nothing to help solve the very real problem of maintaining a healthy Canadian balance at our universities.

"It contains so many inaccuracies, misleading statements, innuendoes and rumors that a complete rebuttal is possible only on a line-by-line basis.

"I shall not attempt this here but I do state categorically that there is not one shred of evidence to suggest that the University of Waterloo has been operating to the detriment of Canada, Canadians or our students."

The report had claimed that the university's "power is effectively in the hands of non-Canadians, and American professors are teaching American attitudes while ignoring Canadian opinions and problems."

GUNS AT THE READY, police in Hartford, Conn., use cruisers as shields as they check for snipers in buildings on Main Street as disorders continue despite curfew. Sniper Fire Kills Girl, Policeman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A white policeman and a 15-year-old Negro girl were shot to death Tuesday night in an outbreak of sniper fire in Camden, N.J. Sniping incidents with no reported injuries recurred in Hartford, Conn., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Camden victims were Patrolman Rande J. Chandler, 22, and Rose McDonald, both apparently hit by the same volley during the second night of disorders in the south New Jersey city of 117,000 near Philadelphia.

Police said Chandler was one of several patrolmen assigned to clear debris that had been thrown into a street. As the patrolman approached, more trash, rocks and bottles began flying and then the shots rang out.

In the same predominantly Negro section Monday night a melee broke out when police tried to break up a fight among a number of juveniles. Policemen were attacked with fists and rocks by the youths.

In Fort Lauderdale, sniper fire crackled again today as National Guard troops and police calmed but failed to stop the violence that has gripped a predominantly Negro area three successive nights.

Police, joined by 100 guardsmen, patrolled to enforce an overnight curfew banning all but emergency personnel from streets in a 200-block area.

They met scattered looting, rock throwing, firebombing and the sporadic sniping but police said the disturbances were less violent than on Sunday and Monday nights, when 113 persons were arrested.

Forty-seven persons were arrested Tuesday night, police said. An estimated 75 persons have been injured in the disorders that began when a Negro woman was shot and wounded as police were breaking up an auto drag race.

Police and 100 state troopers in Hartford used tear gas and wholesale arrests to restore calm Tuesday night after an outbreak of arson and shooting in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican North End section.

More than 70 stores have been burned or looted and a score of persons, including firemen and policemen, injured in the disturbances which erupted Monday night. Arrests totalled about 200.

City Manager Elisha Freedman said he would decide today whether to continue a citywide overnight curfew—the second such ban for the city in two months.

Mayor Ann Uccello ordered residents of the Connecticut capital off the streets from sunset to sunrise for two nights in June because of violence in the North End.

The curfew at first failed to control the crowds of destructive teenagers and young adults Tuesday night but the arrests of scores of persons and a light rain brought the situation under control by 11 p.m.

B.C. Cool To Ottawa Water Bill

Pollution Debated

Resources Minister Ray Williston made clear today there is still a long way to go before British Columbia and the federal government can get together on the mechanics of controlling water pollution.

He spoke at a joint press conference with federal Minister Without Portfolio Otto Lang after the two had discussed the proposed Canada Water Act, which will be introduced into Parliament in the fall.

Williston indicated his earlier stand that the proposed act would create unnecessary confusion in water pollution control has been moderated only slightly.

He said he will need a great deal more clarification before he can even present a clear-cut synopsis of federal proposals to the provincial cabinet.

GOALS THE SAME

Asked if the federal deal would prove more useful in fighting pollution than would the province's existing laws, Williston replied:

"To be perfectly honest and forthright, the answer is no."

But Williston said there is absolutely no difference of opinion on goals between federal and provincial water pollution control programs.

Asked if there is any point in B.C. and Ottawa continuing discussions, Williston replied that there are many international and inter-provincial rivers in the province, which would require inter-governmental co-operation.

Lang, the federal minister in charge of water resources, said the basic intention of the Canada Water Act would be that federal and provincial governments should work together.

He said the bill will contain provision for unilateral federal action where provinces are lagging, but added: "I consider that inconceivable in prospect."

Lang described the talks this morning as "a base for future action," and agreed with Williston

HANOI HINTING DEADLOCK OVER

PARIS (WP)—North Vietnam hinted Tuesday that rapid and massive withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam might get the stalled peace talks off dead centre.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator, said, "If President Nixon continues to withdraw troops rapidly and in considerable numbers we will examine this factor and take it into account."

His remarks constituted the first indication that Hanoi would consider anything less than the total and unconditional withdrawal of the half million troops in South Vietnam.

By the same token, he hinted that North Vietnam would no longer insist on its other previously intransigent demand that the present Saigon regime be replaced by a provisional coalition government.

Left unanswered was whether his remarks to reporters at a North Vietnamese reception represented the long-hoped-for breakthrough at the deadlocked peace talks or rather a propaganda ploy designed to increase pressure on Washington.

Ho Reported Near Death

HONG KONG (CP)—Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating, monitors reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing." Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

In both Washington and Paris rumors spreads that the North Vietnam leader was already dead.

Diplomats speculated that the communique on the illness may have been issued to prepare the way for announcement of his death.

Ho's illness was announced in a communique which said:

"Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well. . . . A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

Another communique, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris remarked: "All I can say is what is obvious—the president is an old man."

STRUGGLE WILL RESULT

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

Ho Chi Minh has been a patriot for 70 years and a Communist for 50.

Israel Strikes Arab Gun Posts

From AP - Reuters

Israeli jets roared across two frontiers today, hitting Arab gun emplacements in Jordan and Lebanon. To the south, Israeli and Egyptian guns again traded fire across the Suez Canal.

In Beirut, Lebanon, knowledgeable sources said the action was "big."

The Israeli planes first streaked across the River Jordan to retaliate for an Arab bazooka attack on an early morning border patrol. The Israeli army said they bombed a former police station in Jordan three miles south of the Sea of Galilee that was occupied by guerrilla gunners.

A spokesman in Aman, Jordan said Israeli tanks and mortars today fired in the area for 35 minutes. Then two Israeli planes machine-gunned the area and dropped napalm bombs, he said. He said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Later in the day Israeli jets crossed the Lebanese border to hit sources of Arab rocket fire that killed two Israelis and wounded four in Kiryat Smona Tuesday night. The army said two waves of planes pounded three Al Fatah guerrilla bases on the western slopes of Mount Hermon in a half-hour strike.

GROUND FIRE

Lebanese ground fire hit back at the intruding planes in both cases, it said, but did not report any Israeli losses.

Israel claims Palestinian guerrillas are based in the Hermon area from which they stage bombing attacks and hit-and-run raids on settlements in Upper Galilee.

A similar Israeli attack two weeks ago resulted in a condemnation from the UN Security Council, which also deplored all armed activity in the area, a reference to guerrilla action.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, reports circulated that Secretary-General U Thant had requested Syria to release the two Israeli men still being held after the hijacking of an American airliner last Friday.

DUBCEK
. . . reform leader

Czechs Expected To Purge Dubcek

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Informed sources said today the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee will meet Thursday or Friday. The session is expected to purge Alexander Dubcek and other leaders of the 1968 reform movement from party posts.

Pro-Russian Communists today stepped up a campaign to have Dubeck consigned to political oblivion. Vasil Bilak, a powerful member of the ruling Communist party presidium, called on the former party chief to confess his mistakes and denounce the real masterminds of the reform policy crushed last year by Russia.

Bilak also said that the reforming Communists whom Dubcek led last year at one point received a suggestion of the possibility of breaking relations with the Soviet Union.

His comments, in an interview published by the Communist party daily newspaper Rude Pravo, continued what appeared to be a careful setting of the stage for a central committee meeting this month.

Observers expect the meeting will strip Dubcek of his presidium and central committee posts, and possibly also of the speakership of the federal legislature. He lost the Communist party leadership in April.

Another conservative, Volem Novy, called Tuesday for the removal of Dubcek from his party jobs and also the removal from the central committee of reformer Josef Smrkovsky, the deputy leader of the National Assembly.

Novy spoke to party functionaries in the Bohemian town of Ceske Budjovice.

Protestants Hit Belfast Traffic

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant extremists brought traffic chaos to Belfast today by building and manning a huge barricade across the M-1 motorway outside the Northern Ireland capital.

The extremists said the barricade was a protest because barricades in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast had not been pulled down.

No move was made by the Royal Ulster Constabulary or British troops to remove either the new barricades or any of the existing ones.

Belfast corporation—the city council—has asked for talks with Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, British military commander in Northern Ireland, and with police representatives.

Aim is to discuss how to ensure law and order in the city and try to get it back to normal after the recent inter-religious rioting and fighting.

Belfast civic leaders said they are worried about continuing complaints of attacks on individuals and threats to property.

GAS SAID HARMLESS

Meanwhile, three British medical experts categorically declared after an investigation in Londonderry that the CS tear gas which the police used in the riots there caused no illness among healthy people.

They noted, however, that after the gas, diarrhea was prevalent, with 60 to 100 cases among babies.

"That is the kind of thing that in normal circumstances would mean action stations for doctors all around the place," said Sir Harold Himsworth, former president of the British Medical Research Council.

CIRCUMSTANCES

"In normal circumstances, 10 per cent of them would be very ill and you would probably get some deaths. We have looked at this and there has not been a single admission to hospital for a baby with diarrhea."

Himsworth's fellow experts are Prof. Robert Thompson, Middlesex University Hospital, and Prof. Anthony Dornhorts, St. George's Medical Hospital, London.

They were appointed by the British home office to check complaints that the reputed 1,000 tear gas canisters used by police in the 36 hours of Londonderry rioting made Roman Catholics in the Bogside area violently ill.

Village Emergency Created by Blasts

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency was declared today in this western New York village as a series of underground explosions rumbled through its downtown area.

The blasts were caused by more than 8,000 gallons of gasoline which spilled into the sewer systems after a collision involving a tanker truck and an automobile. The explosions did no noticeable damage above ground.

The driver of the automobile was killed in the crash, but the truck driver escaped serious injury. Burning gasoline from the accident splashed on four houses and they burned to the ground, leaving 17 persons homeless.

Residents of the village of some 3,500 east of Buffalo were asked to shut off electricity, open doors and windows and refrain from smoking.

Th' provincial gov'mint might do better against pollution if it c'd git over th' idee thet Ottawa is a form of it.

Heirs to Keep North Fighting

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP)—The question of who will succeed Ho Chi Minh, a perennial subject of speculation among Asia speciaiists, has been given fresh urgency by official Hanoi indications that North Vietnam's president is ill and dying.

But his death, when it comes, is unlikely to bring about dramatic changes in North Vietnamese policies and practice, at least within the immediate future.

Uncle Ho, the Living Legend

For Ho retired long ago to the role of arbiter, leaving the direction of the country to a collegium of younger associates. This move served him in two principal ways.

It permitted him, in contrast to contemporaries like Mao Tse-Tung and Charles de Gaulle, to protect his enormous prestige as "Uncle" Ho, the living legend. Thus he was able to shift the blame to his subordinates for such blunders as an abortive land reform or the unpopular purge of intellectuals a decade ago. At the same time, his delegation of authority gave Hanoi a degree of institutional stability and experience unparalleled elsewhere in Southeast Asia. This partly assured North Vietnam's survival under the intense pressures of U.S. bombing.

As long as the war in the South continues, it seems probable that their passionate

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1969 —PAGE 13

WAITING THEIR TURN to be unloaded, trollers and skippers rest alongside Ogden Point jetties. Packing company staffers were kept busy as the unusually high number of fishing boats came in to unload their catches. Many of the skippers said they had forsaken salmon fishing for tuna because a change in ocean conditions had brought the warm current closer than usual to shore. Fisheries officials agreed the warm current which the tuna needs (with temperatures of more than 60 degrees) had moved much further north than usual. At right, troller fisherman Thomas Russell relaxes as packing company worker George Makow sends albacore tuna from Russell's Gail Kay on its journey over the conveyor belt. Salmon-Hungry Fleet Hits Tuna Bonanza

BERG
. . . heading back

Ogden Point looked like a watery version of the corner of Douglas and Yates this morning as an armada of trollers unloaded.

A packing company official said the invasion is the result of a tuna catch.

"Many of these boats normally call in at Vancouver but with the tuna run they're stopping off here first."

He estimated that the 20-odd boats would unload about 100,000 pounds before 5 p.m. today.

Although most of the boats had holds filled with tuna, others were loaded with salmon. One had 7,000 pounds of salmon aboard.

Most of the troller fishermen said they were catching tuna to make up for poor salmon catches.

Thomas Russell of Campbell River, with 20 years commercial fishing to his credit, said he'd fished tuna for the last three years.

• • •

"We're now getting tuna runs like those off California and Oregon 15 years ago. The reason is that the blue water warm current is getting closer to the shore as ocean conditions change."

In from a 10-day trip, he said he filled his holds 50 miles off Tofino. He plans two more trips before the season ends.

Brian Berg and Norm Egan of Nanaimo were less fortunate. Out a week, gale-force winds forced them to abandon fishing after four days. They had "about three tons" of tuna aboard their 42-foot Western Standard.

Berg said after repairs he would make another trip. During the storm Western Standard lost two stabilizers and broke rigging and stays.

• • •

Berg estimated that about half the troller fleet is currently fishing tuna.

Berg figured he'd call it quits after the next trip because the equinox has started "and that means bigger and more unpredictable gales."

An official estimated that $1 million dollars worth of tuna was landed at Ogden Point last year.

Forecasts are for a bigger catch this year.

M. P. Houghton, chief of the fisheries conservation and protection branch in Vancouver, explained:

"The warm current that often stays around California and Oregon has moved further north this year along our coast. When this happens our fishermen can expect to get catches similiar to those further south."

He added that the season would last only a few weeks.

SEVEN FLAGS DISAPPEAR

City police are investigating theft of seven flags on Yates Street.

They were stolen from the north side canopy over the sidewalk in the 700 block.

Belonging to the block's merchants, they included Canadian, British Columbia and U.S flags, worth $270. The poles were left behind.

Crash Injures Five

Five persons were injured when a car smashed into a guard ramp and plunged into Goldstream early this morning.

All are reported to be in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Names of passengers and driver are being withheld until next-of-kin have been contacted by RCMP.

Police said the accident occurred at 1 a.m. at "suicide corner" at the bottom of the Malahat near the Goldstream Park entrance.

SEARCH FOR MEN PRESSED

The search for two fishermen missing off Sooke since Monday afternoon resumed at dawn today.

An RCMP spokesman said a police vessel and a Department of Transport helicopter searched the area all Tuesday. The two men, whose identities have not been released, are from the Victoria area.

The spokesman said a 12-foot aluminum skiff was found in the area Tuesday afternoon, "but there was nothing in it to give us any indication of what might have happened."

Loffmark To Meet Wallace

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today he wants to meet the new Oak Bay MLA, Dr. G. Scott Wallace, — and is ready to listen to the physician's often critical views on government health policies.

Loffmark was attempting to arrange the meeting today.

He said he welcomes the outspoken views Wallace put forward during his successful campaign as Social Credit candidate in Oak Bay.

"I think he is competent and sincere and these are the only tests that really matter," said Loffmark.

SEWAGE TALK

The health minister particularly wants to discuss Wallace's suggestions for sewage treatment and planning for hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria Regional District.

"Dr. Wallace is very close to the operational side of hospitals and he will be a most welcome source of advice to me in my work with the Capital Regional Hospital District."

"I'm sure he enjoys the confidence of the medical profession."

Loffmark said the "whole strength of a political party depends on its willingness and ability to admit new members to its council and to listen to what they are saying."

VOTE SOON

He said he hopes the question of acute care hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria area will be put to the people soon.

There had been "healthy competition" among hospitals for new facilities.

Wallace, an Oak Bay alderman, met council Tuesday and asked for a motion on whether he should resign or wait until the municipal term ends in December. Council unanimously voted in favor of his continuing as an alderman.

Region Facing Crisis As 3 Mayors Retiring

By JIM HUME

The retirement of three Greater Victoria mayors in December may force the Regional District and the Regional Hospital District into a year of crisis.

North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming, vice-chairman of both boards, made the statement this morning after being informed of the three-fold retirement plans.

Stepping down this year are Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt; Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria and Mayor Fred Hawes, Oak Bay.

All hold key positions on the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board.

Bryant announced his retirement from civic politics this morning.

Stephen has repeatedly stated since his election in 1966 that he would retire in 1969.

Hawes, this morning, says "it was a little early to say, but at this point the answer is no. I shall not be seeking re-election."

The retirements, says Cumming, "will leave the regional district government flying high in the air.

'MUCH HARDER'

"The loss of Bryant as chairman of finance in a crucial year is going to make it very difficult for a newcomer to take over.

"Next year was going to be a tough year anyway, with a huge acute-care-bed hospital referendum scheduled to go to the people in the late spring. It will be that much harder now."

Estimated cost of the referendum has been set at between $40 and $50 million.

"I don't know what the answer is," Cumming added. "But the retirement of three key members of two regional district boards is going to leave some big holes to fill.

Cumming, vice-chairman of both regional boards, said he wouldn't mind stepping out of the political arena himself.

"But there are too many vital things to be done, too many details to tidy up," he said. "I feel obliged to run again, to stay in office if the people permit me, so that the objectives we have worked so hard for during the past four or five years can be cleared up."

Bryant's decision to call it quits will bring to an end close to 20 years of service by the Bryant family in Esquimalt.

James "Jimmy" Bryant, the mayor's father, served on council for 16 consecutive years, his last year on council with his son as mayor.

Mayor Bryant is concluding his fourth year in office.

THIRD YEAR

Stephen is completing his third year. He took office in 1966 following the death of Mayor A. W. Toone. He said then, he intended to hold office for no more than two terms.

Hawes was a councillor in Oak Bay before being elected mayor in 1967 to succeed Allan Cox.

With three mayors stepping down, Mayor Hugh Curtis in Saanich remains to seek re-election in the winter polls.

Curtis, scheduled to move from first vice-president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to president in September, has stated that he will definitely seek another term in office.

LAW PRACTICE

Bryant said his retirement, at least on a temporary basis, was brought about by the necessity to spend more time on his law practice.

In addition to serving as the mayor of Esquimalt Bryant was chairman of the regional district finance committee and of the executive committee for the regional hospital district.

Stephen has been chairman of the regional district board and the regional hospital district board since January. He succeeded Curtis to that office.

Hawes is chairman of the sewage and garbage disposal committee for the district government.

In addition to the critical hospital issues facing the regional government in 1970, the retirement of the three mayors could bring to a head the always present, but never faced, differences between urban and rural representatives on the board.

URBAN CONTROL

Since its inception, the chairman and key committee members have been from the urban municipalities.

With three new mayors taking office, all newcomers to regional government ways, the question is already being posed: "Who will succeed Stephen as chairman of the two main boards?"

Curtis would be the logical choice, say insiders, but he has already served a three-year stint and, with the added duties as president of the UBCM, would have difficulty in finding time for the added burdens of office.

SAANICH MAN CHARGED IN CAR DEATH

A 21-year-old Saanich man was charged with criminal negligence Tuesday in Princeton court after a traffic death Monday near the interior British Columbia community.

Charged was Marlin Stanley Hurst, 3281 Shelley. He was remanded to Sept. 24.

The accident, which occurred on the southern Trans-Canada Highway 17 miles west of Princeton, killed 67-year-old Philip Lindeman of Chilliwack.

Record Price For Simcoes

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments in James Bay have been sold for $4,250,000 to Amon Investments, a Vancouver company.

Wall and Redekop Realty of Vancouver, which handled the transaction, said it is the largest apartment sale through a real estate broker in British Columbia. Seller was Norol Developments of Vancouver.

The same real estate company recently handled the $2,750,000 sale of the Princess Patricia apartments.

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments are at 440 and 450 Simcoe Street.

The twin 13-storey towers contain 293 suites and parking for 220 cars. Rents range from $120 to $162 a month for one-bedroom suites and from $160 to $205 a month for two-bedroom suites.

When they were built in 1964 and 1965, construction cost estimated in the building permits was a total of $2.4 million.

Arthur Mayse On Vacation For Three Weeks

Special Lectures to Analyze Future of B.C.'s Universities

In an effort to present authoritative opinion on the future of universities in this community and the rest of the province, the University Extension Association of Victoria has scheduled special speakers for a series of four lectures at the beginning of its 46th season opening Sept. 15.

Dr. S. N. F. Chant, author of the report which bears his name, will lead off.

As vice-chairman and director of research for the Academic Board for Higher Education in B.C. he brings particular, up-to-date knowledge and wide experience to his treatment of The Future of Higher Education in British Columbia.

He will be followed, Oct. 6, by Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, who will discuss The University of Victoria and the Municipality in terms of community and local relationships.

Dr. Bruce Partridge, president of the University of Victoria, will speak Oct. 27 on that institution's position today and prospects for the future, and on Nov. 17. Frederick Edell, assistant professor of theatre at Uvic, will speak on The University Ferment.

INDIAN SPEAKER

At the completion of the special series, George Clutesi, author and artist, will close the first half of the season Dec. 1 with an address on The Indian —Past, Present and Future.

The program will be resumed Jan. 12, with Dr. Atholl Sutherland Brown speaking on Continental Drift—A View from the Leading Edge of a Raft.

Colin Graham, director of the Victoria Art Gallery, will follow Jan. 26 with a review of Art in Victoria. Rev. Richard F. Sherburne, University of Washington, will speak Feb. 9 on Buddhist Kingdoms of the High Himalaya—Their Culture and Religion and on Feb. 23, Dr. William Rodney, professor of history at Royal Roads, will speak on Kootenai Brown and Colorful B.C.

The season will close March 23 with Dr. David Suzuki, department of zoology, UBC, discussing Genetics and the Responsibility of Science.

Membership in the association may be taken out before the meetings on Monday evenings in Room 144 MacLaurin Building, University of Victoria. All lectures, starting at 8:15, are open to the public.

OAK BAY OKAYS APARTMENTS

'High-Rise Ghetto' Feared

Construction approval of an 188-suite and a 50-suite apartment building was given by Oak Bay council after a 90-minute public hearing Tuesday.

The larger building will be on the site of the former city-owned Old Men's Home at Cadboro Bay and Bowker. The other will be built at the east corner of Mitchell and Granite. Both are three storeys plus basement.

Several residents objected to the projects.

Ian Parker, 2146 Windsor, described Oak Bay as a potential "high-rise ghetto."

The protesters angered Ald. G. Scott Wallace, who said he was "not entirely impressed with public hearings." He said those who attended were often motivated by selfish reasons.

★ ★ ★

"When I was fighting tooth and nail on high-rise development on Beach Drive only people on Deal Street turned out. Most of the people sat on the sidelines."

He said residents should emulate councillors who tried to envision the whole problem of Oak Bay, which involves development of land for its best purposes, holding the tax line, and preservation of park areas.

Don McAdam, developer of the Cadboro Bay Road project, said that apartment development upgraded values of single-dwelling homes in the vicinity.

"Property values go up and the houses become future candidates for apartment sites."

Gorde Hunter, 3557 Kelsey Place, asked if apartment construction wasn't the first step for home-owners in the surrounding area being pressured into selling at inflated prices.

Another zoning bylaw, permitting the extension of Saunders and Hitchman Ltd., facilities on Foul Bay was stalled. For more than a year residents on Florence Street have complained the garage employees block the street with cars throughout the working day.

The matter was referred back to the streets and traffic committee for more study.

Sniper Fire Kills Girl, Policeman

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A white policeman and a 15-year-old Negro girl were shot to death Tuesday night in an outbreak of sniper fire in Camden, N.J. Sniping incidents with no reported injuries recurred in Hartford, Conn., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Camden victims were Patrolman Rande J. Chandler, 22, and Rose McDonald, both apparently hit by the same volley during the second night of disorders in the south New Jersey city of 117,000 near Philadelphia.

Police said Chandler was one of several patrolmen assigned to clear debris that had been thrown into a street. As the patrolman approached, more trash, rocks and bottles began flying and then the shots rang out.

In the same predominantly Negro section Monday night a melee broke out when police tried to break up a fight among a number of juveniles. Policemen were attacked with fists and rocks by the youths.

In Fort Lauderdale, sniper fire crackled again today as National Guard troops and police calmed but failed to stop the violence that has gripped a predominantly Negro area three successive nights.

Police, joined by 100 guardsmen, patrolled to enforce an overnight curfew banning all but emergency personnel from streets in a 200-block area.

They met scattered looting, rock throwing, firebombing and the sporadic sniping but police said the disturbances were less violent than on Sunday and Monday nights, when 113 persons were arrested.

Forty-seven persons were arrested Tuesday night, police said. An estimated 75 persons have been injured in the disorders that began when a Negro woman was shot and wounded as police were breaking up an auto drag race.

Police and 100 state troopers in Hartford used tear gas and wholesale arrests to restore calm Tuesday night after an outbreak of arson and shooting in the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican North End section.

More than 70 stores have been burned or looted and a score of persons, including firemen and policemen, injured in the disturbances which erupted Monday night. Arrests totalled about 200.

City Manager Elisha Freedman said he would decide today whether to continue a citywide overnight curfew—the second such ban for the city in two months.

Mayor Ann Uccello ordered residents of the Connecticut capital off the streets from sunset to sunrise for two nights in June because of violence in the North End.

The curfew at first failed to control the crowds of destructive teenagers and young adults Tuesday night but the arrests of scores of persons and a light rain brought the situation under control by 11 p.m.

B.C. Cool To Ottawa Water Bill

Pollution Debated

Resources Minister Ray Williston made clear today there is still a long way to go before British Columbia and the federal government can get together on the mechanics of controlling water pollution.

He spoke at a joint press conference with federal Minister Without Portfolio Otto Lang after the two had discussed the proposed Canada Water Act, which will be introduced into Parliament in the fall.

Williston indicated his earlier stand that the proposed act would create unnecessary confusion in water pollution control has been moderated only slightly.

He said he will need a great deal more clarification before he can even present a clear-cut synopsis of federal proposals to the provincial cabinet.

GOALS THE SAME

Asked if the federal deal would prove more useful in fighting pollution than would the province's existing laws, Williston replied:

"To be perfectly honest and forthright, the answer is no."

But Williston said there is absolutely no difference of opinion on goals between federal and provincial water pollution control programs.

Asked if there is any point in B.C. and Ottawa continuing discussions, Williston replied that there are many international and inter-provincial rivers in the province, which would require inter-governmental co-operation.

Lang, the federal minister in charge of water resources, said the basic intention of the Canada Water Act would be that federal and provincial governments should work together.

He said the bill will contain provision for unilateral federal action where provinces are lagging, but added: "I consider that inconceivable in prospect."

Lang described the talks this morning as "a base for future action," and agreed with Williston.

HANOI HINTING DEADLOCK OVER

PARIS (WP)—North Vietnam hinted Tuesday that rapid and massive withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam might get the stalled peace talks off dead centre.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator, said, "If President Nixon continues to withdraw troops rapidly and in considerable numbers we will examine this factor and take it into account."

His remarks constituted the first indication that Hanoi would consider anything less than the total and unconditional withdrawal of the half million troops in South Vietnam.

By the same token, he hinted that North Vietnam would no longer insist on its other previously intransigent demand that the present Saigon regime be replaced by a provisional coalition government.

Left unanswered was whether his remarks to reporters at a North Vietnamese reception represented the long-hoped-for breakthrough at the deadlocked peace talks or rather a propaganda ploy designed to increase pressure on Washington.

Ho Reported Near Death

HONG KONG (CP)—Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating, monitors reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing." Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

In both Washington and Paris rumors spreads that the North Vietnam leader was already dead.

Diplomats speculated that the communique on the illness may have been issued to prepare the way for announcement of his death.

Ho's illness was announced in a communique which said:

"Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well. . . . A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

Another communique, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris remarked: "All I can say is what is obvious—the president is an old man."

STRUGGLE WILL RESULT

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

Ho Chi Minh has been a patriot for 70 years and a Communist for 50.

Israel Strikes Arab Gun Posts

From AP - Reuters

Israeli jets roared across two frontiers today, hitting Arab gun emplacements in Jordan and Lebanon. To the south, Israeli and Egyptian guns again traded fire across the Suez Canal.

In Beirut, Lebanon, knowledgeable sources said the action was "big."

The Israeli planes first streaked across the River Jordan to retaliate for an Arab bazooka attack on an early morning border patrol. The Israeli army said they bombed a former police station in Jordan three miles south of the Sea of Galilee that was occupied by guerrilla gunners.

A spokesman in Aman, Jordan said Israeli tanks and mortars today fired in the area for 35 minutes. Then two Israeli planes machine-gunned the area and dropped napalm bombs, he said. He said there were no Jordanian casualties.

Later in the day Israeli jets crossed the Lebanese border to hit sources of Arab rocket fire that killed two Israelis and wounded four in Kiryat Smona Tuesday night. The army said two waves of planes pounded three Al Fatah guerrilla bases on the western slopes of Mount Hermon in a half-hour strike.

GROUND FIRE

Lebanese ground fire hit back at the intruding planes in both cases, it said, but did not report any Israeli losses.

Israel claims Palestinian guerrillas are based in the Hermon area from which they stage bombing attacks and hit-and-run raids on settlements in Upper Galilee.

A similar Israeli attack two weeks ago resulted in a condemnation from the UN Security Council, which also deplored all armed activity in the area, a reference to guerrilla action.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, reports circulated that Secretary-General U Thant had requested Syria to release the two Israeli men still being held after the hijacking of an American airliner last Friday.

DUBCEK
. . . reform leader

Czechs Expected To Purge Dubcek

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Informed sources said today the Czechoslovak Communist party central committee will meet Thursday or Friday. The session is expected to purge Alexander Dubcek and other leaders of the 1968 reform movement from party posts.

Pro-Russian Communists today stepped up a campaign to have Dubeck consigned to political oblivion. Vasil Bilak, a powerful member of the ruling Communist party presidium, called on the former party chief to confess his mistakes and denounce the real masterminds of the reform policy crushed last year by Russia.

Bilak also said that the reforming Communists whom Dubcek led last year at one point received a suggestion of the possibility of breaking relations with the Soviet Union.

His comments, in an interview published by the Communist party daily newspaper Rude Pravo, continued what appeared to be a careful setting of the stage for a central committee meeting this month.

Observers expect the meeting will strip Dubcek of his presidium and central committee posts, and possibly also of the speakership of the federal legislature. He lost the Communist party leadership in April.

Another conservative, Volem Novy, called Tuesday for the removal of Dubcek from his party jobs and also the removal from the central committee of reformer Josef Smrkovsky, the deputy leader of the National Assembly.

Novy spoke to party functionaries in the Bohemian town of Ceske Budjovice.

Protestants Hit Belfast Traffic

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant extremists brought traffic chaos to Belfast today by building and manning a huge barricade across the M-1 motorway outside the Northern Ireland capital.

The extremists said the barricade was a protest because barricades in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast had not been pulled down.

No move was made by the Royal Ulster Constabulary or British troops to remove either the new barricades or any of the existing ones.

Belfast corporation—the city council—has asked for talks with Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, British military commander in Northern Ireland, and with police representatives.

Aim is to discuss how to ensure law and order in the city and try to get it back to normal after the recent inter-religious rioting and fighting.

Belfast civic leaders said they are worried about continuing complaints of attacks on individuals and threats to property.

GAS SAID HARMLESS

Meanwhile, three British medical experts categorically declared after an investigation in Londonderry that the CS tear gas which the police used in the riots there caused no illness among healthy people.

They noted, however, that after the gas, diarrhea was prevalent, with 60 to 100 cases among babies.

"That is the kind of thing that in normal circumstances would mean action stations for doctors all around the place," said Sir Harold Himsworth, former president of the British Medical Research Council.

CIRCUMSTANCES

"In normal circumstances, 10 per cent of them would be very ill and you would probably get some deaths. We have looked at this and there has not been a single admission to hospital for a baby with diarrhea."

Himsworth's fellow experts are Prof. Robert Thompson, Middlesex University Hospital, and Prof. Anthony Dornhorts, St. George's Medical Hospital, London.

They were appointed by the British home office to check complaints that the reputed 1,000 tear gas canisters used by police in the 36 hours of Londonderry rioting made Roman Catholics in the Bogside area violently ill.

Village Emergency Created by Blasts

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP)—A state of emergency was declared today in this western New York village as a series of underground explosions rumbled through its downtown area.

The blasts were caused by more than 8,000 gallons of gasoline which spilled into the sewer systems after a collision involving a tanker truck and an automobile. The explosions did no noticeable damage above ground.

The driver of the automobile was killed in the crash, but the truck driver escaped serious injury. Burning gasoline from the accident splashed on four houses and they burned to the ground, leaving 17 persons homeless.

Residents of the village of some 3,500 east of Buffalo were asked to shut off electricity, open doors and windows and refrain from smoking.

Heirs to Keep North Fighting

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP)—The question of who will succeed Ho Chi Minh, a perennial subject of speculation among Asia specialists, has been given fresh urgency by official Hanoi indications that North Vietnam's president is ill and dying.

But his death, when it comes, is unlikely to bring about dramatic changes in North Vietnamese policies and practice, at least within the immediate future.

Uncle Ho, the Living Legend

For Ho retired long ago to the role of arbiter, leaving the direction of the country to a collegium of younger associates. This move served him in two principal ways.

It permitted him, in contrast to contemporaries like Mao Tse-Tung and Charles de Gaulle, to protect his enormous prestige as "Uncle" Ho, the living legend. Thus he was able to shift the blame to his subordinates for such blunders as an abortive land reform or the unpopular purge of intellectuals a decade ago. At the same time, his delegation of authority gave Hanoi a degree of institutional stability and experience unparalleled elsewhere in Southeast Asia. This partly assured North Vietnam's survival under the intense pressures of U.S. bombing.

As long as the war in the South continues, it seems probable that their passionate

WAITING THEIR TURN to be unloaded, trollers and skippers rest alongside Ogden Point jetties. Packing company staffers were kept busy as the unusually high number of fishing boats came in to unload their catches. Many of the skippers said they had forsaken salmon fishing for tuna because a change in ocean conditions had brought the warm current closer than usual to shore. Fisheries officials agreed the warm current which the tuna needs (with temperatures of more than 60 degrees) had moved much further north than usual. Salmon-Hungry Fleet Hits Tuna Bonanza

. . . heading back

Ogden Point looked like a watery version of the corner of Douglas and Yates this morning as an armada of trollers unloaded.

A packing company official said the invasion is the result of a tuna catch.

"Many of these boats normally call in at Vancouver but with the tuna run they're stopping off here first."

He estimated that the 20-odd boats would unload about 100,000 pounds before 5 p.m. today.

Although most of the boats had holds filled with tuna, others were loaded with salmon. One had 7,000 pounds of salmon aboard.

Most of the troller fishermen said they were catching tuna to make up for poor salmon catches.

Thomas Russell of Campbell River, with 20 years commercial fishing to his credit, said he'd fished tuna for the last three years.

• • •

"We're now getting tuna runs like those off California and Oregon 15 years ago. The reason is that the blue water warm current is getting closer to the shore as ocean conditions change."

In from a 10-day trip, he said he filled his holds 50 miles off Tofino. He plans two more trips before the season ends.

Brian Berg and Norm Egan of Nanaimo were less fortunate. Out a week, gale-force winds forced them to abandon fishing after four days. They had "about three tons" of tuna aboard their 42-foot Western Standard.

Berg said after repairs he would make another trip. During the storm Western Standard lost two stabilizers and broke rigging and stays.

• • •

Berg estimated that about half the troller fleet is currently fishing tuna.

Berg figured he'd call it quits after the next trip because the equinox has started "and that means bigger and more unpredictable gales."

An official estimated that $1 million dollars worth of tuna was landed at Ogden Point last year.

Forecasts are for a bigger catch this year.

M. P. Houghton, chief of the fisheries conservation and protection branch in Vancouver, explained:

"The warm current that often stays around California and Oregon has moved further north this year along our coast. When this happens our fishermen can expect to get catches similiar to those further south."

He added that the season would last only a few weeks.

SEVEN FLAGS DISAPPEAR

City police are investigating theft of seven flags on Yates Street.

They were stolen from the north side canopy over the sidewalk in the 700 block.

Belonging to the block's merchants, they included Canadian, British Columbia and U.S flags, worth $270. The poles were left behind.

Crash Injures Five

Five persons were injured when a car smashed into a guard ramp and plunged into Goldstream early this morning.

All are reported to be in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Names of passengers and driver are being withheld until next-of-kin have been contacted by RCMP.

Police said the accident occurred at 1 a.m. at "suicide corner" at the bottom of the Malahat near the Goldstream Park entrance.

SEARCH FOR MEN PRESSED

The search for two fishermen missing off Sooke since Monday afternoon resumed at dawn today.

An RCMP spokesman said a police vessel and a Department of Transport helicopter searched the area all Tuesday. The two men, whose identities have not been released, are from the Victoria area.

The spokesman said a 12-foot aluminum skiff was found in the area Tuesday afternoon, "but there was nothing in it to give us any indication of what might have happened."

Loffmark To Meet Wallace

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said today he wants to meet the new Oak Bay MLA, Dr. G. Scott Wallace, — and is ready to listen to the physician's often critical views on government health policies.

Loffmark was attempting to arrange the meeting today.

He said he welcomes the outspoken views Wallace put forward during his successful campaign as Social Credit candidate in Oak Bay.

"I think he is competent and sincere and these are the only tests that really matter," said Loffmark.

SEWAGE TALK

The health minister particularly wants to discuss Wallace's suggestions for sewage treatment and planning for hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria Regional District.

"Dr. Wallace is very close to the operational side of hospitals and he will be a most welcome source of advice to me in my work with the Capital Regional Hospital District."

"I'm sure he enjoys the confidence of the medical profession."

Loffmark said the "whole strength of a political party depends on its willingness and ability to admit new members to its council and to listen to what they are saying."

VOTE SOON

He said he hopes the question of acute care hospital facilities in the Greater Victoria area will be put to the people soon.

There had been "healthy competition" among hospitals for new facilities.

Wallace, an Oak Bay alderman, met council Tuesday and asked for a motion on whether he should resign or wait until the municipal term ends in December. Council unanimously voted in favor of his continuing as an alderman.

Region Facing Crisis As 3 Mayors Retiring

By JIM HUME

The retirement of three Greater Victoria mayors in December may force the Regional District and the Regional Hospital District into a year of crisis.

North Saanich Mayor Jim Cumming, vice-chairman of both boards, made the statement this morning after being informed of the three-fold retirement plans.

Stepping down this year are Mayor Ray Bryant, Esquimalt; Mayor Hugh Stephen, Victoria and Mayor Fred Hawes, Oak Bay.

All hold key positions on the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board.

Bryant announced his retirement from civic politics this morning.

Stephen has repeatedly stated since his election in 1966 that he would retire in 1969.

Hawes, this morning, says "it was a little early to say, but at this point the answer is no. I shall not be seeking re-election."

The retirements, says Cumming, "will leave the regional district government flying high in the air.

'MUCH HARDER'

"The loss of Bryant as chairman of finance in a crucial year is going to make it very difficult for a newcomer to take over.

"Next year was going to be a tough year anyway, with a huge acute-care-bed hospital referendum scheduled to go to the people in the late spring. It will be that much harder now."

Estimated cost of the referendum has been set at between $40 and $50 million.

"I don't know what the answer is," Cumming added. "But the retirement of three key members of two regional district boards is going to leave some big holes to fill.

Cumming, vice-chairman of both regional boards, said he wouldn't mind stepping out of the political arena himself.

"But there are too many vital things to be done, too many details to tidy up," he said. "I feel obliged to run again, to stay in office if the people permit me, so that the objectives we have worked so hard for during the past four or five years can be cleared up."

Bryant's decision to call it quits will bring to an end close to 20 years of service by the Bryant family in Esquimalt.

James "Jimmy" Bryant, the mayor's father, served on council for 16 consecutive years, his last year on council with his son as mayor.

Mayor Bryant is concluding his fourth year in office.

THIRD YEAR

Stephen is completing his third year. He took office in 1966 following the death of Mayor A. W. Toone. He said then, he intended to hold office for no more than two terms.

Hawes was a councillor in Oak Bay before being elected mayor in 1967 to succeed Allan Cox.

With three mayors stepping down, Mayor Hugh Curtis in Saanich remains to seek re-election in the winter polls.

Curtis, scheduled to move from first vice-president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities to president in September, has stated that he will definitely seek another term in office.

LAW PRACTICE

Bryant said his retirement, at least on a temporary basis, was brought about by the necessity to spend more time on his law practice.

In addition to serving as the mayor of Esquimalt Bryant was chairman of the regional district finance committee and of the executive committee for the regional hospital district.

Stephen has been chairman of the regional district board and the regional hospital district board since January. He succeeded Curtis to that office.

Hawes is chairman of the sewage and garbage disposal committee for the district government.

CUMMING
. . . 'big holes to fill'

In addition to the critical hospital issues facing the regional government in 1970, the retirement of the three mayors could bring to a head the always present, but never faced, differences between urban and rural representatives on the board.

URBAN CONTROL

Since its inception, the chairman and key committee members have been from the urban municipalities.

With three new mayors taking office, all newcomers to regional government ways, the question is already being posed: "Who will succeed Stephen as chairman of the two main boards?"

Curtis would be the logical choice, say insiders, but he has already served a three-year stint and, with the added duties as president of the UBCM, would have difficulty in finding time for the added burdens of office.

SAANICH MAN CHARGED IN CAR DEATH

A 21-year-old Saanich man was charged with criminal negligence Tuesday in Princeton court after a traffic death Monday near the interior British Columbia community.

Charged was Marlin Stanley Hurst, 3281 Shelley. He was remanded to Sept. 24.

The accident, which occurred on the southern Trans-Canada Highway 17 miles west of Princeton, killed 67-year-old Philip Lindeman of Chilliwack.

Record Price For Simcoes

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments in James Bay have been sold for $4,250,000 to Amon Investments, a Vancouver company.

Wall and Redekop Realty of Vancouver, which handled the transaction, said it is the largest apartment sale through a real estate broker in British Columbia. Seller was Norol Developments of Vancouver.

The same real estate company recently handled the $2,750,000 sale of the Princess Patricia apartments.

The Lord and Lady Simcoe apartments are at 440 and 450 Simcoe Street.

The twin 13-storey towers contain 293 suites and parking for 220 cars. Rents range from $120 to $162 a month for one-bedroom suites and from $160 to $205 a month for two-bedroom suites.

When they were built in 1964 and 1965, construction cost estimated in the building permits was a total of $2.4 million.

Special Lectures to Analyze Future of B.C.'s Universities

In an effort to present authoritative opinion on the future of universities in this community and the rest of the province, the University Extension Association of Victoria has scheduled special speakers for a series of four lectures at the beginning of its 46th season opening Sept. 15.

Dr. S. N. F. Chant, author of the report which bears his name, will lead off.

As vice-chairman and director of research for the Academic Board for Higher Education in B.C. he brings particular, up-to-date knowledge and wide experience to his treatment of The Future of Higher Education in British Columbia.

He will be followed, Oct. 6, by Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, who will discuss The University of Victoria and the Municipality in terms of community and local relationships.

Dr. Bruce Partridge, president of the University of Victoria, will speak Oct. 27 on that institution's position today and prospects for the future, and on Nov. 17, Frederick Edell, assistant professor of theatre at Uvic, will speak on The University Ferment.

INDIAN SPEAKER

At the completion of the special series, George Clutesi, author and artist, will close the first half of the season Dec. 1 with an address on The Indian —Past, Present and Future.

The program will be resumed Jan. 12, with Dr. Atholl Sutherland Brown speaking on Continental Drift—A View from the Leading Edge of a Raft.

Colin Graham, director of the Victoria Art Gallery, will follow Jan. 26 with a review of Art in Victoria. Rev. Richard F. Sherburne, University of Washington, will speak Feb. 9 on Buddhist Kingdoms of the High Himalaya—Their Culture and Religion and on Feb. 23, Dr. William Rodney, professor of history at Royal Roads, will speak on Kootenai Brown and Colorful B.C.

The season will close March 23 with Dr. David Suzuki, department of zoology, UBC, discussing Genetics and the Responsibility of Science.

Membership in the association may be taken out before the meetings on Monday evenings in Room 144 MacLaurin Building, University of Victoria. All lectures, starting at 8:15, are open to the public.

OAK BAY OKAYS APARTMENTS

'High-Rise Ghetto' Feared

Construction approval of an 188-suite and a 50-suite apartment building was given by Oak Bay council after a 90-minute public hearing Tuesday.

The larger building will be on the site of the former city-owned Old Men's Home at Cadboro Bay and Bowker. The other will be built at the east corner of Mitchell and Granite. Both are three storeys plus basement.

Several residents objected to the projects.

Ian Parker, 2146 Windsor, described Oak Bay as a potential "high-rise ghetto."

The protesters angered Ald. G. Scott Wallace, who said he was "not entirely impressed with public hearings." He said those who attended were often motivated by selfish reasons.

★ ★ ★

"When I was fighting tooth and nail on high-rise development on Beach Drive only people on Deal Street turned out. Most of the people sat on the sidelines."

He said residents should emulate councillors who tried to envision the whole problem of Oak Bay, which involves development of land for its best purposes, holding the tax line, and preservation of park areas.

Don McAdam, developer of the Cadboro Bay Road project, said that apartment development upgraded values of single-dwelling homes in the vicinity.

"Property values go up and the houses become future candidates for apartment sites."

Gorde Hunter, 3557 Kelsey Place, asked if apartment construction wasn't the first step for home-owners in the surrounding area being pressured into selling at inflated prices.

Another zoning bylaw, permitting the extension of Saunders and Hitchman Ltd., facilities on Foul Bay was stalled. For more than a year residents on Florence Street have complained the garage employees block the street with cars throughout the working day.

The matter was referred back to the streets and traffic committee for more study.
